ANNUAL AMERICAN CATALOGUE, 1888

Full Titles by Authors.

NOTE.

In this list the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

THE ANNUAL AMERICAN CATALOGUE, 1888.

Of Books recorded January 1 to December 31, 1888, with full titles and descriptive notes, arranged alphabetically by authors.

A., A. B., comp. The Caroline Herschel handbook. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] 30 p. Fe. pap., 10c.

A little book small enough for the pocket containing the multiplication table, interspersed with appropriate texts. It is designed for people who reckon slowly, and is called after the great woman astronomer because she said, near the close of her long life: "I never could remember the multiplication table, but was obliged to carry always a copy of it about me."

Abbot, Willis J. Blue jackets of '76: a history of the naval battles of the American revolution, together with a narrative of the war with Tripoli; il. by W. C. Jackson and H. W. McVickar. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1888.] c. 7+301 p. sq. O. canvas, $3.

Gotten up in blue and white canvas, and with many full-page pictures, uniform with "Blue jackets of '61" and "Blue jackets of 1812." Like these works the volume is meant for young readers, presenting its subject in a very attractive manner.

Abbott, Austin. New cases selected chiefly from decisions of the courts of the state of New York, with notes. V. 19. N. Y., Diossy & Co., 1888. c. 46+542 p. O. shp., $5.

Abbott, Austin. New cases selected chiefly from decisions of the courts of New York. V. 20. N. Y., Diossy & Co., 1888. c. 52+540 p. O. shp., $5.

Abbott, C: C., M.D. Cyclopædia of natural history; for popular use. Troy, N. Y., Nims & Knight, 1887. il. D. cl., $1.

Abbott, Evelyn. A history of Greece; from the earliest times to the Ionian revolt. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. 10+553 p. O. cl., $2.25.

For readers who are acquainted with the outlines of the subject, and have some knowledge of the Greek language. Written in the belief that an intelligible sketch of Greek civilization may be given within a brief compass—"not with the hope of throwing new light on old obscurities, or quoting fresh evidence where all the evidence has been long ago collected." In a second part the history will be brought down to the end of the Peloponnesian war.

Abbott, H: L. Defence of the sea-coast of the United States: lectures before the U. S. Naval War College. N. Y., D. Van Nostrand, 1888. c. 167 p. O. cl., $2.

Abbott, Rev. Lyman. The epistle of Paul the apostle to the Romans; with notes and comments. Handy ed. N. Y., A. S. Barnes & Co., 1888. c. 230 p. map and il. O. cl., $1.75; shp., $2.50; hf. mor., $3; Household ed., cl., $3; shp., $3.50; hf. mor., $4.

Nearly twelve years have elapsed since the appearance of Dr. Lyman Abbott's volume on "Acts." This volume begins with an introduction of 114 pages giving a summary of the life, character, and writings of St. Paul. The author holds "that the traditional view of his character is not borne out by such knowledge as we possess of the facts of his life, that he was an evangelist rather than a philosopher, and a poet rather than a scholastic." These views are opposed to such scholarly authorities as Tholuck, Meyer, Godet, and Alford, and much time and labor were needed in the researches upon which they are based. The "Epistle to the Romans" is treated as the other volumes of these commentaries.

Abbott, Lyman, D.D., and Gilmore, Ja. R. The gospel history; life of Jesus, woven from the texts of his original biographers, the four evangelists. New rev. ed. N. Y., Fords, Howard & Hulbert, 1888. 840 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Abbott, T. K. Elementary theory of the tides; the fundamental theorems demonstrated without mathematics, and the influence on the length of the day discussed. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1888. 4+42 p. D. cl., 65 c.

Ackerman, G. E., D.D. Man a revelation of God. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt, 1888. c. 396 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Written by one who has been a sceptic himself, with the earnest desire to help the honest doubter over his difficulties. He does this in a series of chapters addressed to the unlearned, in which he seeks to prove that man is a revelation of God—"in his origin," "in his physical structure," "in his speech," "in his mental characteristics," "in his will and moral nature," "in his achievements," "in his aspirations," and "in his regeneration and adoption."

Adams, Herbert B. Report of the proceedings of the American Historical Assoc., in Boston and Cambridge, May 21–24, 1887. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 238 p. O. (Papers of the Amer. Historical Assoc., v. 3, no. 1.) pap., $1.50.

Adams, I: E. Political oratory of Emory A. Storrs; from Lincoln to Garfield. N. Y. and Chic., Belford, Clarke & Co., 1888. D. cl., $1.25.

Adams, Rev. J: Coleman. The fatherhood of God. Bost., Universalist Pub. House, 1888. c. 96 p. S. (Manuals of faith and duty, no. 1.) cl., net, 25 c.

The first of a series of manuals to be edited by Rev. J. S. Cantwell for the purpose of expounding the prominent teachings of the Universalist Church and the moral and religious obligations of its members. The little books will unfold doctrine in an affirmative and constructive way, and avoid controversy. They will be issued at intervals of three or four months. The author is a Chicago clergyman. He thinks no truth has more power to move the human heart and mind and lead to reform of conduct than the sense of God's fatherhood.

Adams, Mrs. Leith. Aunt Hepsy's foundling. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 294 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1224.) pap., 20 c.

Adams, W. I. Lincoln. The photographic instructor for the practical photographer and amateur; with appendix by Prof. C: Ehrmann. N. Y., Scovill Manuf. Co., 423 Broome St., 1888. c. 196 p. il. O. cl., $1.25; pap., 75 c.

Mr. Adams, the editor of the Photographic Times, has carefully edited, revised, and enlarged the comprehensive series of practical lessons issued to the students of the Chautauqua School of Photography, and has added an appendix on the nature and use of the various chemicals and substances employed in photographic practice, prepared by Prof. Ehrmann, instructor of the C. S. P., and an experienced photographer himself. A useful work of reference to the professional, and an invaluable guide to the amateur.

Adams, W: T., ["Oliver Optic," pseud.] Taken by the enemy. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1889 [1888.] c. 3–344 p. il. D. (The blue and the gray ser.) cl., $1.50.

A new series for young people, of which this is the first issue, has been begun under the general title of "The blue and the gray." The series will be completed in six volumes. They will deal with the events of the late war, both north and south, and though written from the Union standpoint, the author hopes that it will not be found that he is "unfair or unjust to those who looked from the opposite point of view." This story is entirely one of adventure by sea, the scene taking place chiefly on board the steam-yacht Bellevite, which the owner offers finally to the government for the Union cause. In this volume he makes use of the yacht to bring his family up from the south, where they are when the war breaks out.

Addison, C: G. Addison on contracts. 8th ed.; by H. Smith, with Amer. notes by B. V. Abbott, brought down to date by H. G. Wood. V. 3. Bost., C. H. Edson & Co., 1888. c. 3+787–1091+13–142+366 p. O. (American law series, v. 1, no. 3.) pap., subs., $1.25.

Addison, Jos. Essays and tales. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] 102 p. T. (Cassell's national lib., v. 3, no. 132.) pap., 10 c.

Addison, Jos. The Tatler: sel. essays with introd. and notes by Alex. C: Ewald. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1888. 478 p. D. (Chandos classics.) cl., $1.

Adee, D: Graham. No. 19 State Street. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 3+339 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., v. 1, no. 7.) pap., 50 c.

This weird story purports to have been found in a manuscript left in the chambers of a New York lawyer. The writer was also a lawyer who during the years 1843–1845 occupied these offices while employed upon the case he describes. The author shows an intimate aquaintance with the political, social, and everyday life in New York City, fifty years ago. The story is full of mystery, horror, and supernatural events. All hinges upon the faith of the inhabitants of 19 State Street in the Hindoo religion and their importation of a large snake into their modern home. Almost all the characters smoke hashish.

Æschylus. The seven against Thebes; with an introduction and notes by A. W. Verrall and M. A. Bayfield. School ed. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1888. 30+127 p. S. el., 90 c.

Æsop's fables for little readers; told by Mrs. Arthur Brookfield; pictured by H: J. Ford. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, [1888.] 70 p. il. sq. O. bds., $1.50.

The reason for reproducing the old fables of Æsop in a somewhat new form is, that Mrs. Brookfield found that even the simplest editions published were too difficult for her own little children to understand. She has therefore "tried to produce the charming and familiar stories in a form which may be welcomed in the nursery and approved by little readers, to whom easy and childlike language is an object."

After school stories for the young. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1888. 196 p. il. sq. O. bds., $1.

Agassiz, Alex. Three cruises of the Blake: a contribution to American thalassography; three cruises of the United States coast and geodetic survey steamer Blake, in the Gulf of Mexico, in the Caribbean Sea, and along the Atlantic coast of the United States, from 1877 to 1880. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. 2 v., il. O. cl., $8.

Agostino, Padre. Sermons; ed. by C. M. Phillimore. New cheap ed. N. Y., Ja. Pott & Co., 1888. 174 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Aguilar, Grace. The women of Israel; or, characters and sketches from the Holy Scriptures and Jewish history. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1888. 576 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Aguirre, J. M. Uncle Sam in pontifical robes. John Bull destitute of attire: an open letter to James G. Blaine. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1888. c. 240 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Aimard, Gustave. The bee-hunter: a tale. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 124 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1104.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave. The buccaneer chief: a story. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 128 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1115.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave. The gold-seekers: a tale of California. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., 1888. 127 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1127.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave. The Indian chief: a tale of the desert. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 5–127 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1133.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave. The Indian scout: a story. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 128 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1098.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave The prairie flower: a tale. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 125 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1089.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave. The queen of the Savannah: a story. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 127 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1112.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave. The rebel chief: a tale. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 128 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1121.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave. The Red River half breed: a tale of the wild northwest. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 3–128 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1150.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave. The red track: a story of social life in Mexico. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 5–125 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1138.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave. The smuggler hero: a story N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 112 p. S (Lovell's lib. no. 1118.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave. Stoneheart: a romance. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 108 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1107.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave. Stronghand: a tale of the disinherited. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 127 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1110.) pap., 10 c.

Aimard, Gustave. The treasure of pearls: a romance of adventures in California. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 128 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1145.) pap., 10 c.

Airlie, Hugh, (pseud.) The epistles of Hugh Airlie; il. by J. W. Bengough. Toronto, Grip Printing and Pub. Co., 1888. 104 p. il. D. pap., 25 c.

A series of letters written in a broad Scotch dialect, describing in a humorous way life in Toronto and the writer's own personal adventures, which are as a general things very eccentric.

Airy, Osmund. The English restoration and Louis XIV., from the peace of Westphalia to the peace of Nimwegen. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1888. 14+282 p. S. (Epochs of modern history.) cl., $1.

Aitken, W:, M.D. Handbook of treatment. N. Y., E. B. Treat, 1887. 444 p. O. cl., $2.75.

Alabama. Supreme court. Reports of cases, Dec. term, 1887; by J: Shepherd. rep. V. 83. Montgomery, W. D. Brown & Co., St. prs., 1888. c. 11+716 p. O. shp., $5.75.

Alcott, A. Bronson. Ralph Waldo Emerson, philosopher and seer: an estimate of his character and genius, in prose and verse. 2d ed. Bost., Cupples & Hurd, [1888.] c. '82, '88. 12+81 p. por. D. cl., $1.

Contents: An essay on Emerson, written just before Mr. Alcott's death; "Ion," a monody read before the Concord School of Philosophy, July 22, 1882; and "The poets countersign," an ode read by F. B. Sanborn at the opening of the Concord School, July 17, 1882.

Alden, Mrs. Is. M., ["Pansy," pseud.] A dozen of them. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 5–93 p. il. D. cl., 60 c.

The book takes its title from a promise a little orphan boy of twelve makes his young sister, that he will learn by heart a verse of Scripture every month. Joe, for that is the boy's name, is thrown at this early age upon his own resources; he goes to work at a farm-house where there is a small private school, and though he finds it difficult at first to keep his promise, does so manfully, and tries to live by the lesson of his text.

Alden, Mrs. Is. M., ["Pansy," pseud.] Judge Burnham's daughters. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 5+339 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.50.

Those who read "Ruth Erskine's crosses" will be glad to meet its principal character once more in her new character of wife and mother. Judge Burnham, Ruth's husband, was a man of wealth and high social position. He was strongly opposed to Ruth's being actively connected with religious or temperance movements, and this fact sometimes brought them dangerously near serious misunderstanding. Another source of trouble were Ruth's step-daughters, gay young things, who rebelled against her authority. Her married life hence was not a happy one—but a long siege of sorrow softens all parties and brings about a better condition of things.

Alden, Mrs. I. M., ["Pansy," pseud.] Pansies for thoughts; from the writings of "Pansy;" comp. and arranged with an appropriate text for each day by Grace Livingston. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 146 p. T. cl., 75 c.

Alden, Mrs. Is. M., ["Pansy," pseud.,] and Livingston, Mrs. C. M. Profiles. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 3–368 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A collection of stories for boys and girls of about twelve or fourteen. Six are from Mrs. Alden's pen, seven from Mrs. Livingston's. They all aim to teach a good moral lesson, without being unpleasantly didactic. The names somewhat indicate their tendency, as "Clean hands," "Circulating decimals," "Our church choir," "The day before Christmas," "Mrs. Whittaker's blankets," etc.

Alden, W: L. A new Robinson Crusoe. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 3+147 p. 1 il. S. (Harper's young people ser.) cl., $1.

Mike Flanagan at the age of sixteen ships as ordinary seaman in a vessel bound from San Francisco to China. She carries one passenger who is supposed to be recovering from a long illness. He claims to be the grandson of "Robinson Crusoe." During a storm the crew desert the vessel. Mike stays to rescue Mr. Crusoe and is left behind. The ship glides upon a sand-bank. In the morning they discover an island and Mr. Crusoe insists upon doing in all things as his grandfather did. Mike is forced to blacken his skin and wear goat-skin clothes. After many amusing adventures Mr. Crusoe is wounded and has a long illness, during which he recovers his reason. After awhile they hail a ship, board her, and reach New York, and Mr. Crusoe, who proves to be a Mr. Munroe, provides for Mike for life, as a reward for all he has made him suffer in the character of "Friday."

Alden's cyclopedia of universal literature. Ideal ed. In about 20 v. V. 3–8. N. Y., J: B. Alden, 1888. D. cl., 50 c.; hf. mor., 60 c.

Alden's cyclopedia of universal literature. Ideal ed. In about 20 v. V. 9–11. N. Y., J: B. Alden, 1888. D. cl., 50 c.; hf. mor., 60 c.

Alden's manifold cyclopædia. In about 30 v. V. 5–7. N. Y., J: B. Alden, 1888. ea. il. D. cl., 50 c.; hf. mor., 65 c.

Alexander, Miss Francesca. Christ's folk in the Apennine; reminiscences of her friends among the Tuscan peasantry, by F. Alexander; ed. by J: Ruskin. N. Y., J: Wiley & Sons, 1888. 7+203 p. D. cl., $1.

Charming little stories of real people; they all tell of good deeds and kind acts and inculcate good lessons. Miss Alexander will be remembered as the editor of the "Songs of Tuscany," which also included many little stories of the Italian peasantry. These are more of just such sketches written in her letters to John Ruskin, who is her editor.

Alexander Sigmund B. The veiled beyond: a romance of the adepts. N. Y., Cassell & Co., 1888. c. 3+276 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser. of choice fiction, v. 1, no. 1.) pap., 50 c.

Following the theories formulated by Mme. Blavatzki in "Isis unveiled," the author tells an ingenious story of metempsychosis. A young man in Boston is fatally injured from a wound in the head. Just as he is dying, the astral body of an old Buddhist wandering in search of reincarnation sees his body and determines to reanimate it. The young Bostonian awakes with the soul of the old Buddhist, which finds itself in a new world. All the strange actions of American Roy are traced to the wound which has injured his brain. He falls in love with one girl while engaged to another and makes a great deal of confusion in the commonplace New England household. The denouement is a tragedy brought about by a mysterious fire.

Alger, Horatio, jr. Bob Burton; or, the young ranchman of the Missouri. Phil., Porter & Coates, [1888.] c. 330 p. il. S. cl., $1.25.

Bob Burton's father was a St. Louis merchant, who retired from business and bought a ranch in Missouri. Owing to the enmity of an older man, who owes a grudge to Bob's mother because she would not marry him, the Burton family is made to suffer many hardships. The father dies, and the son goes to work on a boat and finally owns it, shows up the knavery of the enemy, and takes care of his mother all his life.

Alī Azīz Efendi the Cretan. The story of Jewad: a romance; from the Turkish; by E. J. W. Gibb. N. Y., W: S. Gottsberger, 1888. 9+241 p. D. cl., $1.

Supposed to have been written at the end of the last century by an eminent Turkish diplomat. The story is constructed after the methods of "The thousand and one nights," having a number of secondary narratives growing from it. The translation preserves the florid and somewhat antique style of the original. "Jewad" is a professed magician—his experiences and adventures showing in what light the occult sciences and their practitioners used to be regarded in Turkey. Gives also a good idea of life in Constantinople at the close of the last century.

Allen, Alfred. The heart of Don Vega. Westerly, R. I., G: G. Champlin, 1888. c. 8+156 p. S. pap., 25 c.

Don Vega, being told by doctors that he has heart disease and only five years to live, uses them to perfect an electric heart, which is inserted into his body at a clinic described in ghastly details. The operation is successful, and he is the hero of a sad romance filled with medical and surgical technicalities.

Allen, Grant. In all shades: a novel. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1888. 304 p. D. (Globe lib., no. 73.) pap., 25 c.

The island of Trinidad is the scene of this story. The motive is to show the unconquerable prejudice all West Indians have to any person with even a sixteenth part of negro blood in his or her veins. Edward Hawthorn, apparently of the purest Anglo-Saxon type, educated at Cambridge, and in every sense a gentleman, returns with a wife and an appointment to a judgeship to Trinidad against the wishes of his father and mother. He is at once made conscious there is something of which he is ignorant in his family history, as society generally cuts him and his wife. When he discovers the terrible taint of negro blood, he resolves to stay in Trinidad and live down the prejudice. A meditated negro insurrection, scenes and characters from the island life, and Hawthorn's bold fight for justice are among the many interesting chapters of a very readable book.

Hugh Massinger, a handsome Bohemian and a successful poet, is the worker of all the mischief embodied in this story. He loves his cousin, Elsie Challoner, a Girton girl, who is governess to an heiress, but he deserts the governess for the heiress, and his cousin attempts to drown herself. His marriage brings him little happiness, though he obtains the fortune he has schemed for, his wife dying of a broken heart. The good hero is found in Warren Relf, a young artist, who is Elsie Challoner's devoted friend—he and his family standing by her in all her trouble.

Allen, J: H. The tariff and its evils; or, protection which does not protect. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 7+122 p. D. (Questions of the day, no. 53.) cl., $1.

"An experience of many years as a ship-owner and merchant has convinced me," says Mr. Allen in his preface, "of the dangerous character of what is known as 'protection,' and has made me familiar with many of the evils arising from it. The following pages are the outcome of my study of the subject and my practical acquaintance with the working of the tariff." His argument is presented under the following headings supported by special statistics: The home and the foreign market; The meaning of a surplus; The sources of wealth in the community; The principles governing development; The unwritten law of commerce the true guide; Protection powerless to protect the carrier; Subsidies to shipping hasten the issue; Progress of British and declension of American shipping; The destructiveness of the tariff to our fundamental resources.

Allen, Walter. Governor Chamberlain's administration in South Carolina: a chapter of reconstruction in the Southern states. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 14+544 p. por. O. cl., $3.

"This volume is what its title expresses; it is the record of the Administration of Governor Chamberlain in South Carolina, and nothing more. It was undertaken because it was believed that the period covered by it, though brief, had a character and significance making it worthy of study and remembrance. . . . The object is to gather together and preserve the substance and material of a history rather than to draw the lessons or to state the ultimate results—a work which it would be unwise for any one to attempt now. The records are presented as they stand, documents are given without modification or reserve, and the facts are left to speak for themselves, with only such incidental explanations and comments as seem to be necessary to a just understanding of the circumstances and conditions of each occasion. Numerous extracts from the newspapers of the day are given because they present the best mirror of the times and show how acts and events were regarded while they were occurring, thus preserving in a degree the atmosphere of public opinion breathed by the actors."

Allen, Willis Boyd. Kelp: a story of the Isles of Shoals. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1888. c. 242 p. il. D. (Pine cone ser.) cl. $1.

The fourth volume of the "Pine cone series" takes a jolly party of young campers from Boston down to the Isles of Shoals for a fortnight, and describes the various ways in which the members enjoy themselves during that happy time. The first day is spent at the Appledore House. The second sees the party safely encamped on Star Island, the girls in the one solitary cabin on the island, which has been especially cleared up for them, and the boys in their tent. They are all old friends of the reader, Tom and Bess Percival, Pet Sibley, Bert and Susie Martin, and Nan Burton, all of whom have played parts in the preceding volumes of the series.

Allen, W: F., and Myers, P. V. N. Ancient history for colleges and high schools. Pt. 1: The eastern nations and Greece, by P. V. N. Myers. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. c. 9+479 p. il. D. cl., $1.55.

According to the publishers' announcement this work was to consist of two parts, the first covering the Eastern nations and Greece, by the President of Belmont College, Ohio; the second dealing with Rome, by Prof. Allen, of Wisconsin University. Owing to the illness of the latter his work could not be completed in time, and the part of President Myers' "Outlines of ancient history" relating to Rome has been revised and temporarily substituted. Prof. Allen's work may be expected early in 1889, and will then at once replace the second part of this volume.

The present volume is the sixth of the author's great work on "The formation of Christendom," though it bears the special title indicating the particular part of the general subject with which it deals. It is told almost wholly in the words of papal correspondence. From St. Leo I. to St. Gregory I. covers the years from 400 to 600 after Christ, one of the most interesting epochs in the history of Romanism. Full table of contents and subject index.

Allinson, E: P., and Penrose, Boies. Ground rents in Philadelphia. Phil., Univ. of Penna., [Phil., Porter & Coates; N. Y., G. E. Stechert,] 1888. 19 p. O. (Publications of Univ. of Penna. —Political economy and law ser., ed. by E. J. James, no. 3.) pap., 25 c.

The authors, both of whom are members of the Philadelphia Bar, treat of ground rents in Philadelphia, that device by which the acquisition of real estate has been made so easy to people of moderate means that Philadelphia has become known as par excellence the "City of Homes," having more separate dwelling-houses in proportion to its population than any other great city of the world. It has a special interest for legal and economic students. The essay was first read before the students and professors of the Wharton School of Finance and Political Economy, in February, 1888, and published in the Quarterly Journal of Economics.

An amusing book for young children. Charley's adventures are somewhat similar to those of "Alice in wonderland." He falls a great distance through space and comes to a wonderful country where the birds and animals talk, and do many other remarkable things.

Ames, Lucia T. Great thoughts for little thinkers. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1889 [1888.] c. 7+337 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.
An effort to adapt the Bible narrative and some of the elementary facts of science to the understanding of young people. The story of the creation, the hidden forces in the world, the manner in which the first people lived, are described as simply as it is possible to describe such complex subjects. The chapters on "What is God?" "What are we?" "Heaven and hell," "Sin," "What is the devil?" "What is the Bible?" and "What is God's word?" are broad in treatment and free from bias. The balance of the book is given up to the leading narratives of the Old and New Testaments.

A bright, beautiful girl of twenty has become the "Hon. Mrs. Vereker" to save her father from ruin. The man to whom she is sold is a drunken brute, who disgraces and ill-treats her constantly. The story plays during a short season in a beautiful English country-place whose owner has just returned after ten years' absence. This owner, his sister and cousin play important parts in the life of Mrs. Vereker. Horrors are used sparingly, and the final happy ending rests upon the crime of murder.

An English society novel, with a hero who marries a young girl to whom he is indifferent, because an older woman, who has fascinated him, throws him off for a man his superior in wealth and station. "Marvel" is the young bride, who quickly discovers the mistake she has made in becoming Lord Wriothesley's wife. "Marvel" is a waif found one stormy night at the gate of Lord Wriothesley's home. The mystery of her birth and her unhappy marriage are the themes of the story.

The scene is a coast village of England. Véra and Griselda, cut with the mould that patterned Phyllis and Molly Bawn, are nieces of an old miser, with whom they are forced to live after their scarcely pleasanter father's death. Two young men appear, whose courtship is uphill work, of which the details, added to a hidden will, a villainous old housekeeper's machinations, a terrible wreck, and little glimpses of balls and flirtations, make up a story rather more worthy of "The Duchess" than the recent publications to which she has lent her name.

Aristocracy: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 257 p. D. (Town and country lib.) cl., $1 ; pap., 50 c.

Offered as a contrast to the many pictures of democracy with which recent English and American fiction have abounded. The scene is laid in England, the characters being all titled people, with the exception of one young man, an American from San Francisco, the only son of a millionaire, who comes to pay a visit to the country-seat of the Marquis of Oaktorrington. He serves as the mouthpiece for all the American sentiment and criticism, and as the object of the insults of the "aristocracy," while they are in doubt as to the extent of his wealth. The people introduced are in many cases easily recognized, under a thin disguise of fictitious names. There is not a redeemable character among them, all being hopelessly wicked or stupid, or brutal, or all three together.

Arnold, Sir Edwin. With Sa'di in the garden ; or, the book of love ; being the "Ishk," or third chapter of the "Bostân" of the Persian poet Sa'di ; embodied in a dialogue held in the garden of the Taj Mahal, at Agra. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. 6+211 p. S. cl., $1.

The author of "The light of Asia" has printed the sections of his poem taken directly from the Persian in italics. His opening pages describe the approach to the famous temple tomb. At night the Saheb lounges in the garden under the full moon with a Mirza to read from Sa'di, the book of love, and two Indian maidens to sing play-songs illustrating its beauties. The translations from Sa'di are interspersed with song and story, but the entire atmosphere of the book is in keeping with the supposed surroundings of the Persian author. The "Ishk" is a work of rare spirituality and poetry.

Arnold, Edwin Lester. England as she seems ; being selections from the notes of an Arab hadji. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1888. 128 p. S. pap., 35 c.

The author is the son of Edwin Arnold, who wrote "The light of Asia." The style of the sheik is grave and simple and his words show observation, learning, and a child-like simplicity in his descriptions of the city of London, Windsor Castle, town life, and country life in England. The last chapter, given to the reflections of the Hadji, is full of wise thoughts on the political and social history of England, all told in the picturesque language of the East.

"The object of this volume is to meet the demand for a complete, comprehensive treatise, setting forth the various facts pertaining to electric lighting in plain language, devoid of technicality and perplexing mathematical formulæ, from which business men, mechanics, and those who have the care and management of dynamos and lamps, as well as general readers, may gain a knowledge of the principles and construction of the apparatus by which this light is produced, and of the nature of that invisible, intangible agency which is its prime cause."—Introduction.

Atkinson, W: P. The study of politics : an introductory lecture. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. 63 p. S. cl., 50 c.

This lecture grew out of an introduction to a course on constitutional history given to the senior class at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where the author is professor of English and history. It has been read at that institution, at the Boston Young Men's Christian Union, and elsewhere. Prof. Atkinson, who is an Independent in politics, places clearly before young men their duties as citizens and the necessary study to prepare them for these duties.

Bachelor's (A) wedding trip ; by himself. Phil., The Pen Publishing Co., 1888. c. 6+214 p. D. cl., $1 ; pap., 50 c.

Starting from Philadelphia, the newly-wedded couple take the cars for New York; from here they invade Boston, Portland, make a stay at Fabyan's in the White Mountains, ascend Mount Washington, visit the Glen House, thence to Montreal, Quebec, etc. With descriptions of the journey are many loving conversations between the "bachelor" and his bride, and some original poems and stories. The book seems designed as an advertisement of a New York insurance company.

Bacon, Delia. Delia Bacon : a biographical sketch. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 5+322 p. por. O. cl., $2.

Theodore Bacon is Delia Bacon's nephew. The world has speculated so much about the woman who gave up home and friends, and devoted herself to collecting proofs for the theory that Shakespeare did not write the plays attributed to him, that the writer desires it to have facts. Emerson encouraged her and Hawthorne gave her much help in letters, many of which are given. Delia Bacon was born in 1811. Her father died when she was six years old, leaving the mother with six young children. Little Delia went to Catharine Beecher's school with which at that time Mrs. Stowe was associated. She began life as a teacher also; but the literary instinct in her claimed expression and she wrote a drama which received attention. She felt called upon to go to England in 1853. After five years she returned and died within a year. The volume gives a true picture of the literary life of New England at the beginning of this remarkable century.

Balzac, Honoré de. Cousin Bette; tr. by Katharine Prescott Wormeley. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. tr. 6+557 p. D. hf. mor., $1.50.

Another of Balzac's novels illustrating scenes from Parisian life. The special subject of dissection is "poor relations." Cousin Bette belongs to this class, and is a hard-working old maid, into whose life has come little of the beauty or pleasure that has belonged to her rich relations. Disappointments and poverty sour her, and change a nature that once had much good in it to bitterness and gall. This bitterness she seeks to gratify by bringing all down to her own level of viciousness. She intrigues to ruin all around her, and succeeds admirably. As a picture of the utter rottenness of Parisian middle class life previous to the Second Empire, this novel has never been surpassed.

Balzac, Honoré de. The magic skin; tr. by Katharine Prescott Wormeley; with an introduction by G: F. Parsons. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. tr. 41+323 p. D. hf. rus., $1.50.

La peau de chagrin (The magic skin) is the first volume of an uncompleted series planned by Balzac under the title of "Philosophical studies." It preceded his Comédie Humaine and is different in every way from that series. This work may be read as a story merely, or as an allegory, the moral being evident in either case. The hero, a young man of genius, is reduced to the verge of starvation and is about to commit suicide. Waiting for evening that he may more surely carry out his purpose, he strays into an old curiosity-shop to while away the time and here first sees "The magic skin." The odd proprietor of the shop extracts his story from him, and then presents the skin to him, telling him the penalty he pays in accepting it. The skin has power to grant its possessor all he wishes —but it shrinks at every favor accorded—the owner's life being the forfeit when the skin disappears. Intense selfishness and a wild pursuit of ignoble aims soon end the hero's life and "The magic skin" is seen no more.

Balzac, Honoré de. Modeste Mignon; tr. by Katherine Prescott Wormeley. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. tr. 352 p. D. hf. cl., $1.50.

A young girl's romance is the theme to which Balzac's genius is devoted in this volume. Modeste Mignon lived at Havre in the beginning of the century. Her father was of noble blood, but with the revolution he gave up his title and devoted himself to trade. When the story opens he has just lost an immense fortune made by his industry, and his wife and Modeste are living in retirement with old friends, and he has gone to America to try to make another fortune. Modeste is full of romance and tires of the dulness of her life. Admiring the poems of a new Parisian poet, she is led to write to him. The poet is so used to such adulation that he turns the correspondence over to his secretary, who pursues it with much energy, finally falling deeply in love with Modeste. Out of these elements the romance grows. A time comes when Modeste knows she has been deceived—then her father returns, again a millionaire, and she has many suitors. The characters are elaborately described, and the plot worked out with great skill.

Bamford, Mary E. Marie's story: a tale of the days of Louis XIV. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1888.] c. 3–145 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.

A touching story of the suffering brought on a group of young children by the persecution of the Huguenots, which followed the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. Three brothers and a sister escaped when their parents were arrested and their home burned, and fled from Cevennes to Bordeaux, and thence to Amsterdam. The facts referred to are carefully verified and the references to the authorities are given.

This is the concluding volume on the history of Mexico, covering the period of foreign intervention which resulted in the French occupation. A personal account of Maximilian is given and of his ill-fated career in Mexico and execution. The foundation of the present Diaz government is treated. The closing chapters are devoted to mining, manufactures, and fisheries; commerce and railroads; agricultural resources; ecclesiastical affairs; society; education, science, arts, and literature.

Bancroft, Hubert Howe. History of the Pacific States of North America, v. 18. California, v. 6. 1848–1859. San Francisco, Cal., The History Co., 1888. c. 11+787 p. O. cl., $4.50.

Covers the years 1848 to 1856 so far as relates to the development of the gold fields, and the years 1848 to 1859 as regards the political vicissitudes of California. Both branches of the subject are examined and described in the most minute and exhaustive manner possible. Some of the most important topics discussed are those describing the voyage by ocean, and the journey overland, the prolonged and complicated litigation over Mexican landtitles, and the story of Broderick's political career with its tragical ending. This volume, together with the previous volumes, "California Pastoral," and "Inter Pocula," form the most interesting and popular contributions to the history of this country ever written.

The volume, after a general introduction, gives a view of the easy-going life in California, while it was yet a Mexican province and during the transformation into a bustling American state. The historian describes it then as a lotus land. He touches on society; woman and her sphere; pastures and fields; amusements; inland trade and coast traffic; law, government, and religion; crimes and courts; banditti; closing with the bibliography of pastoral California.

"Much has been written of the California Inferno of 1848 and the years immediately following, much that is neither fact nor fable. Great and gaudy pictures have been painted, but few of them bear much resemblance to nature. . . . No attempt is made in these pages to outdo my predecessors in morbid intensifications of the certain phases of society and character engendered of the times. They contain simple sketches and plain descriptions, historical rather than fantastical, with no effort toward effect."—Preface. A full index is added to the volume.

Baring-Gould, S. Eve: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 3+362 p. S. (Appletons' town and country lib., no. 2.) pap., 50 c.

The scene is laid in Devonshire some eighty years ago. Four generations play their parts. Eve, the first, was a dancer, married to a hard farmer. She died of a broken spirit, after lavishing her love on five children. Her eldest daughter ran away with a travelling band of actors. She fell ill and was carried to a house by the roadside, where she was taken care of by an old farmer. She married him, but after giving him another beautiful Eve, she also ran away. The third Eve is the first heroine of the story. She begins life with the fiery, uncontrolled, pleasure-loving spirit of her maternal ancestors, but owing to trouble, a half-sister's care, and a good uncle's devotion, she escapes the family curse and lives to see her little niece and cousin Eve a pure and happy baby, uniting a much divided family.

Josephine Cornelius was a beautiful hot-tempered girl, in whom all goodness had nearly been killed by a selfish, unprincipled father. Richard Cable was a simple, honest sailor, master of a lightship and a widower and father of seven children. Cable twice saves Josephine's life and the result is a marriage in defiance of the good advice of all belonging to each party. This ill-sorted connection is only the beginning of a story full of original scenes and character studies from both high life and the very poorest English cottage life.

Barker, D: Poems; with biographical sketch by J: E. Godfrey. 3d ed. Bangor, Me., O. F. Knowles & Co., printers, 1887. c. '76. 358 p. por. O. cl., $2; $1.50.

David Barker was born in Exeter, Me., September 9, 1816. His father died when he was seven years old, leaving his mother with ten children. He graduated with honor from the common school and the academy, and became a successful teacher. He was induced by a friend to study law and until within two or three years of his death, in 1874, had a successful practice in his native city. His poems, written in his leisure hours, appeared in many periodicals and are now gathered together and brought out for the benefit of his wife and children.

The aim is to give a series of simple and inexpensive experiments in electricity. The experiments can be easily performed at home or in school, most of them with materials to be found in every household, and are arranged to show the historical development of this science, and at the same time to explain the methods by which electricity is made of use in the arts, manufactures, and business, particularly in connection with the telegraph, telephone, electric-light, and railway.

Manchester and the West Riding country, a woollen-mill, a cotton-mill, a landed lady proprietor, her husband who becomes "master of his fate," his stern Church of England father, his devoted Methodist aunt, the country gentry, and the mill-owners furnish the materials from which the author has constructed a story which, as usual, has a good moral, beautiful scenery, and well-drawn characters. The key-note is that work is a cure for all evil.

Barr, Amelia E. Remember the Alamo. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1888.] c. 3+431 p. S. cl., $1.

The revolution which resulted in the independence of Texas, fifty years ago, is described with a marvellous fidelity and fire. The reader's sympathies are all aroused for the actors in the exciting drama. The taking of the Alamo by Santa Anna, and the massacre of the brave band of Americans who strove to hold it against strong odds, was the origin of the war-cry which resulted in Texan independence and which gives the name to the book. The characters are an American doctor, who has lived for many years in San Antonio, his wife and family, Gen. Sam. Houston, and other American and Spanish patriots.

The object of this treatise is to present in a popular but systematic form the several factors in the great problem of life, and to set forth the Christian religion as its only sufficient solution. Pt. 1 considers the facts of life in answer to these five questions: What am I? Where am I? Whence am I? Whither am I going? What is my relation to my situation, my origin, my future? Pt. 2 logically rounds out the volume by giving the interpretation of the facts. A full analysis and index make it a convenient handbook for reference.

Barrett, Frank. A recoiling vengeance. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 7+280 p. il. S. (Appletons' town and country lib., no. 14.) pap., 50 c.

George Flexmore married late in life, after inheriting a large fortune. His wife dies after the birth of their daughter, and he is left disconsolate. Fearing his own life has not many years to run, he turns his attention to making his will and getting a proper guardian for his child. He dies suddenly, and an unscrupulous nephew, who has counted on his fortune, finds himself penniless. The nephew brings an accusation of poisoning against a doctor that Mr. Flexmore was known to trust and respect, but the accusation recoils on the nephew in the most unexpected manner. A charming young lady, who is first a nurse in Flexmore's house and then the guardian of his child, is the heroine. The story is exciting and full of surprises, and is told by a crusty old lawyer.

A novel of adventure written to amuse. The admirable Lady Biddy starts with her father in search of her lover and goes through many curious adventures with pirates; is taken in battle and kept in a captivity full of terrors. Written in the style of Captain Marryat and G. P. R. James. Supposed to take place about the beginning of the century. Benet Pengilly, who tells the story, is a cousin of Lady Biddy and her guardian angel in some of the greatest dangers. The author shows talent in imitating the style.

"While all dramas are best appreciated when presented upon their proper arena, the stage, there are many which give great pleasure to the reader in book-form. This story is so engrossing in its love interest, so fascinating in the group of characters illustrating that story in their lives, so replete with those passages of poetical beauty too often sacrificed to the exigencies of dramatic action, that it will be studied by all classes of readers with rising interest. Dealing with that region whence sprang so many of the great romances and dramas, the weird and mystical north, this drama depends for its attractiveness upon the same means as those which the greatest of all dramatists used in 'Hamlet' and 'Macbeth.'"—Preface.

The author believes the Dawes Bill brings such opportunity as never before existed for saving the Indian peoples and making self-sustaining, self-reliant, capable citizens of them. But he believes that the law will amount to nothing without the systematic, persistent and watchful coöperation of friendly Americans. With a view to bringing about that accord, he reviews the whole history of Indian management briefly and in a business-like manner, with continual citing of authorities.

The introduction is dated 1930. In the form of good-natured satire the author calls attention to the false economy of doing without American ships, and describes what may happen at any moment, an attack upon New York harbor, when even the huge passenger steamers would at their docks be turned into English men-of-war and do untold havoc in the shortest time. The battle of the Swash is an imaginary naval engagement off Sandy Hook, New Jersey.

Scene laid in London and Paris. The "strange conflict" is waged between the executor of a large estate who has used trust-funds to further the purposes of an anarchistic order of which he is leader, and one of the members of the testator's family, a being who has solved the problem of existing without food and drink, is impervious to wounds, and appears in dungeons, at feasts, etc., etc. A decidedly interesting tale on the Munchausen plan.

Bates, Arlo. The Philistines. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1889 [1888.] c. 3–442 p. D. cl., $1.50.

"The Pagans" [see P. W., Feb. 23, 1884, no. 630] introduced a society of artists in Boston calling themselves by that name. Its hero, Arthur Fenton, married into the ranks of the "Philistines," under which name German university students first designated commonplace, prosaic persons, full of wise saws. Pagan Arthur's position was that matrimony is a matter of temperament and convenience; whereas his Philistine wife held that the marriage ceremony imposes eternal obligations. Mr. Bates pictures the Boston of 1888, with its social occasions of ceremony, dinners and ladies' lunches, club life, studio experiences, social adventures, stock markets, Browning clubs, etc. Helen Greyson, who sacrifices self to principle in "The Pagans," again plays a prominent part. The plot involves a moral tragedy, handled with rare literary skill.

The mining camp of Colusa up among the crests of the Rockies is the background to a sad story which tells of a man's life sacrificed to the passion for gold, and a woman's heart broken through love for an unworthy object. Frontier life is well described, and much interest created for the different characters.

The author is a German poet who is now living in Leipsic, where he is a favorite in society. The present collection of short stories has been taken from two little volumes of fairy tales written in prose. They are full of originality and wit, and show a familiarity with every bird and flower and creature in forest, field, and mountain. Though written for young people, their graceful simplicity will appeal to older literary taste. "The Easter rabbit" and "The ass's spring" are full of the purest fun.

The review by Mr. Howard with which the volume opens gives an excellent idea of Beecher's career and character; it is enriched with many personal reminiscences and anecdotes and letters, which arise from Mr. Howard's forty years of intimate friendship and twenty of close association in literary and business matters with Mr. Beecher as his publisher. The book contains many different kinds of his eloquence. Sermons, such as those he preached in the early war-days; newspaper articles, such as the first of the addresses "Shall We Compromise" (1850); public speeches, like the masterpieces in England, the address at his home reception on returning from England, and others; letters, like those on the "Reconstruction of the Southern States;" formal orations, like the "Flag-raising at Sumter," the "Eulogies" on Lincoln and Grant, the address before the Society of the Army of the Potomac, etc.

Falling into a mesmeric sleep, the hero is supposed to have been unconscious for one hundred and thirteen years, when he is found by Dr. Leete, who in building himself a new house penetrates into an almost hermetically sealed chamber covered with ashes, showing the house which was once above it had been consumed by fire. The city of Boston is where this all takes place, the hero's long sleep bringing him into a new century and in contact with new people, who talk of the past, contrasting it with their present. In this way long dissertations are given on the labor question and other industrial troubles of the present. In 2000 it is shown that they have all vanished, and the methods of dispersing them are told at length. These talks take up the greater part of the book.

The combination of French colors on the cover indicates Béranger's nationality. He was b. 1780 and d. 1857, and commenced at an early age writing the songs for which he afterwards became famous. Whom he died he was recognized as one of France's greatest poets. His poems were written for the people, and are all inspired by some one of the exciting events of the times in which he lived. He was first the admirer, then the satirist of Napoleon, and a revolutionist all his life. His poems show this, and also tell something of his own life. The translations are gathered from many sources—from Thackeray's, Robert Brough's works and others. The book is a holiday volume, with a number of full-page steel-engravings.

With numerous portraits and illustrations from familiar sources, and a gossipy, clever text, Mr. Besant pictures the life, manners, and society of London as it was when Queen Victoria ascended the throne. The material, compiled from many sources, but put into a popular, attractive form, is grouped under the following headings: Great Britain, Ireland and the Colonies: The year 1837: London in 1837: In the street: With the people: With the middle class: In society: At the play and the show: In the house: At school and university: The tavern: In club- and card-land: With the wits: Journals and journalists: The sportsman: In factory and mine: With the men of science: Law and justice.

Obscurism, as the latest phase of spiritualism is named, receives a severe blow from Mr. Besant. His book is a novel with a young American as the hero, a [illegible] fellow of exceptional gifts and exceptional [illegible], whose career is traced for a while under the name of "Herr Paulus." He appears in London as a [illegible] of the new school of occult Madame Blavatsky in the reader and takes society by storm through the [illegible] and personal fascinations. The story is an exposé of the methods of these people and is very skilfully constructed.

Besant, Walter. The inner house. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 195 p. O. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 630.) pap., 30 c.

Begins with a lecture in which a learned professor claims to have discovered the secret of the vital principle and to have banished death. This secret is in a fluid which is finally manufactured in the "Inner House" under the direction of the Arch Physician and a Suffragan. Describes the state of the world after many years of the life created by this system. The author puts his well-known theories of human life and social conditions into new and witty shape. His conclusion is that the ultimate triumph of science is too great a degradation of humanity to be endured. Love has no place in science, and without love the world cannot be regenerated.

Besant, Walter, and Rice, Ja. This son of Vulcan. New lib. ed. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1888.] 3–464 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Jack Armstrong, the son of Vulcan, is born while nightwork is going on in some lead mills, his father having set fire to his house while drunk. He is adopted by a factory hand, who soon turns to peddling, theatricals, etc., and leads a roving life, carrying with him his own little daughter and Jack. Poor Myles also drinks, and a lady visitor among the poor takes the children from him while he is suffering from delirium tremens. She gets him to sign the pledge, which he keeps. The boy returns to him and is soon adopted by a clergyman and taught to be a mechanic. He drifts into the mills of his father's former partner, who has grown rich on money stolen originally from Jack's father. This introduces ideas of factories, machinery, socialism, rights of employer and employé, and gives the authors material for a strong story. Myles is one of their best characters.

Bigelow, J: France and the Confederate Navy, 1862–1868: an international episode. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 10+247 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The double part that Napoleon III. played during our late war towards the North, though often suspected, was never before sustained by proof. Mr. Bigelow tells the whole story of how the Confederate States made arrangements to have a navy built in France, the Imperial Government appearing to keep its promise of neutrality, by pretending to believe the ships were for trading between San Francisco, China, and Japan, being armed for defence against pirates in the Eastern seas, as the agent of the Confederacy stated. The correspondence now submitted between the Confederate Secretary of State, Benjamin, and Messrs. Mason and Slidell and their French agents, fully displays the duplicity of the French Emperor.

The authors do not present this as a "didactic" treatise on animal magnetism and hypnotism. They consider it still premature to write such a work. This work only aims at giving an account of special researches which, notwithstanding their number and variety, "will not," they believe, "justify general conclusions on the question." The researches were made in the French hospital of Salpêtrière, in accordance with the method inaugurated by M. Charcot, the chief of the school.

Bishop, G: R. Exact phonography: a system with connectible stroke vowel signs: a textbook for self and class instruction. N. Y., published by the author, G: R. Bishop (at the New York Stock Exchange), 1887. c. 16+244 p. D. flex., $3.

The chief weakness of all short-hand systems heretofore has been that as to vowel signs and representation, especially when such representation has been by "position," on which that representation has mainly depended —there has been no definiteness or certainty about it. The author's aim has been, and he has devoted a good deal of study to the solution of the problem, to secure the exactness that has been lacking (though much desired) without sacrifice of brevity. That he has accomplished this he believes from his experience in his own work and from the numerous endorsements he has received in letters from expert short-hand writers throughout the country.

Prepared and issued under the provisions of the John C. Green Income Fund, being the fifth work procured by this fund. The results of investigation of the last twenty years have been so immense, that a new work on Biblical antiquities was found absolutely necessary. The publishers have been fortunate in securing the services of Dr Bissell, of Hartford Seminary, an accomplished scholar and sound thinker. He has aimed to present the principal facts of biblical antiquities in the stricter sense, together with some of their moral and religious bearings, and to show their true place and significance in the plan and history of redemption. No attempt has been made to treat largely of the geography or topography, the political or natural history, of the lands of the Bible.

Presents the laws and usages of the Presbyterian church in such a condensed form that it may be a convenient book of reference. It includes all the subjects which relate to the government, the order, and the discipline of the Presbyterian Church, and to the rights and duties of its membership. These subjects are, for convenience, arranged in alphabetical order, with a copious analytical index.

Björnson, Björnstjerne. Sigurd Slembe: a dramatic trilogy; from the Norwegian by W: Morton Payne. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. tr. 8+323 p. D. cl., $1.50.

To the majority of English readers Björnson is known solely as the author of a series of charming stories of Norwegian peasant life. But to his countrymen his fame is far from being founded upon these stories alone. He is chiefly great not as a novelist, but as a lyric and dramatic poet. Of the long series of dramatic works in prose and verse which he has produced, the trilogy of "Sigurd Slembe" is said to be altogether the finest. "It is characterized," so says the translator, "by the greatest breadth of treatment, by the most masterly delineation of character, and by the highest poetic truth." It has a definite historical basis. During the first half of the twelfth century Norway was plunged into civil strife by the pretensions to the throne of one Sigurd surnamed "Slembe," an illegitimate son of the great King Magnus Barfod. The trilogy deals with the life of this pretender, and is a tragic tale of indomitable but ever-thwarted will. It has been performed in Norway, the performance requiring two evenings.

Black, Alex. The story of Ohio; il. by L. J. Bridgman. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 4–326 p. O. (The story of the states.) cl., $1.50.

Mr. Black's book sketches the early history of the Ohio Valley, touching briefly upon the romantic Indian struggles and traditions; describes succinctly the movements that planted civilization in the northwest, and brings the state history down to the present year, with its centennial observances, thus covering the full century of Ohio's life. The term "story" is an elastic, and perhaps not always an accurately descriptive one. In this instance the author has given it a simple and effective definition by making it stand for a direct, natural, and often dramatic account of Ohio's romantic origin and extraordinary development.

Mr. Black goes back in this novel to the scenes he described so often in his earlier works—the Highlands of Scotland. The heroine, Alison Blair, is a sweet, intelligent young girl, who has been raised in a small town in Lanarkshire, her father being a Free Church minister, with all the prejudices and narrowness that that often means. Alison goes to "far Lochaber" to visit an aunt and meets Captain McDonnell, and between the two a deep love springs up. McDonnell is a Catholic, and Alison, though free from a good deal of her father's bigotry, is influenced in a measure by it. Before McDonnell wins her for his bride there are many exciting scenes and much real unhappiness.

The "house-boat," fantastically entitled the "Nameless barge," was propelled like an ordinary canal-boat, with the aid of a horse and strong line. It was most charmingly and comfortably fitted up and started up the Thames with a quartette of friends for a summer trip through some of the picturesque rivers of England. The party comprised at first the author, his wife (our old friend "Queen Titania"), Jack Duncombe, a budding dramatist, and Peggy Rosslyn, a lovely young American girl—who is not a caricature—and who owned a banjo and had an intense fondness for English history. After a short time Murdoch Maclean, also an old acquaintance, is added to the boat's crew, and Sir Ewen Cameron to the guests. Descriptions of scenery, historical and literary reminiscences, gay badinage, love-making and match making fill up the delightful hours of this unique cruise.

Prof. Blackie claims little more for this biography than "a judicious selection from existing materials." From the material provided he has endeavored "to pronounce an equitable judgment on a remarkable man, the complex character of whose genius and life demands a calm consideration, equally remote from patriotic idolatry on the one hand, and Pharisaic severity on the other." A valuable bibliography is appended to the book, by J: P. Anderson, of the British Museum. It covers 41 pages and gives separate lists of editions of complete works, poetical works, prose works, selections, biography, criticisms, songs set to music, and magazine articles, and finally a chronological list of works.

Blackwell, J. S. A manual of German prefixes and suffixes. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., [1888.] 4+137 p. S. cl., net, 60 c.

The plan of this manual does not include the etymology of the prefixes and surfixes. The book is designed simply as a practical aid to students who may wish to gain a nearer sense than even the best dictionaries give of the meaning of German words.

Blades, W: The enemies of books. Rev. and enl. by the author. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1888. 10+165 p. il. S. (The book-lover's lib.) cl., $1.25.

Among the chief enemies of books the author classes fire, water, gas and heat, dust and neglect, ignorance and bigotry, the bookworm and other vermin, bookbinders and collectors, and servants and children. Chapters are devoted to each of these subjects—the subject being aptly illustrated with numerous anecdotes.

Blaikie, W. G., D.D. The first book of Samuel. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1888. 5+440 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Thirty-six chapters devoted to a realistic study of the book of the first great King-maker, and in a sense the first acknowledged prophet. The work brings history to the death of Saul and covers the life of David until he is made King of Israel. The differences of the orthodox and revised versions are deemed of great importance by the author.

Blaikie, W. G., D.D. The second book of Samuel. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1888. 5+400 p. O. (The expositor's Bible.) cl., $1.50.

The author's volume devoted to the First book of Samuel was noticed in P. W. May 19, 1888, No. 851. On the same lines the present volume is written. It begins with David's lament for Saul and Jonathan, and gives realistic pictures of the last years of Israel's greatest king. The last chapter is devoted to a summing up of the events of both books of Samuel and a critical estimate of their moral and ethical purpose.

Blair, Andrew Alex. The chemical analysis of iron : a complete account of all the best-known methods for the analysis of iron, steel, pig-iron, iron ore, limestone, slag, clay, sand, coal, coke, and furnace and producer gases. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. c. 3–282 p. O. cl., $4.

"The various methods for the analysis of iron and steel, as well as the descriptions of special apparatus to facilitate the performance of the analytical work, are so widely distributed through transactions of societies, journals, reviews, periodicals, and works on general analytical chemistry, that only the possessor of a chemical library can command the literature of the subject. It is my object in the following pages to bring within the compass of a single volume, as nearly as possible, all the methods of real value to the iron analyst, and in doing this to give the credit of originality for the different methods and improvements to the proper persons."—Author's Preface.

Blair, H: W: The temperance movement ; or, the conflict between man and alcohol. Bost., The W: E. Smythe Co., 1888. 583 p. O. cl., subs., $2.75 ; shp., $3.75 ; hf. seal, $4.75.

Blaisdell, Albert F. First steps with American and British authors : English literature for young people. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1888. c. 4+345 p. il. S. cl., net, 75 c.

Intended to serve as the basis of a regular course of study in English literature. Enough material supplemented by a goodly amount of illustrative matter, is furnished for a methodical introduction to our best authors. The aim has been in the selection of pieces to take those most interesting and suitable for class-room purposes.

Blake, Mary Eliz., and Sullivan, Marg. F. Mexico, picturesque, political, progressive. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1888. c. 228 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Mrs. Sullivan is an editorial writer and art critic on the Chicago Tribune, and Mrs. Blake is a staff correspondent of the Boston Journal and a popular contributor to Wide Awake, the New York Independent, etc. Mrs. Sullivan writes of the religious, political, and educational interests of Mexico, and of its material resources; Mrs. Blake considers picturesque Mexico, its social and domestic life and its literature. Her descriptions of California given in "On the wing" proved her special fitness for observation on these lines. The citizens of the United States have not yet realized what inducements the richness of Mexico offers to enterprise and capital.

Blake, W. W. The cross: ancient and modern. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] c. il. O. cl., $2.

The author's design is to show, in connection with 100 illustrations, that while the cross has for nineteen centuries been the sacred symbol of the Christian church, it had been previously known to all people, in all lands. In the illustrations he not only shows the various forms of the Christian era, but also those found among the nations of the east and the early peoples of the western continent.

Blake, W: P., ed. History of the town of Hamden, Ct. ; with an account of the centennial celebration June 15, '86. Prepared and published by the authority of the town. New Haven, Price, Lee & Co., 1888. c. 8+350 p. por. O. cl., $3.

Divided into two parts; the first gives an account of the celebration of the centenary; the second is "Historical and descriptive." It comprises chapters on title, boundaries, and topography; Sketch of the geology; History of mining in Hamden ; Forest trees ; Agriculture; Public works; Manufacturing industry; School and education; Ecclesiastical history; Military history; Population ; Family history, notices, etc.

Blakely, W: Addison. Blakely's parliamentary rules. Oakland, Cal., Pacific Press Pub. Co., [1888.] c. 4 p. O. cl., 50 c.; parchment, 20 c.

Contains a chart showing the relation of any motion to every other motion, and answering at a glance over 2000 questions in parliamentary practice ; together with comments on the different motions, giving additional notes and explanations, the manner of stating certain questions, and one or more forms for making the various motions used in deliberative bodies.

Blaney, H. R. Salem sketches : a series of etched views in Salem. Bost., S. E. Cassino, 1888. D. pap., $1.

Blatherwick, C: Uncle Pierce : a novel. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1888. 279 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Blauden, C: G. Tancred's daughter, and other poems. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1889 [1888.] c. 4+60 p. S. cl., 75 c.

The story of Costanza, the daughter of Salerno's peevish, jealous, cruel king, occupies twenty-eight pages. The remainder is devoted to short poems on many subjects that appeal to lyric poets.

Blavatsky, H. P. The secret doctrine ; the synthesis of science, religion, and philosophy. N. Y., C. T. Dillingham, 1888. 2 v., O. cl., $10.

Blessed (The) ones of 1888 ; tr. from the German by Eliza A. Donnelly. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1888. il. S. cl., 50 c.

Bliss, S. Analysis of sacred chronology, with the elements of chronology; and the numbers of the Hebrew text vindicated; rev., with notes; [also] The peopling of the earth; or, historical notes on the 10th chapter of Genesis, by Alonzo T. Jones. Oakland, Cal., Pacific Press Pub. House, 1887. 4–298 p. D. cl., $1; lib. style, $1.50; mor., $1.75.

"Sacred chronology" is a new and revised edition of a little work published about forty years ago, giving the chronology from creation till the death of the Apostle John. It has always been found very useful in Sunday-schools. "The peopling of the earth," now added to it, is quite new. It gives an outline of the origin and descent of all the principal nations of the earth. As now offered the work will be found an excellent one for reference for Bible students.

Bliss, W: Root. Colonial times on Buzzard's Bay. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. il. O. cl., $2.

Blouet, Paul, ["Max O'Rell," pseud.] John Bull, Junior; or, French as she is traduced; with a preface by G: C. Eggleston. N. Y., Cassell & Co., 1888. c. 10+172 p. S. cl., $1.

This is a companion picture to "English as she is taught;" it antedates that little brochure, however, being one of Max O'Rell's earlier works. It was written in English, and has been in a measure rewritten for the present edition. On a little thread of a story, a young Frenchman is brought to London, and placed as teacher in a boys' school. The stupidity of John Bull, jr., is his theme illustrated through a number of ridiculous mistakes made by the boys in their efforts to conquer French.

Bloxam, C. L. Chemistry: inorganic and organic; with experiments. 6th ed., enl. and rev. Phil., P. Blakiston, Son & Co., 1888. 788 p. il. O. cl., $4.50; leath., $5.50.

Boese, Clifford. A handbook on naturalization; being a comp. of the naturalization laws of U. S., with forms. Also, the qualifications for voting in each state. N. Y. and Alb., Banks & Bros., 1888. c. 4+43 p. D. pap., 75 c.

Boissier, Gaston. Madame de Sévigné; tr. by Melville B. Anderson. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1888. c. tr. 4–205 p. D. (The great French writers ser.) cl., $1.

The publishers have been obliged to defer the publication of any volumes in this series until now, in order to secure thoroughly good translations, as they were not satisfied with the translations published in England, and have had the work done in America. J. J. Jusserand, the editor of the series, explains that "the volumes in course of publication will contain precise information touching the life, the work, and the influence of each of the writers who have conquered a place in universal literature." The books will be small, the facts given in compact form. There will be no notes, the names of individual authors being a guaranty of good work. Mme. de Sévigné was born in 1626, in the middle of the reign of Louis XIII., and died in 1696 under Louis XIV. She was in favor at court, and her letters written to her daughter have become valuable historical documents.

Bolles, Albert S. Financial history of the United States. In 3 v. V. 3. N. Y., Homans Pub. Co., 1888. 585 p. O. cl., $3.50.

Bolles, Albert S. The national bank act, and its judicial meaning; with an appendix. N. Y., Homans Pub. Co., 1888. c. 17+375 p. O. cl., $3; shp., $3.75.

Contains nineteen chapters, which treat of the powers of the Comptroller, organization, conversion, and beginning of National Banking Associations, their extension, powers, directors, shareholders, increase and reduction of capital, duties of banks as public depositories, regulation concerning their circulations, interest, criminal offences, preferences, dissolution and receivership, examination and reports, taxation and other matters. All the cases which show the meaning of the National Bank Act are noticed. With an appendix containing official instructions and rules relating to the formation and management of National Banks, United States bonds, and the issue and redemption of coins and currency.

Bolton, C: K. Bolton genealogy. Descendants of William Bolton, of Reading, Mass., 1720. Albany, N. Y., Joel Munsell's Sons, 1888. 8 p. O. pap., 50c.

Bolton, Sarah K. Famous American statesmen. N. Y., T. Y. Crowell & Co., [1888.] c. 5+399 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

The famous Americans that have been selected for eulogy in this volume are George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, Andrew Jackson, Daniel Webster, Henry Clay, Charles Sumner, U. S. Grant, and James A. Garfield. A brief outline of each life is given and a summary of each one's services to his country. Many pleasant anecdotes enliven the narrative.

Bolton, Sarah K. Successful women. Bost., The D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 3–233 p. por. D. cl., $1.

Consists of twelve brief biographies of American women who have in various walks and professions earned success. Among them are Marion Harland (Mrs. Terhune); Mrs. G. R. Alden (Pansy); Clara Barton, the philanthropist; Alice Freeman, the former president of Wellesley College; Rachel Bodley, dean of the Woman's Medical College, Philadelphia; Mrs. Candace Wheeler and her daughter Dora, who have done so much to develop the love for decorative art in this country; with others who have gained equally distinguished places in other departments of art, literature, and industry.

Bonar, Rev. A. A. Memoir and remains of the Rev. Robert Murray McCheyne. New cheaper ed. N. Y., Fleming H. Revell, 1888. D. cl., $1.50.

Bond, A. Curtis. Mrs. Sparks of Parsi: a novel. N. Y., Pollard & Moss, 1888. D. pap., 30 c.

Bonham, J: M. Industrial liberty. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's sons, 1888. c. 9+414 p. D. cl., $1.75.

The author has kept in view the principles rather than the statistics, and has made an analysis of the salient political and industrial evils of the day, suggesting many practical remedies. Herbert Spencer is freely quoted. The effects of protection, "trusts," railway legislation, paternal government, etc., upon the industrial questions of the day are made clear, and the author aims to have his statements thoroughly discussed and hopes he may have helped to explain some principles upon which modern industry, in order to be wholesome, must rest.

Bonnet, Jules. Olympia Morata; from the French by Grace Patterson. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] c. '87. 284 p. S. cl., 85 c.

Olympia Morata lived in the sixteenth century and her story takes us back to the time of the great movements, the Renaissance and the Reformation, with both of which the life of this young woman was closely connected. Not only are the facts of the biography of an illustrious woman given, but we are also introduced to a history of intense interest, chiefly the story of the Reformation in Italy and the sufferings it brought to those who espoused its principles.

Books that have helped me. Reprinted from the Forum. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 2–107 p. O. pap., 30 c.

Twelve papers by E: E. Hale, Prof. W: T. Harris, Pres. J: Bascom, Andrew Lang, Prof. A. P. Peabody, E: Eggleston, Rev. Dr. A. Jessopp, Jeannette L. Gilder, Brander Matthews, Rev. Dr. T: Hill, Moncure D. Conway, and Judge Rob. C. Pitman. They are in a measure biographical, as they tell of the writers' impressions and recollections of the books which have been of most value to them, for the formation of character and the direction of life.

Bookworm: an illustrated treasury of old-time literature. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1888. 2+420 p. il. O. hf. leath., $3.

Bourinot, J: G: A manual of the constitutional history of Canada, from the earliest period to the year 1888; including the British North America Act, 1867, and a digest of judicial decisions on questions of legislative jurisdiction. Montreal, Dawson Bros., 1888. 10+238 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Contains in handy form a logically arranged and clearly stated exposition of the present constitution of Canada, introduced by chapters on all the previous constitutions in historical order. The work is based on a portion of the author's large treatise on "Parliamentary practice and procedure." This has been revised and brought down to date, and all the recent great appeal cases which bear upon the interpretation of the constitution are fully discussed.

Bower, F. O. A course of practical instruction in botany. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1888. S. cl., $2.60.

Bowser, E: A. Academic algebra for the use of common and high schools and academies, with numerous examples. N. Y., D. Van Nostrand, 1888. c. 14+352 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The "Academic algebra" is designed as a text-book for common and high schools and academies, and to prepare students for entering colleges and scientific schools. The book is a complete treatise on algebra up to and through the Progressions, containing thus far precisely the same subjects and the same treatment of them that are found in the College algebra. For students who have not sufficient time to take the College algebra, this perhaps is the better book; but those who contemplate entering college, or who wish to take a complete course in algebra, may as well begin at once with the larger book.

Bowser, E: A. College algebra, for the use of academies, colleges, and scientific schools, with numerous examples. N. Y., D. Van Nostrand, 1888. c. 18+540 p. D. cl., $2.

The "College algebra," designed as a text-book for academies, colleges, and scientific schools, begins at the beginning of the subject, and the full treatment of the earlier parts renders it unnecessary that students who use it shall have previously studied a more elementary algebra. In order to lead the student to see and feel that he can use his knowledge to some practical end, the author has introduced a chapter on easy equations and problems before the chapters on factoring and fractions, which enables the student early to become acquainted with some of the most interesting practical applications of the subject. A good deal of stress is laid on solving quadratic and other equations by means of factors which are often obvious on inspection. The examples are very numerous. Each set is carefully graded, beginning with those which are very easy, and proceeding to others which are more difficult. The large number of examples is given for the convenience of the instructor, that he may have, year by year, a sufficient variety from which to select, to prevent mere rote-work on the part of his pupils.

Boyd, E. W., comp. English cathedrals; their architecture, symbolism, and history. 3d ed. rev. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. c. '83. 68 p. il. S. cl., 60 c.

Braddon, Miss M. E., [now Mrs. J: Maxwell.] The fatal three. N. Y., Harper & Bros., 1888. 4+197 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., no. 624.) pap., 30 c.
Although the characters in this novel are numerous the interest centres in a trio, who seem to have been created into the world of fiction for the purpose of verifying the doctrine of predestination. They pass through scenes varied and shifting, are surrounded by exciting incidents, and become the chief figures in a plot that embraces several weddings, a death under suspicious circumstances, and a mystery that envelopes their lives, and demonstrates the idea that, strive as they may, there are people born who cannot avert their fates.

Braddon, Miss M. E., [now Mrs. J: Maxwell.] The fatal three. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 379 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1184.) pap., 20 c.

Bradford, Amory H., D.D. Spirit and life thoughts for to-day. N. Y., Fords, Howard & Hulbert, 1888. c. 265 p. D. cl., $1.
A volume of sermons, preached by Dr. Bradford in the regular line of his pulpit work in the First Congregational Church, Montclair, N. J. Some of them were printed in the Christian Union and other religious papers, and found such wide acceptance that they have been brought together with others for issue in permanent form. The Christian Union says of them that they "present in a clear and comprehensive fashion some of the fundamental doctrines of Christianity read in the light of the most spiritual thinking of to-day. They illustrate at once the deeper spirituality and the more distinctly practical tendency of the best modern thought."

Bradley, H: The story of the Goths, from the earliest times to the end of the Gothic dominion in Spain. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. 16+376 p. il. and map, D. (Story of the nations ser.) cl., $1.50.
From the author's preface we learn that this volume is, as far as he has been able to discover, the first English book expressly treating of the history of the Goths. Further he says: "My aim has been to relate the facts of the history as correctly as I could, and with the simplicity of language required by the plan of the series in which the work appears, a series intended not for scholars, but for readers in whom little knowledge of general history is to be presupposed."

Brisbin, Ja. S. Trees and tree-planting. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 29+258 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

From earliest youth the author, who is a general in the United States army, has appealed to the wisdom and prudence of the American people to reflect upon the serious consequences of the wasteful havoc of forest lands. He describes the forest management of France and Germany, which is under government supervision, and contrasts it tellingly with the unprotected state of American forests, in which greed of gold has blinded the people to the natural laws which make forests, properly cared for, a necessary condition of civilization and the health of the people. The State of Nebraska is now leading the way in forest culture, and the author makes clear that other states must follow its good example.

Brooks, Elbridge S. The story of the American sailor in active service on merchant vessel and man-of-war. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 336 p. il. O. cl., $2.50.

"Mr. Elbridge S. Brooks, whose success in preparing excellent books for boys' reading has already been amply proven, this year tells in a most interesting manner 'The story of the American sailor.' The peaceful achievements of the merchant vessel as well as heroic deeds of the 'blue jacket' are included in the tale. The exploits of early navigators, the sea struggles of colonial times, the naval battles of the Revolution and of our succeeding wars, the fights with Algerian pirates, the stories of smugglers and buccaneers, whaling adventures, and much other sea flotsam and jetsam —all these matters are combined into a picturesque and graphic narrative, capitally told and profusely illustrated."—Christian Union.

Brooks, Elbridge S. The story of New York. Bost.. D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 3–311 p. il. O. (The story of the states, ed. by E. S. Brooks, no. 1.) cl., $1.50.

The initial volume of the series, written by the editor, indicates in outline rather than in detail the stages of growth through which the Commonwealth of New York advanced from a purely mercantile venture to its present position among the States. Against a background of historic facts is thrown the record of an imaginary Knickerbocker family whose members never attained power, wealth, or official station, but remained in their humble sphere active factors in the advancing career of a mighty State. The descendants of Teunis Jansen stand as types of the people whose daily duties, activities, cares, and needs are a part of the story and the success of the Empire State. Contains a chronological epitome of the history of New York, the Constitution of the State, a selection of books to be read on New York history, and a good index.

Brooks, Noah. Abraham Lincoln : a biography for young people. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 12+476 p. il. D. cl., $1.75.

The author's acquaintance with Lincoln began with the Frèmont campaign of 1856, and continued through the canvass for the presidency, when Lincoln was the candidate. In 1862 Mr. Brooks went to Washington and saw the President almost daily until his death. The facts in Lincoln's early life which he has strongly brought out for the young men of this generation were derived from his own lips during many hours of intimate companionship. Mr. Brooks gives special attention to the personality of Lincoln, using the historical events as a background and not overweighting his narrative with the details of politics.

Charles Brockden Brown, b. in Phila., Jan. 17, 1771, was one of the first American novelists, his "Wieland," published in 1798, introducing fiction into American literature. His works were reprinted in London in 1803, thus giving him an international reputation. Even at this late day critics acknowledge his genius and his important place in our country's literature. This new and handsome edition of his works embraces, v. 1, Memoir and Wieland, or, the transformation. 2 and 3, Arthur Mervyn, or, memoirs of the year 1793. 4, Edgar Huntly, or, memoirs of a sleep-walker. 5, Jane Talbot. 6, Ormond, or, the secret witness, and Clara Howard, or, the enthusiasm of love. The books are finely printed on an all-linen paper made especially for this work and watermarked with the author's initials; uncut edges, top gilt.

Brown, E. E. Life of James Russell Lowell. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 4–321 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

After an account of Mr. Lowell's ancestry, the author goes on to his boyhood and student life, touches lightly the short if unproductive period when he was finding his vocation, and skims along his earlier work till the hero appears with the "Biglow papers." From this time on the story is told chiefly by Lowell and his friends. By the first through his letters and books, by the latter through many interesting interviews. Rich in anecdotes and new details of Lowell's public and private life.

Brown, L. Q. C. Kenneth Cameron. Phil., T. B. Peterson & Bros., [1888.] c. 18–349 p. sq. S. cl., $1.25; pap., 75 c.

Opens in the "fifties," before the war had abolished slavery, the scene being laid on the two great Louisiana plantations of Lagrange and Emerald, and in New Orleans. The plot is not at all complex, dealing entirely with Kenneth Cameron's manly struggle to pay off his dead father's debts, and his troubled courtship of the beautiful Hortense Gaston, the belle of New Orleans. Many typical southern people are introduced and the negroes photographed to the life. There is a capital description of the Mardi-Gras festivities, and of the great race between the rival horses Lexington and Lecomte.

Browning, Rob. The pied piper of Hamelin; with 35 il. by Kate Greenaway. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1888.] 64 p. sq. O. bds., $2.

Kate Greenaway's graphic designs are beautifully engraved and printed in colors by Edmund Evans. They tell the tale most charmingly of the rat-infested town of Hamelin, and how the Piper with his music charmed them all away, and how, upon the corporation refusing him their promised reward, he tried the magic of his music upon the children of Hamelin. This opportunity for depicting children Kate Greenaway has taken full advantage of, and we get some of her finest studies of little ones in all attitudes and swayed by a multiplicity of emotions.

Bullard, Asa. Incidents in a busy life: an autobiography. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1888.] c. 4-235 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

Rev. Asa Bullard, long known as "Father Bullard," has been prominently before Sunday-school people for over half century. His name is associated with that period of the Sunday-school cause when it began to take strong hold. He had much to do with pushing it forward and giving it the place it now occupies. His autobiography is an autobiography—not an attempt to crown himself with honors by a consideration of the Sunday-school movement and his own part in it. He tells the story of his life with charming simplicity, just as though he were relating it to a select circle of friends. Contains an introduction by Rev. Alexander McKenzie, D.D., and an in memoriam chapter by M. C. Hazard.

Burnett, Mrs. Frances Hodgson. Sara Crewe ; or, what happened at Miss Minchin's. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 3–83 p. il. sq. O. cl., $1.

A charming companion picture to "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The little girl heroine is motherless. Her father, an English officer in the Indian Service, sends her to London to Miss Minchin's "Select Seminary." In a few years Captain Crewe dies, leaving Sarah friendless and penniless. From being the favorite pupil she changes into the household drudge, whose only refuge is the attic. Sara is an odd, clever little girl whose self-reliance is quite marvellous. Her character is delightfully drawn, as are also the subsequent events of her little life. A good fairy comes to her rescue and wealth and friends again return to her. The il. are by R. B. Birch.

A pretty suburban village of Boston is the scene of this little history of old and young hearts. The young heroines are invited by the older heroines to spend the summer in a rich and a plain home. These older heroines make idols of a brother and a nephew, who both play their parts in developing, moulding, and softening the characters of the younger ones. The author of "Next door" and "No gentleman" always renders palatable the pure, earnest counsels she offers to young womanhood.

Burr, E. F., D.D. Long ago ; as interpreted by the nineteenth century. N. Y., American Tract Soc., [1888.] c. 388 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Long ago is the period treated of in the Old Testament scriptures. The author takes the few bare facts stated in the Bible and elaborates them into little biographies of Adam, Noah, Abraham, Joseph, Moses, Balaam, Joshua, Samuel, David, Solomon, Josiah, Elijah, Elisha, and Daniel. He sticks to the letter of the law in his interpretations.

Burr, Frank A., and Hinton, R: J. The life of Gen. Philip H. Sheridan; its romance and reality; how an humble lad reached the head of an army. Providence, R. I., J. A. & R. A. Reid, 1888. c. 445 p. por. and il. O. cl., subs., $2.50; $2; shp., $4; hf. mor., $4.50; tky. mor., $6.50.

"'The Life of Gen. Philip H. Sheridan,' by Frank A. Burr, assisted by Richard J. Hinton, considered as a record of his public services, is a striking and picturesque narrative, in which, while Sheridan is always the prominent figure, the history of the events in which he participated is faithfully related. Pains have been taken to emphasize his preëminent qualities as a soldier, and the frequency with which contemporary criticisms and anecdotes of various kinds have been made to subserve this end bears testimony to the literary skill and industry of the authors. Three-fourths of the volume are devoted to Sheridan's career in the war of the rebellion, while the details of his sickness, death, and burial fill upward of sixty pages. Of his early life and his correspondence very little is recorded."—New York Sun.

Gives a concise but comprehensive account of Greek philosophy on its native soil and in Rome. The work is critical and interpretative, as well as purely historical, its paragraphs of criticism and interpretation, however, being, as a rule, distinct from those devoted to biography and exposition. The subject-matter is distinctly outlined throughout the volume by paragraph headings. The volume contains a full topical table of contents, a brief bibliography of the subject it treats, and numerous foot-notes.

Three stories, "Carancro," "Grande Pointe," and "Au Large," which have appeared recently in the Century are included under this title. "Bonaventure Deschamps" is the leading influence in each story, and each depicts a different scene in his life; each story at the same time is complete in itself, being a secondary narrative to Bonaventure's history. They all form a very charming collection of scenes and characters from the life of the Acadians of Louisiana. Bonaventure is a Creole, who speaks the peculiar patois with which Mr. Cable has made us acquainted. His naïve innocence and childlike goodness are delightfully depicted. His efforts towards the education of the Acadians are very touching.

Caine, Hall. The deemster: a romance. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 5+310 p. S. pap., 50 c.

A "deemster" is a Manx judge who dispenses justice chiefly by the "Breast laws," the unwritten code locked in his own breast and supposed to be handed down from deemster to deemster. The scene of the present story is the Isle of Man. The special deemster to whom it relates is unscrupulous and ignorant even of the traditional law, but clever enough to play upon the people through their superstitions. One of his victims in the early part of the story calls down upon him the vengeance of Heaven. This curse appalls him and he in vain endeavors to evade it. Violent or sudden deaths and disgrace follow all belonging to him. The story is a sombre one throughout. The local color is very strong, descriptions of the Manx customs, superstitions, dress, manners, etc., having been apparently studied from life.

The material which the author had prepared for this book was found greatly to exceed the limit assigned to it. He was obliged, therefore, to change his plans and leave out the account of Spinoza's life and letters, confining himself to an examination of his philosophical system. This, he thinks, is the less to be regretted, as Spinoza's life has been fully narrated in the recent works of Pollock and Martineau. These works contain, also, very able and elaborate expositions of the Spinozistic philosophy, but Prof. Caird claims in this book to deal with that philosophy from a point of view different from that of either of these writers.

The heroine and the mystery are introduced in the first chapters. Madame de Bréfour, an Englishwoman and a Catholic, lives in an out-of-the-way house near the village of Coddesham, England. She is supposed to be married to a Frenchman, but no one can penetrate the mystery of her life, and she refuses all society. Geoffrey Dane, the son of the vicar, falls in love with Madame, and succeeds by stratagem in making her acquaintance. This love affair is the chief theme of the book. Geoffrey's life in London, as a clerk in a large commercial house, with scenes from village life, form the background.

What seemed "a life's mistake" to Margaret Orchester turned out to be her greatest happiness. She and her brother Fred were the only children of Mr. Orchester, of Follerton, a once handsome country-seat, but when the story opens in a sad state of decay and neglect. Follerton is mortgaged up to its full value, and the interest has not been paid for several years. The owner of the mortgage, Stephen Hardcastle, comes to Follerton to look after his interests and falls in love with Margaret. Margaret is secretly engaged to a young fellow she has grown up with, but who is away with his ship. Through mistakes and misrepresentations concerning her betrothed, and the pleadings of her father, she is induced to marry Stephen Hardcastle. This is her "mistake"—the history of it and its result are well told.

Cameron, Mrs. H. Lovett. This wicked world: a novel. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1889 [1888.] 4+304 p. S. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 92.) pap., 25 c.

The heroine first appears in her pretty home, wearied to death of the care of a frivolous, selfish mother, who imagines herself an invalid. This mother married her vulgar physician, and her daughter, disappointed in her love for a talented member of Parliament, marries an old lover of her mother's. She begins a salon in London, and her friends, enemies, pursuits, and social successes furnish the incidents. The plot involves three romances. The object of the story is to show how men and women spoil each other's lives and unconsciously lower each other's natures.

Summoned suddenly from a foreign land, where he is studying art, Roger Berkeley arrives to see his mother die. Three days later his weak, exacting father confesses he has risked all the family income in unfortunate speculation. Roger abandons his hope of becoming an artist and accepts the probation of working in the village mills. His fine character and his cousin Connie's helpful affection and splendid common-sense in time shape events to give his best talents play. Mrs. Campbell has an earnest faith in human nature, and she writes a cheering, encouraging story.

Carey, Rosa Nouchette. Aunt Diana. Phil., The J: B. Lippincott Co., 1889 [1888.] 3–208 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

A novel void of plot. The interest depends entirely upon character delineation and incident. The personages are too numerous to mention, but each one fills his nook in the book satisfactorily. The events are Allison's sacrifice, Mabel's exploit, a railroad disaster, and a pretty romance. "Aunt Diana" is the presiding genius, and her name graces the title-page of a healthy story for young girls.

Carey, Rosa N. Only the governess. Phil., The J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. 400 p. S. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 83.) pap., 25 c.

A pleasant, readable novel of English country life. The central character, who is "only the governess," has quite a history, which she successfully conceals for a long time. The characters first introduced, little "Dossie" and her unsuccessful artist father, are full of interest. "Dossie" goes through many changing scenes of joy and sorrow before her life fate is settled.

Caro, E. George Sand ; tr. by Melville B. Anderson. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1888. c. tr. 235 p. D. (The great French writers ser.) cl., $1.

The author gives a fair, unbiassed account of the peculiar details in the domestic life of Mme. Dudevant, who, through her literary partnership with Jules Sandeau, became known to the world as George Sand. He criticises all her writings chronologically and gives a clear picture of her personality—her methods, her strength, and her weakness. George Sand was born in 1804 and died in 1872. During the troubled years of 1847–1848 she was at the zenith of her power and her books had great influence among the greatest thinkers of Europe. The author has made a fine psychological study of a most complex character.

Carr, Lucien. Missouri : a bone of contention. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 8+377 p. map, S. (American commonwealths ser.) cl., $1.25.

"It is one of the most absorbing of the histories of the states that has appeared, and it is a fair and impartial study of the subject, without political bias or prejudice of any kind. The author, Lucien Carr, has worked diligently at his task, and the result of his labors is a volume which shows unwearied research and a patient sifting of material in order to arrive at a reliable conclusion. The exploration of the Mississippi by the French and the French domination of the Mississippi Valley form exceedingly interesting chapters; and when we come to later times, the Missouri Compromise, the annexation of Texas, the conquest of New Mexico, the Kansas troubles, and the civil war furnish matter that is full of historical value to both the student and general reader. There is not a page in this book that should be skipped, and for a calm, judicial survey of questions that excited the country from one end to the other it, would be difficult to find its superior."—Boston Gazette.

Carrington, H: B. Patriotic reader; or, human liberty developed in verse and prose, from various ages, lands, and races, with historical notes. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., [1888.] c. 16+595 p. O. cl., $1.20.

The author is the writer of "Battles of the American revolution." His object in this text-book is to familiarize the youth of America with utterances that inspire good citizenship. He divides his selections into sixteen parts, showing the patriotism of all nations: Hebrew and related nations; Grecian and Roman patriotic expression; patriotism of our founders; American independence developed; memorials of Washington; monumental memorials honored; demands of the present age; special obligations of Americans; patriotic tribute to exemplar lives; patriotic sympathy with struggling peoples; patriotic appeals in emergencies; national hymns, songs and odes; America survives the ordeal of conflicting systems; national centennial observances; patriotism to be fostered in the schools; and the future of America foreshadowed. Biographical index.

Carroll, J: Leōla : a novel. Phil., J: B. Lippincott Co., 1888. c. 3–194 p. S. cl., $1.25.

The scene is laid in Greyleigh Hall. The characters resemble those found in the average novel; in this case there is the beautiful, titled, and wealthy heiress coupled with her affectionate young friend, a chivalric elderly man, a French count, a very designing woman, a much-injured young lord, a commonplace Englishman, and a wronged young woman; the personal experiences of these unite to make a not very intricate plot in a romantic novel.

Catherwood, Mary Hartwell. The secrets at Roseladies; il. by W. A. Rogers. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1888. 5–187 p. il. D. cl., $1.

This charming story of life on the Wabash, which originally appeared as a serial in Wide Awake, will be read by boys and girls with equal pleasure, for the action of the story is pretty well divided between the two. The boys will be immensely entertained with the adventures of the four young treasure-seekers. The girls' secret, which is of a very different character, is just as amusing in its way. The character of old Mr. Roseladies is capitally drawn, and the account of his journey to the depot after Aunt Jane's trunk is really mirth-provoking.

This book was written and published some thirty years ago. It has long been out of print, but the demand for it has been so constant that a new edition is now issued. It is a graphic picture of the people and country with which it deals.

Carrothers, Mrs. J. D. Kesa and Saijiro; or, lights and shades of life in Japan. N. Y., American Tract. Soc., [1888.] c. 442 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Kesa was the fifth little daughter born to her Japanese father in a land where girls counted for nothing. Saijiro is she schoolmaster's son, who, on the day of Kesa's birth, loses his mother. The children go to a Christian school and are taught Christian doctrines. Kesa's father and mother remain idolaters, but appreciate the good done in Japan by Christian missionaries. An excellent idea is given young readers of life in Japan just after this progressive land was thrown open to strangers. The love story is touchingly natural.

Though first published so far back as 1864 by Crosby & Nichols, this charming record of a fishing voyage along the coast of Maine is still sought for—hence a new edition was considered timely. Aside from its interesting descriptions of scenery, it has a permanent value on account of its accurate sketches of the fishes of our northern seas, of their habits and resorts, and of the methods of taking them. Mr. Rossiter Johnson contributes a sympathetic introduction to this edition, testifying to Mr. Carter's versatile talents and to his high place as a journalist.

Case (The) of Mohammed Benani: a story of to-day. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 7+324 p. D. hf. cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

Twenty-four important characters, a scene which shifts from Africa to Russia, minute details of political intrigue, mesmerism and second-sight in theory and practice, a duel, a boar-hunt, a race, a mysterious disappearance are but a part of the material for a plot of which the intricacies cannot be made clear briefly. Mohammed Benani is a sultan's envoy to a North African court, who is plotted against, imprisoned, and ill-treated. Jewish and Moorish oppression and the neglected duties of European consulates compose the author's theme. He shows close study of the work of Balzac, Tolstoi, Howells, and James, and makes frequent references to them. The romance is of subordinate interest.

Chamberlain, Montague. A catalogue of Canadian birds, with notes on the distribution of the species. St. John, N. B., J. & A. McMillan, 1887. 9+143 p. O. cl., $2.

The author states in his preface that "the object of this catalogue is to bring together the names of all the birds that have been discovered in Canada, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and north to the Arctic; to present these in the system of nomenclature, and in the sequence now generally adopted by American ornithologists, with the geographical distribution of each species." Besides the distribution the notes give the relative abundance, the breeding area, and the winter quarters of each bird, so far as is known to naturalists.

Chambers, W: and Rob. Chambers's encyclopædia: a dictionary of universal knowledge. New rev. ed. In 10 v. V. 1, A to Beaufort. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. Amer. articles c. 7+824 p. il. Q. cl., $3; shp., 4; hf. leath., $4.50.

In the present edition the original character of the work has been systematically maintained. A large proportion of the articles have been rewritten, to adapt them more perfectly to the present position of the science or branch of knowledge to which they belong. The others have been carefully revised, and in many cases rewritten to so large an extent as to be virtually new articles. No old article has been retained without scrupulous verification by competent authorities. By the exercise of a rigid economy of space, which will be continued throughout, room has been found in the first volume for several hundreds of articles not contained in the corresponding volume of the old edition. These articles comprise biography, geography, history, science, and all departments of knowledge. Special regard has been given to American and Colonial subjects. The more important articles on American matters have been written by American authors expressly for this edition. Additions have been made to the number of maps and the il. are mostly new. Altogether this new ed. of an old standby is most desirable in every way.

Champney, Elizabeth W. Great-grandmother's girls in New Mexico, 1670–1680. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, [1888.] c. 2+330 p. il. O. cl., $2.50.

A story of New Mexico in the time of the Spanish adventurers. There is a quaint little Indian maiden, "Monita," who is the heroine, and who is the centre of much that is interesting. The book is quite instructive, telling a great deal about the country and its history at that period.

Champney, Mrs. Lizzie W. Howling Wolf and his trick-pony. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1888. c. 3–252 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Howling Wolf is a Ute Indian boy of fourteen, who is the possessor of a pony which he has taught many curious tricks, and which is so swift and clever, that many of the Indians look upon it as enchanted. Howling Wolf's family is encamped near a military post, and one of the officers by a trick secures the pony and claims it for his own. It is stolen one night from the corral by its young owner, who flees with it to the Navajoes, and is pursued by a detachment of cavalry, headed by the officer, and overtaken. He soon escapes, however, and, after a series of thrilling adventures, finds himself among the Apaches, who are on the war-path under Geronimo. At last he is again made a prisoner, his pony shot, and finally he is sent East with other Indian boys to the Indian school at Carlisle, Pa., where the author leaves him.

Châteauclair, Wilfred. The young seigneur; or, nation-making. Montreal, W: Drysdale & Co., 1888. 6+200 p. sq. S. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The chief aim of this book is to map out a future for the Canadian nation, which, the author thinks, has been hitherto drifting without any plan. A lesser purpose is to make some of the atmosphere of French Canada understood by those who only speak English. The writer seems to be an old-fashioned Tory and an old-fashioned Liberal.

Contains an introduction and Chaucer's representative poems, such as "The Booke of the Dutchesse," "The assembly of foules," "Troilus and Cresside," "The house of fame," "The legend of good women," "The Canterbury tales," etc.

Cheney, Ednah D. Louisa May Alcott, the children's friend; il. by Lizbeth B Comins. Bost., L. Prang & Co., 1888. c. 58 p. obl. S. cl., $1.

A brief sketch of Miss Alcott's life—not intended however, to take the place of the full biography which, it is hoped, will be prepared under the auspices of her own family. The aim of this little memento has been to show "how truly her writings represent her self, and came out of her own varied and fruitful life." A few of her poems written in childhood are given, and some poems of her father. The book is well illustrated with views of the different houses the Alcotts occupied, and there is a colored frontispiece representing Miss Alcott reading "Little women" to numberless little children, who surround her with eager, listening faces.

Chester, J: M.D. Ruth, the Christian scientist; or, the new hygeia. Bost., H. H. Carter & Karrick, 3 Beacon St., 1888. c. 343 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Christian science claims that an intelligent Christian faith could he more utilized in the healing of the hody, and that a large class of diseases now treated wholly with drugs could be better treated by the practitioner availing himself of that wonderful power of mind over hody which the Great Physician has himself established. Ruth speaks words taken from the most accepted writers among Christian scientists. Esther represents the kindred, but distinct belief—faith healing. Dr. Strong stands for the ultra-materialists of the medical profession. A thread of romance strings together the various theories.

Childs, T. S., D.D. The lost faith and difficulties of the Bible as tested by the laws of evidence. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] c. 88 p. T. cl., 40 c.

Two valuable articles are here bound together. They are addressed to those who have lost their faith and drifted away from their early teachings. To such as these and to all who have come to believe that our age has passed heyond the Bible the incidents and arguments of this little hook should be of service.

Childs, Mrs. T. S. The altar of earth. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] c. 207 p. S. cl., 60 c.

The ohject of this little volume is to teach the meaning of the sacrifices of the Old Testament and their typical relation to Christ as pictures of his one great sacrifice. This is done in the form of a series of letters from a Bible-class teacher to a pupil who is confused on the subject.

Chisholm, Belle V. Who wins? A story for boys. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] c 314 p. 1 il. S. cl., $1.15.

The story presents two types of life, from boy to manhood. One sets out with many disadvantages of position and circumstances, but with true moral principle which nothing could swerve. The other starts with many advantages and opportunites, but lacking uprightness. We follow the two boys through their early years. The former's plans are thwarted, but he grows nobler through all discouragements. The latter is prospered in worldly ways, but his character remains the same or deteriorates. We see them both in later life, when Archie Dinsmore is the honored and trusted man and Noel Gilroy is still treacherous and unprincipled as when he was a student.

Christianity in the daily conduct of life: studies of texts relating to principles of the Christian character. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. c. 6+338 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author takes twenty-two texts of the New Testament which have become so familiar that their deep meaning is scarcely taken into account and shows how a strict living up to them would involve a great change in the relations of professing Christians to their families, to society, and to daily duties. It seems a pity that a book containing such decided opinions on many questions should not have the endorsement of the writer's name.

Christopher, W. S., M.D. Chemical experiments for medical students; arranged after Beilstein. Cin., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1888. c. 84 p. D. cl., $1.

In preparing these experiments the author has followed the popular plan of Beilstein, and has kept constantly in mind the chemical necessities of the average medical student. The book, partly in manuscript form, has been the laboratory text-book at the Medical College of Ohio for the past three years, and its use there has proven satisfactory. It has also been adopted for laboratory use at the Miami Medical College, and the Ohio College of Dental Surgery. Extra blank leaves are inserted at the end for students' notes.

Christy, Rob., comp. Proverbs, maxims, and phrases of all ages; classified subjectively and arranged alphabetically. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. '87. 2 v., 7+665; 3+602 p. D. hf. mor., $5.

The method of arrangement in this collection is largely in its favor for reference. If one knows the chief word in a proverb or the chief sentiment, he will easily find it here under the subject. The subjects then run alphabetically through the two volumes. The compiler's principal aims have been, aside from making a full collection, to exclude all coarse or impure proverbs, those merely local, or consisting of allusions of a temporary character, or to individuals not historic. The work is finely printed and well bound.

Gorgo, Rhodium, and Hipponax, two girls and a boy, were children two thousand years ago, living first in Athens and then in a country palace near the world-famed field of Marathon. Their lessons are made bright and instructive by the charmingly told stories of Theseus, Atalanta, Ulysses, and other mythological characters. The illustrations are after Flaxman and are effectively printed in terra-cotta tint. Mr. Church is an accomplished restorer of the antique and has a keen discrimination for points appealing to child-like imaginations.

Church, Ella Rodman. Home animals. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] c. 344 p. S. cl., $1.15.

Miss Harson, the bright governess of the "Elmridge Talks," in this little book teaches her young charges many things about well-known animals, dividing them into two-footed, four-footed, horned, etc. The chapters on dogs and sheep are specially instructive.

Church, Mrs. Ella Rodman. Little neighbors at Elmridge. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] c. '87. 352 p. il. S. (The Elmridge ser.) cl., $1.15.

These little neighbors are such as the various species of mice, bats, rats, cats, squirrels, moles, hedgehogs, foxes, rabbits, toads, snakes, and others. The book does not claim to be a treatise on natural history, but like the former volumes of the same series consists of familiar talks between an intelligent young governess and her little people concerning animals referred to. Many facts are given and many interesting incidents and stories. The book is well adapted to children and young people.

Church, Ella Rodman. Some useful animals. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] c. 306 p. il. S. (Elmridge ser.) cl., $1.25.

The conversations in this volume between the little people of the Kyle home and their delightful young governess are on the subject of "some useful animals." Young people obtain through them a great deal of interesting information about the animals around them.

Clark, G: Faber. History of the temperance reform in Massachusetts, 1813–1883. Bost., Clarke & Carruth, 1888. 11+268 p. por., D. cl., $1.50.

The author has from boyhood been connected with different organizations of temperance workers. For three-fourths of a century the history of temperance reform has been closely identified with the history of Massachusetts. The author takes a hopeful view of the present outlook. Portraits are given of three or four leading workers in the cause. The newspapers have been closely read and the facts carefully classified. The different organizations and their prominent leaders and members are described as fully as the obtainable material made possible.

The civil service law was passed January 16, 1883. The chief object of the book is to defend the principles of the law. It is not a criticism of the law, nor does it treat to any great extent of civil service economy, except in so far as the subject is expounded incidentally by many American statesmen, whose works are freely quoted and give value to the book. The book is dedicated to the National Civil Service Reform League.

Clason, A. W. Seven conventions. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 174 p. D. cl., $1.

The conventions which are here discussed, each of which the history is given are: The Federal Convention, 1787; The four ratifying conventions of Massachusetts, Virginia, New York, and South Carolina; The non-ratifying convention of North Carolina; and The convention of the Democratic party at Charleston of 1860. The first chapter is devoted to the declaration of independence.

Clayden, P. W. The early life of Samuel Rogers. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. 7+405 p. D. cl., $1.75.

The author of "The pleasures of memory" and other poems, and the friend of Byron, Scott, Moore, and Wordsworth, is the subject of a biographical volume from a clever English writer. It only covers a period of forty years, and ends with his settlement in the celebrated house in St. James' Place, London, where he afterwards gathered around him the wits and prominent literary men of his day. Another period of fifty years will be the subject of a second volume, sketching him and his surroundings when he was one of the chief figures in English society. Mr. Clayden received the material for Rogers' life from the representatives of Mr. Rogers' nephews and executors.

Clement, R. E. Clement's civil government : studies of the federal constitution arranged for use in public schools. N. Y., A. Lovell & Co., 1888. c. 13+232 p. D. cl., 84 c.

To the consideration of the constitution there are prefixed short descriptions of the early governments in America, the colonial governments, and an account of the events which led to the formation of the four Colonial Congresses, the Revolutionary Congress, to the Declaration of Independence, and the Revolution. There is also a brief description of the Revolutionary Government, and the history of the formation of the "Articles of Perpetual Union." The introduction of valuable historical notes and laws of Congress materially assists in elucidating the text. The aim has been to make the subject so clear, so easy of comprehension, that boys of thirteen years and upward may find no difficulty in understanding much of the history as well as the fundamental law of the United States.

The second volume of the series begun with the "Drum-beat of the nation." As in the latter work, the author has endeavored to set forth impartially and truly the cause, scope, and meaning of the war by a grouping of leading events. The volume treats specially of the events of 1863—distinguished by a series of victories to the armies of the Union. It is a handsome book, profusely illustrated with portraits and war scenes and maps of battle-grounds.

Coker, A. M. Crookside lads ; [also,] Found on the hills. N. Y., American Tract Soc., [1888.] 3-256 p. il. D. cl., 90 c.

Crookside is one of the worst slums of a large English city. Bill Ferrers is its worst "rough," a terror to the neighborhood. Through the keeper of a coffee-house he meets Miss Foster, who soon gains a great influence over him and induces him to attend a Sunday class for boys of his own kind. In the second story, Giles, a donkey boy, is found on the hills and makes a great impression on Mrs. Romney, a rich widow with three delightful children. She provides for him when he breaks his arm, gains his confidence, and brings about a lasting change in his character.

In his scholarly introduction the author describes his aim in his version "to be literal," but "not so literal as to convert rich prose into poor verse; to be a faithful but not too punctual an interpreter; to get as close to the Hebrew original as possible, and preserve, as far as the two idioms would allow, the precise form and color of the Hebrew thought ; to transfer, wherever he could, the exact phraseology, hallowed and familiar, of the received or revised version ; and to use no more words than sufficed to express the meaning of the text."

A compilation of passages from the Bible and Shakespeare in which the sentiment and frequently the words are identical; they are given side by side and grouped under special subjects.

Comegys, B: B. Old stories with new lessons; sketches of scripture characters: a book for young people. Pl. il., American S. S. Union, [1888.] c. 3–248 p. il. D. cl., n. p.

Twenty chapters on: Abraham, Ishmael, Jacob and Esau, Joseph, Moses, Ruth, Samuel, the Shunamite's son, the young ruler, Mary and Martha, Timothy, Paul and Agrippa.

Comenius, J: Amos. The orbis pictus. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1887. c. 31+194+6 p. il. O. cl., $3.

A reproduction of one of the most important pedagogical works of the most original of early pedagogical writers; it was for a hundred years the most popular textbook in Europe, and it was not only the first illustration of object-teaching, but the first children's picture-book ever published. It is almost impossible now to buy a copy in fair preservation of the original. The present edition, however, reproduces the rare book most satisfactorily. The quaint old cuts are duplicated by photography, and have been left entirely untouched, being fac-similes of the original copper-cuts in the edition of 1658. The text, from the English ed. of 1728, is printed page for page in type imitating the original. Even the paper is an imitation of such as was used in old books. Excepting more generous margins and handsome bindings the old Orbis Pictus is before the reader.

Comins, Lizbeth B. The birds' Christmas. Bost., L. Prang & Co., 1888. c. no paging, il. sq. T. pap., 50 c.

A pretty poem telling how a brother and sister prepared sheaves of wheat for the sparrows at Christmas is printed in brown monotint and daintily illustrated in the same coloring. A pretty pasteboard cover with colored design.

Comins, Lizbeth B. What the bird said to Bertha. Bost., L. Prang & Co., 1888. c. 20 p. il. obl. T. pap., 60 c.

On a very hot July day Bertha felt very cross and mamma seemed to want her to do a great deal. She rushed out into the woods, and there heard a little bird's song that made her think perhaps the trouble was her fault, and not mamma's; and she went home much cooler in body and mind. This pretty thought is charmingly worded and more charmingly illustrated and printed.

Mr. Comstock discusses art in this little pamphlet and expresses his opinions regarding the nude in art. He also reviews the case of Mr. Knoedler and the seizure of his photographs.

Comstock, J: H: Introduction to entomology; with original illustrations drawn and engraved by Anna B. Comstock. Pt. 1. Ithaca, N. Y., J: H: Comstock, 1888. c. 4+234 p. O. pap., $2.

"This work has been prepared to meet the demand for a text-book which shall enable students to acquire a thorough knowledge of the elementary principles of entomology, and to classify insects by means of analytical keys similar to those used in botany. By means of the keys the student can readily determine to what family any insect of which he has a specimen belongs. In many cases tables of genera are also given; and the more common or conspicuous species in each family have been described." Nearly all the illustrations are original and have been drawn and engraved by Mr. Comstock. Author is Professor of Entomology and General Invertebrate Zoölogy in Cornell University, and was formerly United States Entomologist.

Conklin, Clara. Topics for recitation in ancient geography. Delaware, O., L. S. Wells, 1888. 18 p. T. pap., 15 c.

Lists of the names of the divisions, colonies, cities, rivers, mountains, islands, etc., of Asia Minor, Syria, Palestine, Arabia, Interior Asia, Africa, and Europe. They are designed for the teacher's and pupil's aid in recitations, the pupil's part being to supply all the information to be found about the name given.

Conklin, Mrs. Nathaniel, [formerly Jennie M. Drinkwater.] From flax to linen. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1888. c. 3–443 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Like most of Mrs. Conklin's heroines Grace Maxim is made aware of her shortcomings by being severely tried; her diary, begun in school-days, describes herself and her aims and objects, passes rapidly over an ungirlish girlhood, tells of a hasty marriage, dwells for a time on the trials of her wifehood and motherhood, but lingers until the story closes with the days of her widowhood and tells how she encompassed her desire by going through as many changes as flax before it becomes linen.

*Connecticut. Supreme court, reports, v. 55, [1887-88;] by J: Hooker, rep. N. Y., Banks & Bros., 1888. c. 8+645 p. O. shp., $3.75.

Connelly, Emma M. Tilting at windmills: a story of the blue grass country. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1888. c. 3-439 p. D. cl., $1.50.
George Allerton, a talented young Bostonian of twenty-eight, who has served through the Civil War, quite unexpectedly is made the heir of a rich colonel of the Confederate army whom he had once served when wounded. His property lies in Kentucky. He immediately begins a reform in all existing conditions, intending to make his section of Kentucky as like Boston as possible. Soon he finds his efforts as fruitless as "the tilting at windmills" of Don Quixote, and by experience learns that there are two sides to every question and that the South has traditions and aims and purposes as dear to it as those of Northerners to them. A strong story of Kentucky life by one who has studied her subject.

Connolly, C: Cashel. Songs of the Celt. Balt., J: Murphy & Co., 1888. c. 416 p. D. cl., net, $1.25.
A collection of short poems.

Connolly, Dan., ed. The household library of Ireland's poets; with full and choice selections from the Irish-American poets, and a complete department of authentic biographical notes. N. Y., Daniel Connolly, 28 Union Sq., 1887. c. 774 p. por. Q. cl., $5.50.
The poems, which number about 1000, are arranged according to the theme or motive of each rather than chronologically, or gathered under authors; a full index of authors and an index of poems make the volume easy of reference. The groups are as follows: Poems of the affections; of home and childhood; nature and places; reflection; sentiment and retrospection; imagination; patriotism; heroism; labor; comedy; loss and sorrow; memorial poems; and moral and religious poems. The poems represent 280 authors of Irish birth or extraction, and there are 167 biographical sketches. Handsomely gotten up and illustrated with numerous portraits.

Conway, Moncure D. Omitted chapters of history disclosed in the life and papers of Edmund Randolph, Governor of Virginia; first Attorney-General, U. S. Secretary of State. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 6+401 p. por. O. cl., $3.50.
Of Edmund Randolph Mr. Conway says in his preface: "Painted by partisanship as he was not, his name has been marred by every prejudice, and his fame left to his country in conventionalized disfigurement. The centenary of our constitution has already brought a gallery of fresh historical portraits of its leading framers, but one panel, like that of Falieri at Venice, is vacant; there is no portraiture of the statesman to whom the initiation and ratification of the constitution were especially due, except a blackened effigy hung up by enemies in a moment of partisan passion. This traditional effigy of Edmund Randolph I have examined by the light of facts and documents to which historians appear to have had no access, with growing conviction that the nation knows little of a very interesting figure of its early history."

Cooke, Josiah Parsons. The credentials of science, the warrant of faith. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1888. c. 8+324 p. D. cl., $1.75.
These lectures were prepared at the invitation of the Union Theological Seminary, N. Y. City, during the spring of 1887, as one of the course of the Elias P. Ely lectures on the evidences of Christianity. There were twelve when spoken, but they have been condensed into ten for publication. The subjects are: The argument of natural theology; Preparing the way; The induction of Newton; Deduction; Examples of scientific investigation; Laws of nature; Determinate and indeterminate laws; Theories or systems of science; Predominant principles of scientific thought; The systems compared—religion and science.

Cooke, Martin W. The human mystery in Hamlet; an attempt to say an unsaid word; with suggestive parallelisms from the elder poets. N. Y., Fords, Howard & Hulbert, 1888. c. 135 p. S. cl., $1.
Mr. Cooke has evolved and set forth the ingenious theory, that in other tragedies Shakespeare exhibits individual man; but in Hamlet—man. The minds of Othello, Macbeth, Romeo, Coriolanus, etc., are abnormal, controlled by the passions of jealousy, love of power, love, pride, etc. In Hamlet every passion is an active, powerful rebel against the will, and they counteract and cripple each other, the visible result produced being negative, although the struggle is intense and violent within. Hamlet's will is commanded by a supernatural will, and Hamlet represents the mystery of humanity, striving to harmonize its actions with a supernaturally imposed law of rectitude, which it recognizes but ever fails to fulfil. A valuable addition to Shakespeariana.

Cooke, Rose Terry. Poems. [New issue.] N. Y., W: S. Gottsberger, 1888. c. '60, '88. 13+412 p. D. cl., $1.50.
First published by Ticknor & Fields in 1860.

Cooke, Rose Terr. The old garden (from "Grandma's garden," arranged by Kate Sanborn); il. by Harriet D. Andrews and Mary K. Talcott. Bost., L. Prang & Co., 1888. c. no paging, Q. sateen, $1.50.

This well-known poem has been illustrated with flowers in all the rich colors of nature. The binding is light gray sateen, with a border of lattice-work over which twine the names of the flowers which bloomed in the old-fashioned gardens many years ago.

Cooke, R. J., D.D. Reasons for church creed: a contribution to present day controversies. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt, 1888. 92 p. D. cl., 60 c.

The author divides his arguments into two sections. First, he gives the objections to a formulated creed offered by agnostics, deists, semi-Christian thinkers, and others; secondly, the reasons for a creed entertained by several authorities and by himself. He believes evangelical Christianity is hastening back to the Apostles' Creed of the Catholic church, and that "the day is coming when it will be the only creed of a united Christendom."

Coöperation in Christian work: common ground for united interdenominational effort; by Bishop Harris, Rev. Drs. Storrs, Gladden, Strong, Russell, and others. N. Y., The Baker & Taylor Co., [1888.] c. 5+157 p. D. cl., 60 c.; pap., 30 c.

The very general interest called forth by the publication, under the title of "National perils and opportunities," (see notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., March 3, '88, [840,] of the discussions of the general Christian conference, held at Washington, Dec. 7, 8, 9, '87, under the auspices of the Evangelical Alliance, and the great value of these contributions to the study of important current questions, have induced the publishers, in the hope of finding a still wider circle of readers for these papers to issue certain of them, grouped under the divisions into which the work of the conference naturally fell, in two uniform cheap volumes, entitled "Problems of American civilization" and "Coöperation in Christian work."

Cornoz, Suzanne. Our children and their friends; from the French by Evelyn Shepard. N. Y., Cassell & Co., 1888. c. tr. 4–251 p. il. S. cl., $1.25.

These stories are great favorites with very young French children. The translator has caught the author's simple style. The subjects are such familiar ones as sunbeams, chickens and ducks, little cherries, rabbit families, torn dresses, little knives, baby donkeys, sparrows, gnats and spiders, etc.

Cossa, Luigi. Taxation, its principles and methods; tr. from the Scienza della finanze of Dr. Luigi Cossa; with an introduction and notes by Horace White. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 11+213 p. D. cl., $1.

"This work does not deal with customs duties except in their fiscal aspects. The dispute between protection and free-trade is not touched upon, since the aim of protection is not to provide means for the support of Government, but something quite different. . . . While the tariff question, as it popularly presents itself, is not touched upon, the effects of taxes on imports upon different classes in the community are made sufficiently clear. A few notes have been added in the text in order to give local application and local interest to the abstract principles stated." — Translator's Preface. The appendix gives in brief form the state tax systems of New York and Pennsylvania as they stand to-day. Dr. Cossa's bibliography of the science, which covers 13 pages, has had a few additions.

Costumes of the time of the French revolution, 1790–93, and in England, 1795–1806: a series of sixty-five plates. N. Y., J. W. Bouton, 1888. Q. cl., $20.

Council of Trent. The canons and decrees of the sacred and œcumenical Council of Trent, celebrated under the sovereign pontiffs, Paul III., Julius III., and Pius IV.; tr. by Rev. J. Waterworth. N. Y., Catholic Pub. Soc. Co., [1888.] 254+326 p. O. cl., net, $2.75.

To the canons and decrees are prefixed two historical essays. The first treats of the causes and events which immediately preceded and occasioned the convocation of the Council; the second is a connected narrative of the proceedings of the assembled prelates and theologians, preparatory to each session. The one gives the history of the times, the other of the Council; the second especially will, it is believed, be found useful in elucidating many phrases and canons, and in fixing the meaning of passages and decrees which might labor under some obscurity, if considered only as they stand in the text.

Counter-currents: a story; by the author of "Justina." Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. 303 p. S. (Handy lib., no. 4.) cl., 75 c.

In the health-restoring regions of southern California are brought together the self-made man of a prosperous western city, with his family, and a family with generations of cultured ancestors. The hero is the adopted son of the western merchant, a scholar with diplomas from American and European institutions of learning, with talents of most varied range, and a taint of hereditary weakness that almost spoils his career. The influence for good is the energetic daughter of culture, whose noble thoughts fire him to noble effort. The great western railway strikes are effectively brought in. The duty of man to his fellow-man is the keynote of a strong and poetic story.

Cowper, Frank. The captain of the Wight : a romance of Carisbrooke Castle in 1488 ; il. by the author. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1889 [1888.] 10+384 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Describes life in the Isle of Wight during the Renaissance, when there was great danger and discomfort owing to the constantly threatened invasions of the French and their many actual occupations of the island. Sir Edward Woodville, the hero, serves the author as an example of the mediæval knight, and he aims to interest both young and old in a noble life set off against the glamours of those ancient days of chivalry. He has consulted authorities and gives an accurate picture of the times, although inventing some incidents in the career of his hero.

Cowper, W: The diverting history of John Gilpin, showing how he went further than he intended and came safe home again ; il. by H. Rosa. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1888.] no paging, obl. Q. bds., $1.50.

Cox, J: G: Jubilee-tide in Rome. N. Y., Catholic Pub. Soc. Co., 1888. 6+107 p. por. O. cl., net, $1.30.

A series of graphic letters describing the celebration of Leo XIIIth jubilee year at Rome; also includes an account of other sights of Rome, such as the Vatican Exhibition, the Italian House of Commons, etc.

Cox, Maria McIntosh. Raymond Kershaw ; a story of deserved success. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. 6+321 p. il. S. cl., $1.25.

Raymond Kershaw, at the age of nineteen, is summoned from Yale College to attend his father's funeral. It is found that the busy, charitable doctor has left nothing but a life insurance of $10,000. Raymond abandons his dreams of a professional life, and with his invalid mother, his younger brother, and his cousin Alison, settles on a small farm, and soon opens a milk route. The cousin raises chickens, vegetables, and fruits, opens a store, and the young brother goes to work in an iron foundry. After two years they all prosper. The story is founded on fact. Many details of farm life are interestingly told.

Cox, Palmer. Queer people, such as goblins, giants, merry-men, and monarchs, and their kweer kapers. Phil., Hubbard Bros., 1888. c. 112 p. il. sq. O. bds., $1.

The three amusing books comprised under the general title of "Queer people" include contributions of the author of "The Brownies" to Harper's Young People, St. Nicholas, and Little Folks, with quite a good deal of new matter never before published. The illustrations and the text are both brimming over with proofs of the rare humor for which Mr. Cox is celebrated. Grotesque animals, birds, giants, and goblins are the heroes of the most grotesque narratives in verse.

Cragin, Belle S. Saint Peter and Tom ; or, two unlikely heroes. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1888.] c. 3–196 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.

Peter and Tom were indeed "unlikely heroes"—particularly in the direction of Christian heroism. Neither would have been selected as affording the requisite material for a saint; for Peter was too fiery-tempered and Tom was too dull. But the author shows how Pete became a veritable Saint Peter, with all his sprightliness retained; and how Tom, by his dogged persistence in obeying the command of his dying mother, achieved a place for himself in the good opinions and in the hearts of his townspeople that many a naturally brighter boy failed to win. A capital book for boys.

Crake, Rev. A. D. Brian Fitz-Count : a story of Wallingford Castle and Dorchester Abbey. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1888. 7+264 p. S. cl., $1.

Wallingford Castle was the most important stronghold on the Thames during the civil war of the first half of the 12th century, when Dorchester Abbey was founded. The tale is all too true to mediæval life in its darker features. Brian Fitz-Count was a real personage; the terrible descriptions of the dungeons of the Castle and the sufferings inflicted are taken from historic records. The details given of the lepers in the Lazar-House at Byfield are almost minute enough for a medical work.

Cranch, Christopher Pearse. Kobboltozo ; a sequel to the "Last of the Huggermuggers." [New ed.] Bost, Lee & Shepard, 1889 [1888.] c. '57. 4+95 p. il. sq. D. cl., $1.

This story takes "Little Jacket" among a Liliputian people, the opposite of the "Huggermuggers," and multiplies his singular adventures.

The "Huggermuggers" were a people of giant size among whom "Little Jacket," a sailorboy, has some queer adventures.

Crane, Rev. Stephen. Jesus the Christ. Bost., Universalist Pub. House, 1888. c. 96 p. S. (Manuals of faith and duty, no. 2.) cl., net, 25 c.

These little volumes of expositions of prominent doctrines of the Universalist church offer but little space for argument. The author merely asserts his beliefs, and does not stop to argue those of others from whom he differs. He endeavors to unfold the doctrine of Christ as it appears in his life and teachings, and tries to go at once to the heart of the matter and grasp the real significance of "The Son of God" and "The Son of Man," and ascertain what he really was in his relation to both God and man. What Christ was in the world, in the life of humanity, is to him the thing of transcendent importance, and not what he was before he came into this world, "whether a realized consciousness or a divine idea."

A rich young nobleman, devoted to experiments in electricity takes his wife, her mother, and his sister to spend a happy summer on the shores of the beautiful bay of Sorrento. Owing to some experiment, described in wonderful detail, the conditions of the atmosphere become so changed that "immortals" can exist in them. Heine, Chopin, Leonardo da Vinci, Samuel Johnson, Julius Cæsar, Pascal, and Francis I. appear as sociable guests in the family reunions. Their conversations introduce ideas on literature, art, science, education, government, religion, love, etc., that enable the author to show the rare information, versatility, and industry which in one year could create "Saracinesca," "Marzio's Crucifix," and "Paul Patoff."

Cruger, Mary. How she did it; or, comfort on $150 a year. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 212 p. 1 il. S. pap., 50 c.

The author vouches that this story is a portrayal, step by step, of her own experience, that the every-day life described is one she has absolutely lived and gloried in. With a little capital she managed to buy a house and get a mortgage on it, the interest on which also came out of the liliputian income. Three friends come to board with her, and the details of their inventions in furniture, cooking, and gardening are minute. Every penny of the money is accounted for in itemized lists of expenses.

Although distinctively a child's book "Little Grandpa" will afford as much pleasure to older as it does to juvenile readers. The hero is of the Fauntleroy type, with an abundance of the quaint precocity that never fails to interest. The story deals chiefly with "Grandpa's" scheme to fill the coffers of Mother Church for the Lenten season; upon his manner of executing it much depends. Author of "The little Episcopalian."

Curran, J: Elliott. Miss Frances Merley: a novel. Bost., Cupples & Hurd, 1888. c. 6+406 p. S. (American Tauchnitz ser., no. 1.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The first issue of a new collection of American authors, printed and bound in the style of the well-known Tauchnitz edition. The heroine is a remarkable young lady of eighteen, possessing a fortune of over a hundred thousand dollars, who is a prey to ennui, and at a loss to know what to do with her life. She is living at a small village, Marshton, on Long Island Sound, with her uncle and guardian, a retired New York merchant. Her first attempt "to live on the earth," as she calls it—that is, to get away from her stocks and bonds—results in a marriage with the village schoolmaster. They are both too proud to live on her fortune, and a long siege of poverty and suffering is the result. Left a widow, she goes into a convent, which she leaves through love for another man. "Miss Merley" is certainly a new character in fiction, and well described.

Cusack, Sister M. Francis Clare. The nun of Kenmare: an autobiography. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1889 [1888.] c. 21+558 p. D. cl., $1.50.

"The Nun of Kenmare" is the name by which Sister Mary Francis Cusack is generally known. She is an accomplished Englishwoman, who was reared in the faith of the Church of England. Through the advice of Dr. Pusey, she entered an Anglican sisterhood in London. Finally, influences led her from this to the Roman communion, and she was confirmed by Cardinal Wiseman. As a "Sister of the Poor Clares" of Ireland her efforts in behalf of the poor and starving peasants of Ireland made her name known thoughout the Emerald Isle. It was here her first troubles began with her ecclesiastical superiors—the dissensions ending for the time being by her leaving the convent and coming to America in 1880. In America even, she claims, her usefulness has been interfered with by the persecutions and tyranny of the Catholic Church. Her book claims to give an inside view of the workings of the abuse of authority in the Catholic Church.

Cutler, Rev. Manasseh Life, journals, and correspondence; by his grandchildren W: P. Cutler and Julia P. Cutler. Cin., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1888. 2 v., 10+524; 3+495 p. il. and por. O. cl., $5.

The life of the Rev. Manasseh Cutler forms an important chapter in the true history of the early settlement of the Ohio valley and the Northwest. Dr. Cutler was prominent in Massachusetts as a clergyman, scientist, and politician for fifty years prior to 1820. The early chapters therefore give a vivid picture of life in New England in colonial times and during the revolutionary war, in which Dr. Cutler served two campaigns as chaplain. Afterwards as agent of the Ohio Company he had much to tell of its organization and purposes and what it accomplished. As member of Congress from Mass., 1801 to 1806, he saw all there was of social life in Washington. As he kept constant diaries the work is almost entirely in his own words.

Dabney, R: Heath. The causes of the French revolution. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1888. c. 8+297 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Based on a series of nine lectures, delivered in 1886 before the faculty and students of Washington and Lee University and the public of Lexington. The author is professor of history in the State University of Indiana. He has thoroughly studied the exhaustive works of the great French and English writers on the subject and epitomized the special points made by them. In strong, terse English he paints the picture of the lawless luxury of the court of Louis XIV., the tyranny and immorality of the clergy, the oppression, hopelessness, and wrongs of the brutalized peasantry. The chapters devoted to the persecution of literary men and the gradual reawakening of arts, science, and literature after the death of the tyrant, the inspiring and moulding influence of English thought and letters in bringing about education and individual opinion in France, show personal theories and impressions of the author as well as a catholic and respectful appreciation of the thoughts and verdicts of the writers from whom he draws his materials.

The author of "Miss Varian" divides women into two classes, the very good and the very bad. The scene of this unhealthy story is New York City. Miss Remington, a the age of twenty-five, decides it is time to marry and deliberately lays her plans to secure an offer of marriage from a rich young broker. She is successful, and for a short time makes him miserable. Incidents in her life before marriage entail their natural consequences, and she suffers herself, and makes others suffer. As offset there is a pure young girl, who, after many days, is made happy.

Dall, Mrs. Caroline Healey. The life of Dr. Anandabai Joshee: a kinswoman of the Punditi Ramabai. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. 187 p. por., D. cl., $1.

As the first unconverted high-caste Hindu woman to leave her own country and to receive the degree of medicine in any country, the subject of this memoir is invested with an unusual interest. Dr. Joshee's aim in studying medicine was to help the women of India. Her desire becoming known to the English residents of Calcutta a fund was raised to send her to the United States. She landed in New York in June of 1883, going almost directly to Phila., where she entered the Woman's Medical College of Penn., and afterwards graduated on the 11th of March, 1886. She was then appointed to the post of Physician-in-charge of the female wards of the Albert Edward Hospital, Kolhapen, India. She returned to India to enter upon her duties, but died of consumption in Feb. of 1887, at the age of twenty-one years and a few months.

Chiefly an advertisement for the Chicago & North-Western Railway Co. The book describes a trip made by a party on this road from Chicago to the Black Hills. The scenery on the road is described and illustrated, and a little love story woven in, with many interesting incidents of travel.

Dalzell, Ja. M. Private Dalzell; his autobiography, poems, and comic war papers; sketch of J: Gray, Washington's last soldier, etc.: a centennial souvenir. Cin., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1888. c. 1+242 p. por. and il. D. cl., $1.

This book is published for the benefit of the wife and children of the writer. Private Dalzell was born in 1838 in Pittsburg, Pa. His father had been a distiller, but, convinced that it was wrong to manufacture intoxicating liquors, he abandoned his trade and began as a carpet-weaver. Young Dalzell taught school to earn enough for a college education, and struggled with poverty and sickness until 1862, when he entered the army, in which he continued to the close of the war. Then he went to Washington and became acquainted with all the celebrities of the day. His account is full of fun, humor, and pathos. Many of his poems and letters are scattered through the text. He claims no private is ever thought highly of in America, only officers receive consideration.

A young clergyman of the English Church, the son of a rich manufacturer, to whom money is no object, becomes junior curate in St. Swithin's, a poor parish in the heart of London. The story tells of his work in detail, and gives many theories about how church work should be planned and carried out. A thread of romance connects these important facts of work among the poor and the duties of the clergy towards their parishioners.

Daudet, Alphonse. Choix de contes de Daudet; sel. and ed. by W: Price. Bost., C: H. Kilborn, 5 Somerset St., 1888. c. 32 p. S. (Select French texts.) pap., 15 c.
Selections from Daudet's "Contes du Lundi," which has never been surpassed by any other living French writer in vividness, accuracy, and variety of expression. In the notes the only aim has been to explain those points which would be likely to puzzle those not thoroughly familiar with the idiom of the language.

Daudet, Alphonse. Choix d'extraits de Daudet; sel. and ed. by W: Price. Bost., C: H. Kilborn, 1888. c. 61 p. S. (Select French texts.) pap., 15 c.
Contains sketches from Daudet's Contes du Lundi and Lettres de mon Moulin; they are intended to furnish samples of comparatively difficult descriptive prose.

Daudet, Alphonse. Robert Helmont, diary of a recluse 1870–1871; tr. by Laura Ensor; il. by Picard and Montégut. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1888. 3+198 p. Q. pap., $5; hf. leath., $6.
One of Daudet's earlier works, first published in 1873, and based largely on his own experience. Robert Helmont, an artist, accidentally breaks his leg one day in the country, while wrestling with a friend. The time is put down in 1870, and the place as Champrosay. Here the young man is forced to remain for five months in solitude, all the inhabitants having fled to Paris on the approach of the Prussians. In spite of his almost helpless condition he has some adventures, which are both romantic and thrilling, and charmingly told. The book cannot be called a story, though it has many episodes. It is more descriptive—giving many delightful pictures of the recluse's melancholy surroundings—and also somewhat reflective and philosophical. Delightfully and profusely illustrated.

Daudet, Alphonse. The partners; or, Fromont, Jr., and Risler, Sr. (Fromont jeune et Risler aîné). N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1888. 238 p. D. (Globe lib., no. 56.) pap., 25 c.

A charming collection of autobiographical sketches in which Alphonse Daudet narrates the story of his life in Paris with its many interesting incidents. In several chapters, entitled "The story of my books," he tells of the writing and the causes which prompted the writing of "Little What's his name," "Jack," "Tartarin de Tarascon," "Letters from my windmill," and "Fromont jeune et Risler aîné." There are also reminiscences of Henri Rochefort, Henry Mounier, and Tourguéneff. The book is gotten up uniform with the previous volumes issued by this firm profusely illustrated through the text, and in a pretty paper cover with a vignette in colors.

Davenport, Reuben Briggs. The death-blow to spiritualism: being the true story of the Fox sisters as revealed by authority of Margaret Fox Kane and Catherine Fox Jenckson. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1888. c. 5–247 p. D. pap., 50 c,
The Fox sisters were the originators of the "Rochester rappings," and were among the foremost exponents of Spiritualism. In this volume they tell the true story of the methods by which they produced the "rappings" once accepted as communications from the spirit land. The history of the fraud and of their own remarkable lives is extremely interesting.

The author was born in the town of Alabama, Genesee Co., N. Y., April 18, 1841. In 1857 she married Mr. Davis. She died in 1885. The poems were intended for private distribution only when the collection was begun. Some of them have appeared in periodicals, but the majority are printed for the first time. Her husband and children desire her best friends to possess her verses in this form. Mrs. Davis shows a deep love of nature and great affection for her friends.

Dawes, Mrs. S. E. Ethel's year at Ashton. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 4+304 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.25.
Ethel Maybury is an orphan girl who finds a home with an uncle in the country, and who through her natural sweetness of disposition and early training transforms the inner life of the household from one of monotonous drudgery and intellectual barrenness into their opposites. The story is an exemplification of how "a little leaven leavens the whole lump."

Dawson, Sir J. W: The geological history of plants. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 9+290 p. il. D. (International scientific ser., no. 61.) cl., $1.75.

Gives in a connected form a summary of the development of the vegetable kingdom in geological time. To the geologist and botanist the subject is one of importance with reference to their special pursuits, and one on which it has not been easy to find any convenient manual of information. The author hopes that its treatment in the present volume will also be found sufficiently simple and popular to be attractive to the general reader. References to authorities are made in footnotes, and certain details which may be useful to collectors and students are placed in notes appended to the chapters.

Deland, Margaret. John Ward, preacher. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 3+473 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author of "The old garden," a charming collection of poems, has made her mark as a novelist. "John Ward" will rank with the notable books of the season. Its strong present interest in religious thought is probably its most vital point. In all its discussions and conversations it contrasts with remarkably fidelity and fairness the arguments and beliefs of radical Presbyterianism and modern cultured Agnosticism. "John Ward" is a clergyman of the Presbyterian Church. He marries a bright, intellectual woman, who, though brought up in the Episcopal Church, reserves to herself the right of judgment in religious matters. That their married life has many sad episodes and bitter scenes may be anticipated. The surroundings and characters are extremely lifelike. The style is very clever, and not devoid of humor, and has a fine literary quality. The scene is laid in one of the Middle States.

The writer does not consider insanity a disease requiring the treatment of physicians; he calls all insane people "demoniacs" possessed by an evil spirit. Faith and prayer alone he believes can restore them.

The author of "Véra" and "The hôtel du petit St. Jean" is quite at home on French soil. Ninette is the seventeen-year-old daughter of a farmer who is very poor and heavily in debt. A few years before the story opens he had given poor, half-starved Ninette a cruel step-mother. An old broker, a relation of the step-mother, wants to marry Ninette, and offers two thousand francs for her to help the farmer in his troubles. Ninette has a lover, who rescues her, but brings the hatred of the broker upon himself, and suffers much persecution in consequence. The earthquake at Nice in 1886 plays a part in clearing up the troubles.

Denison, T. S. The man behind: a novel. Chic., T. S. Denison, 163 Randolph St., [1888.] c. 311 p. D. cl., $1.50.

By the author of "An iron crown." An American story, of which the scene is laid in a little straggling village of the Southwest. The characters are plain, uneducated people, with the exception of Jack Hollencombe, who is the villain of the story. He ruins an innocent girl who trusts him, and then casts her off. Nellie Pickrell's after-life in a great city with a ruined reputation and a nameless child is extremely sad. Jack Hollencombe for a time prospers, but at last in running for a great political office his sin finds him out.

"Students of political economy are more often the old than the young; and more largely those who have already given much time and thought to its mastery, than those to whom the effort is new. I am satisfied that what both classes desire is an extended but convenient repository of accessible facts, avoiding dogma and abstraction, but allowing human experience and history to convey their own lessons. . . . It is believed that the fulness of the indexes and the simplicity of the order and arrangement adopted, combined with its ample presentation, in the text, of the facts essential to guide a judgment on most economic issues, and in the notes, of the views of nearly all economists, may make it convenient as a book of reference to that very large number of persons who, if amply supplied with facts, find it not difficult to arrive at their own conclusions."—Preface.

The Nouveaux essais, in spite of its being one of the two most extended philosophical writings of Leibniz, is a compendium of comments, rather than a connected argument or exposition. It has all the suggestiveness and richness of a note-book, but with much also of its fragmentariness. In treating it Mr. Dewey has been forced to depart somewhat from the acknowledged purpose of the series "to give a critical exposition of some one masterpiece." "I have been obliged," he says, "to supplement my account of it by constant references to the other writings of Leibniz, and occasionally to take considerable liberty with the order of the treatment of topics."

A mother and three daughters, of whom one is a comfortable invalid, leave their home in Western New York and go to spend three months at Nassau, the leading seaport of the Bahama Islands. In a series of letters written to the many friends left behind the several members describe the manners, customs, scenery, food, shipping, schools, churches, colored labor, etc., in a bright, spicy manner, and give much useful information about a place where people's ideas of time, duty, and usefulness seem to be very vague.

Bible texts, hymns, and selections from religious writers, grouped under the following headings: The journey; The country; The inn; The rainy day; The city; The mountains; The valley; The river; The sea; The storm; The foreign land; The day of rest; The desert; Going home.

Dippold, G: Theodore. Richard Wagner's poem, "The ring of the Nibelung;" explained and in part translated. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1888. c. 6+240 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.50.

As this work was not written for musicians, it does not contain many references to Wagner's music. It has been the principal aim of the author to consider the literary and poetic character of "The ring of the Nibelung," and to show that Wagner was a great poet as well as composer. There are opening chapters on the Teutonic gods and goddesses and the traditions of the Nibelung myth which form a good introduction to a thorough understanding of the poem. The four dramas, "The Rheingold," "The Walküre," "Siegfried," and "The Götterdämmerung," composing the poem are treated at length in separate chapters.

Dod, S. Bayard. Stubble or wheat? a story of more lives than one. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] c. 264 p. D. cl., $1.25.

An advertisement of "a man found drowned and buried in Potter's Field" catches the eye of a city merchant, who goes to the wharf specified, and, finding some pieces of a torn letter, recognizes the handwriting of a friend's wife, has the body disinterred and identified as that of his schoolmate and life-long friend. The history of the suicide is then given. Wealthy, uncongenial parents, a loveless home, an ideal school-life in Hudson, college years at Princeton, loss of parents, pessimistic influences, undigested reading of Schopenhauer, etc. Although happily married, the unhappy man always saw only the "stubble" of the world. He tried various experiments of suicide, which are described in detail. Comparisons of Harvard and Yale universities and an argument on the true motive of Lessing's "Nathan, the wise," make interesting chapters. The author writes with the purpose to show that views of the world can be cultivated which will make all its unexplained mysteries either nourishing "wheat" or unsatisfying "stubble."

Dodd, Anna Bowman. Glorinda: a story. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. 293 p. S. cl., 75 c.

The scene is southern Kentucky after the war. Glorinda is the daughter of a broken-down planter, who, with scarcely anything to live on, clings to the home and the state of other days, though everything is in a deplorable condition of decay. Glorinda is a wild, uneducated beauty, with a passion for the stage. Some of the prettiest scenes in the book are where she personates Juliet and Rosalind, in the woods, to a select company of little darkies. Her mind and heart are developed through the visit of a rich Northerner who visits her father, and who woos her and rides away. She loves him, but does not die of a broken heart, as the story discloses. The author has written "Cathedral days" and shows brilliant powers of description.

Dods, Marcus, D.D. The book of Genesis. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, [1888.] 5+445 p. O. cl., $1.50.

The author claims that the object of the writer of Genesis was to give an intelligible account of God's relation to the world and to man. God gave men natural faculties to acquire scientific knowledge and historical information, but knowledge of Him had to be supplied in a miraculous manner. The inspired writer was not in advance of his age in the knowledge of physical facts and laws. He spoke from the point of view of his contemporaries, accepted the current ideas regarding the creation of the world, and attached to these the the views regarding God's connection with the world which are most necessary to be believed. The author believes the origin of the universe is a living conscious spirit, and that man was the chief work of God for whom all else was created. Dr. Dods shows a brilliant imagination and keen insight into human nature and motives.

"Mr. Doran holds that the rights of the United States in the North Atlantic fisheries are in the nature of a joint ownership or tenancy in common with subjects of the British crown; that our proprietary rights are fully as great and the same as those of Canada itself, and that they are rights existing in the United States without any corresponding right in British subjects on our coast. He shows by copious quotation and reference that the treaty of 1783 was little more than a confirmation of the ancient and chartered rights recognized in the charters of 1627 and 1691. Again, he proves that in addition to the proprietary rights possessed by the United States in the North Atlantic fisheries her fishing vessels, under the concurrent action of the two countries in 1830, and under the twenty-ninth clause of the treaty of 1871, are entitled to unrestricted commercial and transportation privileges to the same extent and in the same manner as those engaged in any other business."—*Phila. Dorchester, Dan., D.D. Romanism versus the public school system. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt, 1888. c. 351 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The writer gives the facts and principles, the history, the expansion, and the present proportions of the contest between Romanism and the public schools, which in some localities has become a vital question. He quotes extensively from articles which appeared in the Christian Union in May, June and July of the present year. He confesses to a fear of the political manœuvering of Rome. The curriculum of many of the academies and institutions of the Roman Church is given. He divides his work in two parts: the history of the contest, and questions involved in the contest. The tone is calm and patriotic.

Adam and Eve are brother and sister. He is in charge of a railroad station and telegraph office in a New Jersey village which is called Athens in the narrative. He earns $45 a month and Eve keeps house for him over the station. Eve is ambitious. She watches her chances, gets a large deserted house and garden, raises chickens and vegetables, and makes a home in which several wanderers find a resting-place. Boarders are soon taken, then a hotel is opened, and after a time Adam and his brother-in-law become florists and make a success. The story is told by Adam.

Du Bois-Melly, C: The history of Nicolas Muss: an episode of the massacre of St. Bartholomew; from the French. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. tr. 3+227 p. S. cl., $1.

Nicolas Muss belonged to the household of Admiral Coligny. He fled with a companion after the assassination of the admiral, and records here in a graphic style his wanderings through Paris, and the scenes he witnessed during the massacre of the Protestants on St. Bartholomew's day, 1572. There is a little romance in his rescue of a young damsel, who afterwards becomes his wife.

Dulac, G: Before the dawn: a story of Paris and the Jacquerie. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 2+307 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The rising of the French peasantry against their masters, the nobles—in the 14th century—is the central motive. The scheme of Etienne Marcel to make of Paris a free city is also part of the plot. There are besides many scenes of plunder and insurrection, scenes from the French home-life of the times, both among the nobles and peasantry, and a graceful love tale.

Mr Dunn is a resident of Indiana, and thoroughly familiar with its history. As the title of the work implies, it is limited to a study of the origin, development, and abolishment of the slavery fastened upon Indiana by the French when it was a part of the Northwest Territory. Aside from the history of this struggle the book possesses a special interest from the fact that it is the only record of the official and political life of William Henry Harrison while he was Governor of Indiana Territory.

Any child that does the work indicated by this book will learn numbers first, and then figures as the signs of the numbers. The subject-matter is broken up into easy stages; first, numbers from one to ten, then from one to twenty, one to one hundred, one to a thousand, and higher numbers. The explanations of the fundamental processes of arithmetic, notation, addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division are clear and complete. Every possible operation and combination of numbers from one to ten, ten to twenty, twenty to one hundred, are here given. Prof. Dunton is Head-Master of the Boston Normal School.

The author is a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Boston, Mass. In his ministry he has felt the need of a book which should put before people the rational theology of the early church and set forth the undisputed religious principles which are the foundation of the creeds and institutions of historical Christianity. He claims people must learn to discriminate fairly between what is essential and what is accidental in religion. Nine chapters give the original meanings of God, Man, Christ, Creeds, the Bible, the Church, the Sacraments, the Liturgy, and the Future Life.

Edwards, G: Wharton. Sundry rhymes from the days of our grandmothers; coll. and il. by G: W. Edwards. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1888. c. 109 p. F. cl., $4
Eighteen full-page designs illustrate as many old-fashioned rhymes by the Taylor family. The pictures are very quaint, and mostly figures in the garb of long ago. The paper is very thick and printed only on one side; the margins are most generous. Mr. Edwards will be remembered as one of the artists of "The last leaf." The cover is in white and écru cloth, with gold lettering.

"In this volume the sole aim of the writer has been to trace the unity of thought in one of the greatest and most difficult books of the New Testament. He has endeavored to picture his reader as a member of what is known in the Sunday-schools of Wales as 'the teacher's class,' a thoughtful Christian layman, who has no Greek, and desires only to be assisted in his efforts to come at the real bearing and force of words, and to understand the connection of the sacred author's ideas. . . . Criticism is rigidly excluded."—Preface.

Eggleston, E: A history of the United States and its people, for the use of schools. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 10+398 p. il. por. and map, O. cl., $1.50.
In writing this history, the author specially aimed at correctness and clearness. To obtain the former he spent many years in the critical study of original printed and manuscript authorities for the history of American institutions and American life, the result being the rejection of "certain well-worn fables which have served more than one generation of American schoolchildren for historic facts." The arrangement is novel and obtains the clearness aimed at. Subjects are grouped together and not periods of time—one topic being exhausted before another is taken up; the review questions coming at the end of the subject whether it occupies one chapter or many. The maps and illustrations are all extremely good, and serve admirably to elucidate the text. The narrative is brought down to the present, and is as fresh and vigorous as if it were the first history ever written on this subject.

Eggleston, E: The Graysons: a story of Illinois; il. by Allegra Eggleston. N. Y., The Century Co., 1888. c. '87. 8+362 p. D. cl., $1.50.
A settlement of Illinois two generations ago is peopled by the imagination which produced "Roxy" with a dozen characters of the strongest individuality, who take part in a story of hearts and homes. Tom, a reckless scion of the Graysons, is tried for murder. His lawyer is Abraham Lincoln. The court scene is said to be founded on an incident in his practice. Tom's sister, his mother, the school-teacher, the village beauty, the man about the Grayson place, are all exquisitely finished studies of human nature, surrounded by early western conditions. Has appeared during the year in the Century.

Ellis, E: S. Wyoming. Phil., Porter & Coates, [1888.] c. 371 p. il. S. (Wyoming Valley ser., no. 1.) cl., $1.25.

Wyoming lies in the valley of the Susquehannah in Pennsylvania. In the year 1778, during the American Revolution, the Tories and their Indian allies fell upon the inhabitants, and the incidents of that event are told in this initial volume of a series to which it gives its name. The hero is a young lieutenant in the Continental army.

Ely, R: T. Problems of to-day: a discussion of protective tariffs, taxation, and monopolies. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., 1888. c. 7+222 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A series of papers written originally for the Baltimore Sun, and only slightly revised and enlarged for republication. They are popular in style, as they are meant to appeal, as Prof. Ely says, to "all sorts and conditions of men." The problems discussed are stated in the title; some of them relate to national life, others to state affairs—that is, the State of Maryland—and others to Baltimore city affairs.

Ely, R: T., and Finley, J: H. Taxation in American states and cities. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1888.] c. 16+544 p. D. cl., $1.75.

As this is meant to be a popular work, in the best sense of the word, all technical details, not essential to an understanding of the main issues, have been avoided. It consists of four parts: 1. Introduction. 2. Taxation as it is. 3. Taxation as it should be. 4. Constitutional provisions, statistical information, and miscellaneous matter. Mr. Ely is the author of "The labor movement in America" and associate professor of political economy in the Johns Hopkins University.

Emerson, J. M. Stimulants; their uses, and how best conserved; moral and legal reform methods. N. Y., Dick & Fitzgerald, 1888. c. 61 p. T. cl., 50 c.

A dispassionate essay upon the subject of alcoholic stimulants; their legitimate objects and use are fairly set forth, and the evils resulting from their excessive use and habitual abuse are fearlessly portrayed. The author also advances some wise and practical suggestions for reform in liquor-traffic.

Emerton, Ephraim. Introduction to the study of the Middle Ages. (375–814.) Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. c. 18+268 p. D. cl., $1.25.

An epitome of Roman history from the battle of Adrianople, 378, to the death of Charlemagne, 814. Gives an account of the settlement of Germanic peoples on Roman soil, the gradual rise of the Frankish supremacy, the growth of the Christian church, the monastic life, the Roman papacy, and the culmination of all in the Empire of Charlemagne. The author is Professor of history at Harvard. Maps, chronological tables, a full index, and lists of suitable collateral reading add to its usefulness as a text-book.

Emra, J. N. The centre of the central sea—Malta, Sicily. N. Y., J. N. Emra, 53 Lafayette Place, [1888.] 6+63 p. S. pap., 25 c.

An interesting, because unconventional description of Malta, Gibraltar, Sicily, Etna, and their surroundings. Written by a late lieutenant of the Royal [English] Marines

Enault, L: The captain's dog: a story for young and old; written in French by L: Énault; done into English by Huntington Smith. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1888.] c. tr. 5–162 p. il. O. cl., $1.

The translator has not stuck slavishly to Enault's delightful text, but has worked over this naïve little story into a good English rendering. The pictures are very good, and almost tell the history of the good-natured captain, whose heart is divided between his wife and his dog, both of which idols control him most uncomfortably. The wife finally gets rid of Zero, but soon after meets with a change of heart and allows Zero to return to see the captain's baby boy.

Another of the many art works of this description prepared for this season. The etchings are unusually good. The volume a very handsome one.

Etiquette of men's dress. N. Y., Office of The Men's Outfitter, 1888. c. 6–92 p. il. O. pap., 25 c.

Points out the style of dress suitable for men for all occasions—balls, weddings, funerals, bicycling, driving, dinners, opera, tennis, tobogganing, etc. Published by The Men's Outfitter, formerly the Furnishing Goods Trade Review, for ten years the authority in the U. S. on men's dress. Many of the articles were prepared by specialists—as the chapter on bicycling is from the pen of Thomas Stevens, that on racing was written by C: Victor Sass, and others by equally prominent authorities.

Evelyn, J: The life of Mrs. Godolphin; by J: Evelyn of Wootton. New ed., ed. by E: W: Harcourt of Nuneham Park, Oxon. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1888. 24+292 p. por. D. cl., $2.50.

Forty years have elapsed since this biography of his distinguished ancestor was first given to the public by Mr. J: Evelyn. Little alteration has been made by the present editor, except in a stricter adherence to the text and some additions to the notes. A new edition was issued to meet a demand of many readers for a work so full of religious instruction and spiritual help. Mrs. Godolphin lived in the reign of Charles II. and was esteemed by all for her "extraordinary virtues"—which were even more remarkable, as the lady lived in the midst of one of the most corrupt courts known in history. The volume is printed in old style spelling and type, and in old style form, the page being encircled with a black line. The leaves are uncut, the margins generous.

Everett, C. C., D.D. Poetry, comedy, and duty. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 5+315 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Studies on the themes set forth in the title. Poetry, comedy, and duty are each treated separately first, then other aspects of the subject considered important and interesting are associated with them, as the contents show. Contents: Poetry—The imagination, The philosophy of poetry, The poetic aspect of nature, The tragic forces in life and literature. Comedy—The philosophy of the comic. Duty—The ultimate facts of ethics, The new ethics. The conclusion considers poetry, comedy, and duty in their relation to one another. Dr. Everett is Bussey professor of theology in Harvard University.

Ewing, Hugh. A castle in the air. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1888. c. 4+273 p. S. (Leisure hour ser., no. 214.) cl., $1; pap., 30 c.

The Decker estate, consisting of a vast property in New York City, and millions in gold lying in the vaults of the Amsterdam banks is the basis of this "castle in the air." The "Decker estate" originated in the minds of two impecunious and unscrupulous lawyers. They found members of the Decker family in all parts of the country ready to believe their story, and give money to aid the plausible scheme of dividing up the land and the gold. These men's misdeeds, the people they rob and ruin, the brilliant hopes they raise, and the bitter disappointments which follow them are all part of a well-told story. The author is General Ewing, late U. S. Minister to the Hague.

How Mr. and Mrs. Skratdj disagreed and contradicted, how the little male and female Skratdj bickered and spatted, how the Skratdj servants and dogs and cats snapped and snarled, is told in the inimitable manner of the author of "Jackanapes." A dream on Christmas eve cured the little male Skratdj first, and for fear of going to the Snapdragons the whole family slowly reformed. The second story relates of a sad accident which befell old Father Christmas. He managed, however, to keep his promise and provide a tree, but he never came again. His little dog was left as a comforter to the disillusioned children.

The name of La Fayette is not only intimately connected with our own war for independence, but with the French revolution against vice and tyranny. The story recounts his services to both America and France, giving many graphic scenes from these exciting days, besides including a number of his private letters. As a large portion of the material presented has been gathered from French works never before translated and which are now out of print, and also from original files of newspapers, and various manuscripts written by members of the La Fayette family, a more complete life of General La Fayette is offered than has before appeared, either in this country or in Europe.

By the machinations of a jealous female fiend the lives of Angela Voght and Hubert Throckmorton become divided. Angela marries a rich man. Hubert at first is crushed, but finally writes a great poem which shows his heart to Angela. The plot is intricate and the element of mystery is kept to the end. The author's inability to write at first and his final struggle to produce a great work is a fine piece of literary work.

Fawcett, Edgar. A man's will : a novel. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1888. 2+308 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Presents a startling picture of the prevalence of intemperance among the business men of New York City, and in the homes of those who move in the best society. The story is merely a thread of connection between the various scenes in country-houses, banks, brokers' offices, and rich homes, where the curse of drink is doing its disastrous work. Two physicians are introduced, one advocating temperance, the other total abstinence. The downward career of a handsome, talented, rich young banker is the theme, and his final cure through a sensible mother, a faithful wife, a devoted physician, and—a man's will.

Fawcett, Edgar. Olivia Delaplaine : a novel. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. '87, '88. 4–476 p. D. cl., $1.50.

In the present novel we have another of Mr. Fawcett's remarkable studies of New York social life and character. Olivia Delaplaine, born a Van Rensselaer, is left penniless at her father's death through his reckless extravagance. Spencer Delaplaine, her father's old partner and a man more than double her age, asks her to marry him. At first she indignantly refuses, thinking she can bravely endure her poverty and change of surroundings. A small experienee of boarding-house life leaves her very weak when a second temptation comes. It is represented to her that Mr. Delaplaine is dying and wishes to marry her that she may inherit his fortune. She marries him and he does not die. Her married life and its tragical ending are well described. The character sketching is quite lifelike.

Fenn, G. Manville. One maid's mischief : a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 1+364 p. S. pap., 30 c.

The punishment for coquetry as depicted here is indeed a severe one. Helen Perowne even as a schoolgirl in England got into trouble through her love of flirting and admiration. After her school-days, when she returns again to her father in India, she is the undisputed belle of the station. She slays her admirers by the dozens, without a pang of remorse, but finds her match at last in the Sultan Murad, a Malayan rajah, who has had an English education, but has not given up his religion or the Oriental custom of a harem. Driven to desperation he steals Helen and imprisons her in his harem. Her experiences here fill many chapters and are of the most thrilling description. There are many side narratives and characters—the Rev. Arthur Rosebury and his sister and Dr. Bolton being extremely interesting and having a delightful history.

Fenn, G: Manville. The story of Antony Grace; il. by Gordon Browne. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 4+321 p. S. pap., 50 c.

The hero is a little boy of eleven when the story opens. Death has suddenly deprived him of his father and mother, and reckless speculation and a rascally lawyer of every penny his parents once possessed. Poor Anthony is taken charge of by the lawyer, and forced to live in his house through two miserable years. Then he runs away from hard blows and poor food and makes his way to London. The reader follows him here through many experiences till he is a grown man and married to one who as a little girl had once stood his friend. The characters and scenes are mostly from middle-class life

Field, H: M., D.D. Old Spain and New Spain. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 4–303 p. map, O. cl., $1.50.

Dr. Field's sunny disposition and intelligent tolerance of all men and all creeds make him a delightful traveller. We feel sure when we see things through his eyes that we see them just as they are, untinged by prejudices of any sort. The task he set himself in this work—to contrast the old Spain of the tyrants with the new Spain, which he calls the land of freedom,—for he found more freedom of speech there than in any country in Europe, England perhaps excepted,—is well done. Besides the many picturesque descriptions of towns and scenery, we get many chapters from the recent history of Spain, and many pen portraits of her famous men and women. Castelar is the subject of a long biographical notice, as are other leaders of the Liberal party. The Queen Regent and the little King, the Cortes, the Escorial, the Alhambra, pictures and palaces, bull-fights and beggars, are prominent topics among twenty chapters, each of special interest.

The features of this annual comprise an exhaustive chronological history of all dramatic and musical productions and other events during the year 1887, with the casts and plots of all new works brought out in this country, England, France, and Germany; a necrology embracing biographical sketches of all professionals that died in the countries named; and the dramatic bibliography of the year. The book contains also an authentic directory of the American dramatic profession, giving not only the names and permanent addresses of over 5000 actors, actresses, managers, etc., but also a thorough classification of their diversified lines of business; the text of the Inter-state Commerce Law; and a list of stars, combinations, and stock companies of the season of 1887–88. copious analytical index makes the volume easy of reference.

Fiske, J: The critical period of American history, 1783–1789. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 17+368 p. D. cl., $2.

This book is devoted to the obscure period between the close of the Revolution and the definite organization of the present Constitutional Government of the United States. It is the result of minute research, and sheds a flood of light on the various opposing views and interests then prevailing in the thirteen States with regard to the most desirable form of government, or the form most likely to be satisfactory in practical operation. The various general conventions and legislative proceedings in the several States, which have a bearing on this subject, are carefully described; the commercial, industrial, and financial condition of the country is accurately portrayed; and, in short, the history of the country for those years, hitherto very imperfectly understood, is made thoroughly clear and intelligible by virtue of Mr. Fiske's profound study of the subject and his remarkably lucid style.

Five talents (The) of women: a book for girls and women; by the author of "How to be happy though married." N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. 3–301 p. D. cl., $1.25.

"The five talents of women" are those which enable them, 1, To please people; 2, To feed them in dainty ways; 3, To clothe them; 4, To keep them orderly; 5, To teach them. The author dedicates his book to John Ruskin and his own wife. His noble thoughts upon the true mission of woman, married or single, are supported by a wealth of carefully chosen quotations, arranged in the manner of the author's former volumes.

*Five senses (The): five etchings on Holland paper after Teniers, 5 Lichtdrucks after Hans Makart, and 5 photogravures by Goupil & Co., after Herman Leo, Frappa, and Chevilliard. Phil., Gebbie & Co., 1888. In portfolio, $10.

Flagg, Edmund. De Molai; the last of the military Grand Masters of the order of Templar Knights: a romance of history. Phil., T. B. Peterson & Bros., [1888.] c. 378 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.50.

The scene is laid principally in Paris, and the theme is the suppression of the Order of Knights Templar by Philip the Fourth of France. Throughout the romance towers the commanding form of Jacques de Molai, the noble old warrior-monk, who was ready to bear the tortures of the Inquisition, and even to suffer martyrdom at the stake, for the cause of the persecuted Order of which he was the chief. A complete history of the Knights Templar is given, which will be found of great value and interest by the Masonic fraternity as well as by the general reader. The descriptions of old Paris and the abbeys and castles of that day are vividly and vigorously drawn. The loves of Blanche of Artois and Adrian de Marigni are set forth, and the narrative of the disappointed affections of Marie Morfontaine is replete with tender pathos.

Fontaine, Francis. Etowah: a romance of the Confederacy. Atlanta, Ga., published by Francis Fontaine, 48½ Marietta St., 1887. c. 7+517 p. D. cl., $2.

A story based on life in the South just before the war, and during the war. Though from a Southern standpoint it claims to be unprejudiced and to give a true picture of slavery—the opposite to that drawn in "Uncle Tom's cabin"—and to illustrate the heroism and sacrifices of Southerners during the war. Social life of that period enters largely into the composition of the story. The writer purposes to contribute one-half of the proceeds of this book to building a veterans' home for the disabled Confederate soldiers in the city of Atlanta.

Forbes, Archibald. William of Germany: a succinct biography of William I., German Emperor and King of Prussia. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 8+366 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The late Kaiser finds an excellent biographer in Mr. Archibald Forbes, the great English war correspondent. His youth, manhood, and middle-age, with their numerous exciting incidents and campaigns, are sketched in graphic style. The larger part of the book—that is, the portion most in detail—is that relating to the Franco-German war. Mr. Forbes accompanied King William all through this campaign in the capacity of a special correspondent—and we are told with the freshness and picturesqueness of an eye-witness the dramatic events of this period. Mr. Forbes unfortunately, through ill health, could not finish the work; his part in it ends with the return to Berlin of the victorious German troops. Mr. John P. Jackson completes the story of the emperor's life through the peace years, and gives the sad details of his death and burial.

Forde, Gertrude. Only a coral girl: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 183 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., no. 617.) pap., 30 c.

The marriage of Keith Ronaldson, a rich and handsome young Englishman, to Margherita, a beautiful Italian coral girl, at Capri, is the motive. Education and travel make of Keith's bride a lovely woman presentable anywhere. He takes her back to England to his family, who all, excepting his father, receive her coldly. Then comes a season in town, where Margherita is excessively admired and Keith grows lax in his devotion and returns to one of his old weaknesses, gambling, which finally ruins him. His wife is shown as his good angel throughout, who in spite of her humble birth is a far nobler specimen than Keith.

General David Forman, of New Jersey, in 1879 entered into a negotiation with the Spanish minister, Don Diego de Gardoque, for his brother Ezekiel Forman, of Philadelphia, to emigrate with his family, and about sixty colored people, men, women, and children, and settle in the Natchez country, then under Spanish authority. Major Samuel S. Forman accompanied this emigrating party, and in this narrative gives a minute account of their trip, the places they passed through and at which they stopped, prominent people they met, with many curious particulars.

Fosdick, C: A., ["Harry Castlemon," pseud.] Snagged and sunk; or, the adventures of a canvas canoe. Phil., Porter & Coates. [1888.] c. 419 p. 1 il. S. (Forest and stream ser., no. 2.) cl., $1.25.

The second volume in the series. The first was "Joe Wayring," and its hero is also the chief character in this story, which is again told in the first person by the "flyrod." Matt Coyle, the squatter, his unruly son, their neighbors and friends, and our old friends Joe and Tom are the actors in many adventures in search of hidden treasure, undertaken in a canvas canoe. The scene is laid on the border between New England and Canada, among the woods and lakes. All in the end turns out happily for Joe and the "flyrod," who informs us that a bicycle will take its place in telling the story of "The steel horse," the concluding volume of the series.

Fosdick, C: A., ["Harry Castlemon," pseud.] The steel horse; or, the rambles of a bicycle. Phil., Porter & Coates, [1888.] c. 3+418 p. S. (Forest and stream ser.) cl., $1.25.

The heroes are our old friends Joe Wayring and his two chums, Ray Sheldon and Arthur Hastings; the one who tells the story is one of the "Expert Columbias," who were introduced in the concluding chapters of the second volume of the series. The narrative describes the interesting and exciting incidents of their vacation run on bicycles through their native state.

Foster, Frank Hugh. The seminary method of original study in the historical sciences; illustrated from church history. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. 9+129 p. D. cl., $1.

By the "seminary" method the author means the method by which students may learn how to enter upon the work of original study. The book has grown out of his experience as a practical teacher, and the knowledge thus gained of the limitations of students when beginning original historical work. The "seminary" teaches him just how to handle this subject and all the various sources to seek for information and to investigate for fresh thought. More especially for the teacher, but also for the student, there have been added some discussions or the proper range of this form of study, and of the limitations under which it should be conducted in our colleges. Lists of topics are also provided.

Fothergill, Jessie. From Moor Isles: a story. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1888. 418 p. S. (Leisure hour ser., no. 221.) cl., $1; pap., 35 c.

Miss Fothergill's love of music is more apparent in this novel than in anything she has written since "The first violin." Felix Arkwright, the hero, has a beautiful baritone voice, and is a successful public singer. His life-long friend is a charming woman, who plays the violin. The reader is taken into a great deal of musical society and gets incidentally some pleasant writing on music. Inez Grey, Felix's ward, is the heroine. He adopted her when a little girl, her mother's death leaving her destitute in Paris. She tells her own story, which has chiefly to do with her love for Felix and her dislike of her father's wealthy relations. A second hero and heroine come out of Lancashire, who have a tragical history. A character of unusual beauty and strength is that of Alice Ormerod, a handsome country girl.

There are five lasses of Leverhouse, an old gray stone house in Lancashire. These and four brothers are the chief characters of a story of the days when King Cotton came to lay low the old traditions of the best families in Lancashire. The bright, human story is told by Betty, the third lass. She is devoted to her brothers and sisters and gives pretty pictures of her trials in teaching them their lessons and directing their amusements. The father dies, the two older girls leave home to earn for those left there. Betty, much against the wishes of her family gives her heart to a cotton-spinner, who finally proves the good angel of his many sisters and brothers. The conversations are full of good points.

Foxcroft, Elizabeth Howard, ed. Our glorified: poems and passages of consolation especially for those bereaved by the loss of children. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1889 [1888.] c. 136 p. S. cl., $1.

This collection possesses a sad interest in the fact that it was begun by Mrs. Foxcroft while she was under the shadow of a great bereavement, the loss of her cherished daughter, Beth, and was finished almost on the eve of her own death, in Oct., 1888. Her intense love for little children and her knowledge of them, learned in many years' work among them, is illustrated in this sympathetic selection of poems and prose passages from our best writers.

The story opens in the eighteenth century, some years after the battle of Culloden. The action turns upon a new conspiracy to restore the so-called "Pretender" to the throne, and its unfortunate failure. The "Young Chevalier," otherwise "King James," is represented as being in England, and the centre of the conspiracy. Sweet Hetty Cleve, who bravely gives her husband up to the "cause," and uses all her bright intelligence to release Nicholas Fenwick, the arch conspirator, from jail, is a charming character.

Galicia, Austria, is the scene of a painful story excellently rendered into English. Taras Barabola, the hero, is an ignorant peasant and an illegimate child. His naturally beautiful character and inborn sense of justice raises him far above his station in the estimation of all around him. He marries the daughter of a rich farmer, and becomes a man of importance and finally is made a judge. The story shows how patiently he fought for the right, for others as well as for himself, and how, when all just and legal means were exhausted, he was forced to take the law in his own hands. His crime and his expiation are powerfully depicted. With this issue the F. S. L. becomes an octavo.

Lajla is introduced as a baby on her way to be baptized. She is accidentally lost from the reindeer-drawn sledge and found next day by an old, childless hunting-farmer, who teaches her wisely. Her parents recover her, but soon die of the plague, and she remains with her rescuer. A slight thread of story enables the author to give an interesting and instructive description of the habits, customs, beliefs, and superstitions of the inhabitants of northern Norway.

From 18 to 20 : a novel. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. c. 195 p. D. cl., $1.

From the age of 18 to 20 the every-day young heroine contrives to make herself and her immediate family a good deal of trouble. Her little mind and heart fluctuate between the allurements of love or riches, and we leave her just as she makes her final choice. The writer is said to be a well-known society girl.

Frost, A. B. Stuff and nonsense. [New ed.] N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. '84, '88. 96 p. il. O. cl., $1.25.

A gay new cover, the addition of some new illustrations and sketches, and a redrawing of some of the old ones, make this practically a new book. It is a delightful specimen of Mr. Frost's incomparable humor.

Frost, J: The presidents of the United States from Washington to Cleveland; comprising their personal and political history: brought down to the present time by Harry W. French. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1889 [1888.] c. 547 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

Gives a clear view of the whole career of each president, but does not dwell unnecessarily upon the telling questions of the different administrations. The author dwells upon the unerring sagacity which is characteristic of a free and enlightened nation in summoning warriors and statesmen to the highest position according to the needs of the hour.

The studies which Mr. Froude begun in "Oceana" of England's colonies are continued here. He continues to advocate his scheme of an imperial confederation, pointing out the decadence that is overtaking many of the minor dependencies through want of care and unwise government. "If England desires her colonies to rally round her," he remarks in conclusion, "she must deserve their respect. She will find neither one nor the other if she carelessly sacrifices her own people in any part of the world to fear or convenience." As a delightful volume of travel, notable for its succession of graphic pictures of the people of the West Indies and their present condition of life, it is especially recommended.

He has brought the subjects taught within the easy comprehension of the ordinary pupil of this grade, without attempting to popularize them by the use of unscientific language or fanciful illustrations. He has also carefully guarded against the introduction of any teachings not in harmony with the modern conceptions of physical science.

Galdós, B. Perez. The court of Charles IV : a romance of the Escorial ; from the Spanish by Clara Bell ; rev. and corr. in the U. S. N. Y., W: S. Gottsberger, 1888. c. tr. 2+295 p. S. pap., 50 c.

The story is told in the first person by a young page in the service of a popular actress, who afterwards becomes a leader in political intrigues. The chief events take place in Madrid in the celebrated Escorial, at once a convent, a church, a palace, and a mausoleum. The story follows historical lines and has its denouement in 1808, when this building was exposed to the ravages of the French soldiers under Houssaye. The theatrical element lends warmth and animation to the plot.

Galdós, B. Perez. Leon Roch: a romance; from the Spanish by Clara Bell. Authorized ed. N. Y., W: S. Gottsberger, 1888. c. '86. 2 v. 5+315; 5+287 p. S. pap., $1; cl., $1.75.

The influence the Catholic Church and her ministers—the priests—have upon domestic life and social relations in Spain, is the subject illustrated. Leon Roch is a noble fellow and a scholar, but an atheist. He marries a bigoted Catholic, who considers it her mission to convert him. She is aided in her designs by her family—her twin brother being a priest. The result is a broken-up and wretched household which Leon finally leaves. His wife's struggles with what she calls her conscience and her love for her husband break her heart. Leon's unhappy love for another woman, his struggle for and final triumph in the right are forcibly told.

Gallaudet, E: Miner. Life of Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet, founder of deaf-mute instruction in America; by his son. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1888. c. 8+339 p. por. D. cl., $1.75.

The subject of this memoir was born in Phila., 1787; he died 1851. The story of his life spent in unselfish efforts for the education of deaf-mutes, and his marriage to one of his pupils, who became an ideal helpmate to him, is told in a most interesting and sympathetic manner by his son. The last years of his life he became specially interested in the insane and did a great deal to improve the treatment received by them in institutions.

Beside the building plans there are suggestions as to lighting, heating, and ventilation, that will be of great help. Then the grounds, the outhouses, the fences, the walks, etc., are all discussed. The materials suggested are wood, brick, and stone, and it is noticeable how in all of these the skill of the auth r is displayed. He gives details for doors, fireplaces, transoms, screens, porches, windows, belfries, gates, fences, etc., so that a builder will be aided to realize these charming designs.

The forty witnesses are Baptists, Episcopalians, Methodists, Congregationalists, and Quakers. One little girl is allowed to testify. The remaining witnesses are all over fifty, some have reached eighty years of age. The book is intended as an apostolic "experience meeting" on paper. Among those who have answered the six paragraphs of questions prepared are D. L. Moody and Frances R. Havergal.

Gasparin, Valérie Boissier [Comtesse] de. Under French skies; or, sunny fields and shady woods. N. Y., The Baker & Taylor Co., 1888. 4+303 p. D. cl., $1.25.

"This collection of histoirettes by Madame De Gasparin has to do, in the way of scene, chiefly with the Jura border land and district on the Swiss and French frontiers. It has a type of beauty of its own. . . . Raoul and Marjolaine, the happy young couple, in their mountain cottage and bit of farm, Pierre, the woodman, Silvio and Serinette, the loves of Victor and Louise—these, and many more, form the dramatis personæ that appear in the pleasant pages of the book."—London Bookseller.

Gautier, Théophile. Iettatura. [also,] A noble sacrifice, by Paul Feval; [also,] The black pearl, by Victorien Sardou; from the French by M. de L.—. N. Y., Brentano's, 1888. c. tr. 5–255 p. S. (Brentano's Romantic lib., no. 1.) pap., 50 c.

These three short stories are remarkably well translated. Naples is the scene of Jettatura, which means a fiend in human shape, having the evil eye and bringing destruction to all with whom he comes in contact. A man may be a Jettatura unknown to himself. "The black pearl" tells the story of a supposed theft and the sharpness of a scientist and a policeman in ferreting out the murderer. "A noble sacrifice" was made in a county of France, in 1683, by a man who gave the girl he loved to his brother. The sequel reveals a surprise.

The title as given in full above affords a pretty thorough idea of the contents of this useful work of reference. The present new revised edition has been improved and enlarged in many ways, such as in a more extended classification and by the addition of new but kindred branches of the book and stationery trade. The publisher states that every name in the directory has been verified by actual correspondence within the last few months and is now offered to the trade "with the certain knowledge that it is the best directory of the trades it represents ever published."

Gibbon, C: Beyond compare. Chic., T. S. Denison, 163 Randolph St., [1888.] 253 p. D. (Denison's ser., v. 1, no. 4.) pap., 50 c.

The faithfulness of the heroine to the hero through much tribulation is "beyond compare." A forged will, an ambitious mother, a dutiful son, his noble love for a strong, good girl, the weak villain and the strong villain, the strange revelations of circumstantial evidence, and the gradual clearing up of a most complicated plot, make a good story, told with much spirit. A pretty fishing village of old England makes a most artistic background.

Gibbons, J: Tenure and toil; or, rights and wrongs of property and labor. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. c. 316 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author argues that as home-owners are seldom malcontents, but always safeguards against social disturbances and industrial revolts, the deserving poor in every community should be afforded means to build for themselves homes on the public domain provided as the common heritage of the people. Ownership should be restrained within such limits that there would be ample acreage for all. The theories of Dr. McGlynn and Henry George are criticised. An appendix is devoted to convict labor and legislation proposed to control its encroachments on free labor.

Giberne, Agnes. Miss Con; or, all those girls; il. by Edgar Giberne. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1887. 5+341 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Constance Conway, or "Miss Con," as her young pupils prefer to call her, is an attractive young girl who becomes governess in a wealthy family with a large flock of children. The story is an English one, the mother being absent in Nice in search of health. Miss Con proves herself a most efficient governess and thoughtful friend to the girls in her charge. She has a love story of her own which is quite interesting. One of the girls in the book has a talent for writing stories, which affords the author the occasion for telling beginners a good deal about the mysteries of publishing as well as the difficulties of getting a publisher.

Giberne, Agnes. Ready, aye ready. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., [1888.] c. 244 p. D. cl., $1.

Scene laid in an English factory town. The rector is bitten by a mad dog while rescuing some children. He says nothing of it, but the next day preaches a sermon on the text "Ready, aye ready," which has a lasting influence upon many characters in the story.

Gibson, J: Munro, D.D. Christianity according to Christ: a series of papers. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1888. 4+288 p. D. (Nisbet's theological lib.) cl., $1.75.

The eighteen papers composing this volume have mostly appeared before in fugitive publications. They are related to each other, and their leading thought is that Christianity has become too much of a system based on the Bible, the inspiration of which is cited as the proof of this system. To the author Christianity means likeness to Christ, and he thinks almost all that is expected of man towards God and of God towards man is formulated in the Lord's prayer.

Gerard, Dorothea. Orthodox: a tale. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 161 p. D. (The Gainsborough ser.) pap., 25 c.

The hero is an Austrian nobleman, a Roman Catholic, longing to be a monk, but a soldier by his father's command. While stationed in Poland he falls in love with a beautiful auburn-haired Jewess, the daughter of a Polish rag and bone seller of the lowest type. His efforts to educate the girl, her father's interference and perfidy, the clashing of Roman Catholic and Jewish bigotry, descriptions of Polish Jews, their habits and thoughts, and the working out of the rather slender plot are worded by a fellow-officer of the hero. All the characters remain "orthodox."

Gerard, Emily de Laszowska. The land beyond the forest; facts, figures, and fancies from Transylvania. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 6+403 p. map and il. O. cl., $1.50.

The author's husband was ordered to take command of two Hussar regiments in Austria, to which circumstance is due this interesting book. Transylvania is in the southeastern part of the Austro-Hungarian empire. Its inhabitants include Saxons, Hungarians, Roumanians, Jews, Armenians, and gypsies, all these races seeming to keep their distinct characteristics. They are a very illiterate, agricultural people. The facts given of their manners, customs, superstitions, creeds, etc., make strangely fascinating reading.

Gilmore, Ja. R., ["Edmund Kirke," pseud.] The advance-guard of western civilization. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 12+343 p. por. and map, D. cl., $1.50.
The comprehensive and picturesque narrative of the early settlement of the Southwest, begun in "The rear-guard of the Revolution" and "John Sevier as a commonwealth builder, is continued in this volume, which is devoted to the settlement of middle Tennessee. The three volumes cover a neglected period of American history, and they disclose facts well worthy the attention of historians —namely, that these western men turned the tide of the American Revolution, and subsequently saved the newly-formed Union from disruption, and thereby made possible our present great republic. "This should be enough," says Mr. Gilmore, "to secure for their story an attentive hearing, had it not the added charm of presenting to view three characters—John Sevier, James Robertson, and Isaac Shelby—who are as worthy of the imitation of our American youth as any in their country's history."

Gissing, G: A life's morning. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. 3+348 p. S. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 91.) pap., 25 c.
In life's morning, Emily Hood, the governess in a London family, is sought in marriage by their talented son. She accepts her gifted lover and then goes to her home to await his family's consent to the union. Here her trials begin; a young squire proving a tempter to her father and ruining his business career for the sake of getting the daughter. The first lover goes into Parliament, makes a great success, and owing to the generosity and self-sacrifice of a noble woman is finally allotted to Emily Hood.

Glory crowned. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., [1888.] no paging, il. obl. Fe., pap., 35 c.
Poems suitable for Easter; the pages are alternately in colors and monotints, and are adorned with graceful landscapes, flowers, etc.

Goethe, J. W. von. Faust, pt. 1; tr. by Swanwick. N. Y., Scribner & Welford, 1888. 167 p. S. (Bohn's select lib.) cl., 60 c.

Goethe, J: W. von. Faust; from the German by J: Anster; with an introduction by Burdett Mason; il. by Frank M. Gregory. N. Y., White & Allen, 1888. c. 6+71 p. size 21 x 16 in. cl., $20.

Illustrated with 10 full-page designs in water-colors, reproduced in fac-simile by the new photo-aquarelle process. To obtain accuracy in the details of so important a book, the artist was sent to the places and scenes in Germany which are so strongly linked with the story of Faust.

Goethe, J: W. von. Goethe's boyhood; tr. by J. Oxenford, 1749–1764, being the first five books of Goethe's autobiography. N. Y., Scribner & Welford, 1888. 180 p. D. cl., 60 c.

Goethe, J: W. von. Hermann and Dorothea; tr. by Edgar Alfred Bowring; with etchings by Hermann Faber. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1889 [1888.] c. ed. 60 p. Q. cl., $3; ivory surface or leath., $3.50; tree cf., $7.50.

Six full-page etchings illustrate this masterpiece of Goethe. The volume is in holiday attire, and is uniform with "The legends and poems of Faust" issued last season and also illustrated by Mr. Faber.

Goethe, J: W. v. Reineke Fox; tr. by A. Rogers, in hexameters, with an introduction. N. Y., Scribner & Welford, 1888. 195 p. D. (Bohn's select lib.) cl., 60 c.

Goethe, J: W., von. Reynard, the fox; tr. by Arnold, with all Kaulbach's il., etchings, and photogravures. Phil., Gebbie & Co., 1888. O. cl., $1.75.

Goethe, J: W. von. Torquato Tasso; ed. for the use of students by Calvin Thomas. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1888. c. 614+181 p. D. (Heath's German ser.) cl., 75 c.

The editor is professor of Germanic languages in the University of Michigan. The book is intended for the student of literature and of Goethe, rather than for students of the German language for itself. The grammatical and lexical notes are therefore few and deal only with what is peculiar or exceptional, but the historical and literary commentary is copious. Tasso is closely connected with Goethe's life, and the editor makes this clear in an extended introduction of literary merit.

Good form in England; by an American resident in the United Kingdom. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 8+315 p. D. cl., $1.50.

"The raison d'être of this book is to provide Americans—and especially those visiting England at any time—with a concise, comprehensive, and comprehensible handbook which will give them all necessary information respecting 'how things are' in England. While it deals with subjects connected with all ranks and classes, it is particularly intended to be an exhibit and explanation of the ways, habits, customs, and usages of what is known in England as 'high life.'"—Preface. Contents: The order of precedence; Professions; Occupations; Government; Society; Language; Correspondence; Visits and visiting-cards; Sports; Games; General information.

Good manners. N. Y., The Butterick Pub. Co., 7 West 13th St., 1888. c. 384 p. D. cl., $1.

The Delineator is constantly receiving letters asking for information on points of etiquette, which are answered briefly in the correspondence columns of the paper. The material thus accumulated is now elaborated and worked into a volume which aims to cover all doubtful points of social etiquette.

Good things (The) of Life: fifth series. N. Y., F: A. Stokes & Bro., 1888. c. 64 p. il. obl. O. cl., $2.50.

A collection of some of the most recent and best plates out of the society paper Life. They are as bright and witty as the previous collections, and "hit" off in a very clever way the foibles of society.

Goodale, Dora Read. A birthday-book of birds; verses; il. by Fidelia Bridges. N. Y., F: A. Stokes & Bro., 1888. c. 16 p. sq. O. pap., $1.50.

Four of Miss Bridges' charming studies of birds and flowers in colors from the "Bird-song series" are combined with some new birthday verses by Miss Goodale, making an attractive birthday-book. The studies are: Doves and peach-blossoms; Humming-birds and wisteria; Vireos and nest; Robin-redbreast and snow.

Goode, G. Brown. American fishes : a popular treatise upon the game and food fishes of North America ; with especial reference to habits and methods of capture. N. Y., Standard Book Co., 1888. c. '87. 12+496 p. il. O. cl., $5.

Nearly fifty kinds of fish are described and illustrated in this handsome volume. As it has been prepared " for the use of the angler, the lover of nature, and the general reader," the technicalities of zoölogical description have been avoided. "I have aimed," the author says, "to include in my discussion every North American fish which is likely to be of interest to the general reader, either because of its gameness or its economic uses. All others are excluded because, from the standpoint of scientific interest, every one of the seventeen hundred and fifty species indigenous to our continent has equal claim to consideration, and to discuss, or even casually mention them all, within the limits of a book of ordinary size, would be next to impossible." Handsomely printed on tinted paper with gold edges, 1 colored plate ; bound in blue cloth with gold stampings.

Goode, G. Brown. Virginia cousins : a study of the ancestry and posterity of J: Goode, of Whitby, a Virginia colonist of the 17th century, with notes upon related families, a key to Southern genealogy, and a history of the English surname Gode, Goad, Goode, or Good, from 1148 to 1887 ; with preface by R. A. Brock. Richmond, Va., J. W. Randolph & English, 1888. 562 p. 52 pors. Q. cl., subs., $7 (Only 350 copies printed.)

Goodman, E: J. Too curious : a novel. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. 406 p. S. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 85.) pap., 25 c.

Angus Paul, a poor young lawyer, sitting alone in his London lodgings longing to know what fate has in store for him, exclaims: "Oh that I could foresee the future!" when a mysterious voice answers "You shall." From that moment he receives direct answers to all direct questions, by which means he is enabled to win heavily at betting, to track thieves, etc., etc. He falls deeply in love and through his gift is told sad things that will affect the woman he loves. He grows to dread his gift; he has been "too curious." He gives up this power and feels free once more and earnestly says: "In all that concerns the future of those who are dearest, and the interests of life that are most precious, it is better to hope than to know."

Goodman, E: J. Too curious. N. Y., G: Munro, 1888. 228 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1081.) pap., 20 c.

Goodwin, J: A. The pilgrim republic ; an historical review of the colony of New Plymouth, with sketches of the rise of other New England settlements, the history of Congregationalism, and the creeds of the period. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. maps and il. O. cl., $4.

Goodyear, W: H. A history of art. N. Y., A. S. Barnes & Co., 1888. c. 14+315 p. il. O. cl., $3.

Intended for the school-room. The subject is divided into three parts, Architecture, Sculpture-Painting. The publishers state that "the specific aim of the book has been to present such an amount and choice of illustration as have never been previously attempted in similar works, and as a class-book to present the subject in such a way that the use of still further illustration for the combined class will be easy and desirable." The illustrations, which are numerous, are reproductions of photographs.

Gordon, Anna A., ed. The white ribbon birthday-book : a selection for each day from the best writers among women ; il. by Mary A. Lathbury. Chic., Woman's Temperance Pub. Assoc., 1887. 278 p. S. bds., $1; gilt, $1.25.

A pretty book with the usual blanks for autographs, and 12 emblematical pages of the months in colors.

Gordon, A. C., and Page, T: Nelson. Befo' de war : echoes in negro dialect. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 7+131 p. D. cl., $1.

The tender feeling and subtle sense for literary form that distinguish Mr. Page's short stories of Virginia life are conspicuous in his dialect poems in this volume. Those by Mr. Gordon will be found to possess equally charming qualities. But the charm of their "Echoes" by no means depends wholly on the form and phraseology into which they are cast. It resides even more in the negro character exhibited in this quaint dialect. Running through the entire series of poems is a conception of a typical personality which is not only unique but picturesque in the highest degree.

Gordon, Lydia L. From Lady Washington to Mrs. Cleveland. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1889 [1888.] c. 3+448 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Twenty-two wives of as many presidents are the subjects of these papers ; several of them never lived to grace the White House, but their histories are full of interest. Each paper includes a brief history of the president's life and administration, which serves to make more vivid the position of the wife. The papers are unusually fresh and unconventional, and evidently written from new material, being full of new anecdotes and new impressions.

Greely, A. W. American weather: a popular exposition of the phenomena of the weather. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1888. c. 11+286 p. il. O. cl., $2.50.

The object of this work is to give clearly and simply, without the use of mathematics, an idea of meteorology in general, supplemented by climatic data regarding temperature, rainfall, wind, and storms, especially of our own country. There are chapters on cyclones and hurricanes, cold waves and blizzards, tornadoes, hail, thunder, and dust storms, and other interesting phenomena of American weather. The book is illustrated with thirty-two engravings and twenty-four charts. Gen. Greely is Chief Signal Officer of the Army Signal Office at Washington.

Green, Anna Katharine. Behind closed doors. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 5+523 p. S. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The author of "The Leavenworth case" again tells, with all her well-known skill and literary talent, a story of an apparent crime, and the means taken to unravel the mystery. The scene is New York, and the heroine the beautiful daughter of the wealthy family of Gretorex. She is about to marry a famous New York doctor, and a misunderstanding occurs on the very eve of the marriage, which calls in the aid of a detective. The wedding, however, takes place, but has a startling interruption in a wild scream from no one knows where, which throws the bride into a painful state of terror and faintness. The death of a young girl by prussic acid the same night is traced to the Gretorex mansion, and the reader is at once in the depth of an apparently inexplicable mystery.

Green, J: R: A short history of the English people. New ed., rev. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 48+872 p. maps, O. cl., $1.20.

In revising her husband's work, Mrs. Green fulfilled his last charge to her. In an introduction which briefly gives the events of the author's life, she defines the work she has done on this new edition in the following words: "I have been very careful not to interfere in any way with the plan or structure of the book, and save in a few exceptional cases, in which I knew Mr. Green's wishes, or where a change of chronology made some slight change in arrangement necessary, I have not altered its order. My work has been rather that of correcting mistakes of detail which must of a certainty occur in a story which covers so vast a field; and in this I have been mainly guided throughout by the work of revision done by Mr. Green himself in his larger 'History.'"

Green, Rufus S., D.D. Both sides; or, Jonathan and Absalom. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] c. '87. 4–304 p. S. cl., 85 c.

There are parts of the Old Testament which are well-nigh unexplored territory even to many Bible-readers. In a certain sense this is true of the stories of Jonathan and Absalom. Dr. Green has done good service in preaching a course of sermons to young men on these two young men of the Old Testament. The title of his book, "Both sides," explains the author's aim, which is, to show one noble life and one ruined by its own folly. The lessons are well brought out.

Green, Seth. Home fishing and home waters: a practical treatise on fish culture. N. Y., O. Judd Co., 1888. c. '87. 81 p. D. cl., 50 c.

Greene, Harris R. Greene's language half-blanks in four graded numbers (to accompany any grammar). Half blank no. 1, The sentence and its four principal parts, the noun, pronoun, and the verb. N. Y., A. Lovell & Co., 1888. c. 48 p. O. pap., 15 c.

Greene, Harris R. Inductive language lessons, elementary grammar and composition; with a new, simple, and effective system of diagraming. N. Y., A. Lovell & Co., 1888. c. '87-8. 13+220 p. D. cl., 54 c.

Beginning with the simplest form of a sentence, the book teaches, first of all, gradually and with no sharp transitions, the five component parts of the sentence, viz., the subject, the predicate, the complement, the object, and the modifier. The method of instruction throughout is mainly inductive. Every lesson begins with two or three sentences, which embody and illustrate the point to be discussed. Simultaneously with the above work, at every advance in the introduction of a new element, the particular part of speech which such element illustrates is then and there brought out, explained, and defined.

Greene, J. M., D.D. The blessed dead. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1888.] c. 2-89 p. S. cl., 75 c.

Five sermons concerning death and life beyond the grave; they are tender, comforting, and assuring. Those questions are answered which are in the minds of all who have lost friends. The book is very tastefully gotten up, with red lines encircling the page and red edges.

Gréville, Henry, [pseud. for Madame Alice Durand.] Perdue. N. Y., W: R. Jenkins, 1888. 359 p. D. (Romans choisis, no. 10.) pap., 60 c.

A charming story of a Parisian waif—a little child whose mother dies from heart disease in the garden of the Tuileries, while waiting for her husband, who has gone to Havre to make preparations for the family's emigration to America. The story relates very interestingly the life of the little one up to the time when, grown to womanhood and with a love affair on hand, her father returns from America, a rich man, to search for the child and the wife who he imagines has deserted him years before. It is a romance of inherent interest, delightfully narrated, and will prove an excellent addition to the excellent series in which it is issued.

The writer is a rabbi of Detroit, Michigan. He holds it is time to say a word from an orthodox Jewish standpoint with respect to the science of religion, of which Max Muller, Amberly, Albert Kuhn, Otto Pfleiderer, Tylor, Lubbock and Reville are the worthy protagonists. He sees in this new science a revelation that shall corroborate and illustrate most notably the doctrines of Judaism, and find the key-note to bring the discordant chords of all sectarian religions into harmony. He shows the points common to Judaism and the science of religion. His definition of religion is poetic and beautiful. Its total distinctness from theology is well brought out.

Grumbine, Rev. J. C. F. The decay of the Christian church; the causes and remedy. Chic., C: H. Kerr & Co., 1888. c. 32 p. T. pap., 15 c.

The causes of the decay of the Christian church are, the author of this little pamphlet thinks: the difference of opinion about essentials; the worldliness of church members and the timidity of the pulpit; the secularity of the age and the growing power of science. The remedy he proposes is "the remedy of nature." "We must make," he says, "the church express unity. The church must be one with the will of God as expressed in nature. The church must have one aim, and that is the complete elevation of mankind."

Guardians (The); by the authors of "A year in Eden" and "A question of identity." Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 2+412 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The authors seem to have a distinct purpose in this novel, and that is to show that the most careful education has no influence upon hereditary traits. Amory Wallis, a handsome man of about forty, is suddenly called to the death-bed of the only woman he has ever loved, and made guardian of her two girls. A misunderstanding had separated Amory and Cornelia Curwen in early youth. Cornelia, fiercely resenting his supposed falseness, marries a man she despises in every way. He dies a few months before she does, and Amory Wallis finds himself about the only friend her little girls possess. Associated with him is old Judge Ford, but it is in Amory's family, under the care of his sister, Mrs. Rothery, the girls are brought up. Mrs. Rothery is strong-minded and has theories about education with which she is delighted to experiment. The story is well told, proving, in spite of Mrs. Rothery, that the mother and father's ill-regulated natures count for something in the fates of passionate Constance and morbid Ruth.

Guild, Curtis. Britons and Muscovites; or, traits of two empires. Bost., Lee & Shepard 1888. c. 10+230 p. D. cl., $2.

In line with Mr. Guild's previous volume of travel, "Over the ocean" and "Abroad again." It is written in a bright, journalistic style, and is full of evidence of keen observation and intelligent comparison. It chiefly deals with Great Britain and Russia. Of the former we hear a great deal of its old ruins and abbeys, and much space is given to its poor hotel management. The account of Russia is quite unconventional and not at all in the stereotyped line of travel. Russian men and manners are cleverly described. The author had especially good luck in getting through Russia, which he attributes to the exceptionally good guide he engaged.

This little volume might be fitly styled a fairy handbook, as in it the author describes every kind of the "little people" that is found in traditions or literature in all the countries of the world. There are the brownies and waterkelpies of Scotland, the troll and necken of Sweden, the German kobolds, the English fairies, pixies, and elves, the Norwegian and Danish dwarfs and bjergfalls, the Irish leprechauns, and a score of others. The author mingles her descriptions with anecdotes illustrative of the different qualities and dispositions of the various fairy folk described.

The opening scenes of this story are laid in Alexandria in July of 1882; there are a succession of thrilling episodes in which the central figures are an Englishman and an English lady and her maid, who he is trying to save from the mob; the bombardment and the terrible street scenes that followed are graphically described. Mr. Potter of Texas comes on the scene in an American man-of-war, which sends some men ashore to help patrol the city. Here Lady Sarah Annerley and Ralph Errol are closely brought together in a tale of inexcusable crime and wrong, which is told and then unravelled with a good deal of skill. The story all takes place in Europe—London, Paris, and Venice.

A story of the landed gentry of England. A proud old squire, his noble daughter, twenty-six years old, the lawyer and his wife, the holder of mortgages on the squire's property, and the hero, a retired soldier, are the characters. The author has not introduced the supernatural, but there is a hidden treasure and a cipher which leads to its finding that involve his customary imagination and intricate plot. The moral nature of a few of the characters is strangely warped. A match at pheasant shooting is of special interest.

Haggard, H. Rider. Mr. Meeson's will : a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 2+270 p. S. pap., 25 c.

"Meeson's" was the short title of one of the largest publishing establishments of Birmingham, England. There were three partners, but "Mr. Meeson" was the autocrat of the firm. It was he who drove the hard bargains with unfortunate authors, and who had thus built up the vast wealth of the concern. His sharpness in exacting the letter of his bond with Miss Augusta Smithers, whose first novel had proved a great success, is the incident upon which the novel turns. His nephew quarrels with him on account of his meanness, and is turned out of doors, and Miss Smithers sails for New Zealand, hoping to earn a living in a new capacity. The same vessel carries "Mr. Meeson" on business to Australia. There is a shipwreck and a casting away on a desert island, the people among the saved being Miss Smithers and Meeson. He is dying, and she reproaches him with his cruelty to his nephew ; he repents and wants to make a new will in his favor. How this will is made and how offered to probate is the unique feature of the book, and quite worthy the author of "She."

Hague, Parthenia Antoinette. A blockaded family ; life in southern Alabama during the civil war. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 5+176 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Told by a young woman who was school-teacher in Alabama from 1861 to the end of the war. She gives details of the hardships endured by the southern people, of their many makeshifts to obtain clothes and food, and of the freeing of the slaves and the gradual change in the conditions of southern life. The writer's father and brothers fought in the southern army. She believes that patriotism made the South secede and patriotism now makes it loyal to the stars and stripes.

One of the brightest and most promising of the Chautauqua summer schools is at Crete, Nebraska, under the direction of Secretary A. E. Dunning. In the guise of a story—the actors being a family who go to Crete and live in camp during the summer to enjoy the lectures and religious instructions—the author gives all details of what is done there.

Hale, E: Everett. How they lived in Hampton: a study of practical Christianity applied in the manufacture of woollens. Bost., J. Stilman Smith & Co., 3 Hamilton Place. 6+281 p. D. cl., $1.

Another contribution to the study of economic truths in the line of the author's "Tom Torrey's tariff talks." It may briefly be described as an essay in fiction on the Christian relations of the capitalist and the workman. In his story, "Back to back," published in Harper's Magazine in 1873, Mr. Hale blocked out a plan described in this book to conduct a woollen mill, the result of which was that he was invited by the proprietors of three different woollen mills to take them, and carry them on on the plan proposed. He did not feel equal to the task, because, as he says, "I was not trained to the woollen manufacture; "but in this book he makes a "Mr. Spinner" accept one of these offers with the happiest results in coöperative production. The details bearing on the business of manufacture are carefully described, and have, as the author claims, the authority of a well-known and successful manufacturer of woollens.

Hale, E: E. The man without a country; il. by F. T. Merrill. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1889 [1888.] c. 106 p. O. cl., $2 50.

Many graphic pictures interpret the story of Philip Nolan, suspected of treason, who wished he might "never hear of the United States again." His punishment was literally such as he asked for—he was sent aboard of an American man-of-war, but never again "heard of the United States"—no one being allowed to speak to him on this subject. The story was first published 25 years ago and had an immense sale. In its new illustrated shape, it should again obtain many readers. Page and text pictures adorn it, and handsome paper, print, and binding add to its attractiveness.

Hale, E: E. Mr. Tangier's vacations: a novel. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. 3-303 p. S. cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

Mr. Tangier is a lawyer, who, in true American fashion, overworks until one day he can think and drive no more. His physician orders a vacation. In a lovely New England village he finds a tempting spot. The author of "Ten times one" makes even an invalid lend a hand in making the world a brighter place to live in. Mr. Tangier becomes interested in the school, the church, the clubs for reading and working among the poor. In many bright conversations the lessons of unselfishness and responsibility are taught. A pretty thread of romance sets off the purpose of the story.

Hale, E: E. My friend the boss; a story of to-day. Bost., J. Stilman Smith & Co., 1888. c. 5+191 p. D. cl., $1.

John Fisher, the boss, is a rich man whose hobby is to improve the town in which he lives and to help the people about him, from the richest to the poorest, with sympathy, counsel, money, example, and appreciation. He has great musical talent, opens an academy of music, an academy of fine arts, a library, a hospital, etc., and makes the college town in which he lives wiser and better by his unselfish life. A thread of romance connects the thoughts on the duties and privileges of rich men.

The concluding volume of this work. It takes up the story of Franklin's life, after the battle of Yorktown, and illustrates the closing years of his residence in France from the original manuscripts in several large collections. With a few exceptions, none of these manuscripts, now published at length, were ever published before. The "Stevens collection," in the State Department at Washington, the American Philosophical Society's collection, the private collection of Hon. George Bancroft at Washington, that of the Adams family at Quincy, and the Sparks manuscripts at Cambridge have been freely drawn upon. All together they give the student such a view of the years covered by the narrative, as no single observer had while those years passed; they also throw new light on the points best established by history.

These papers were originally prepared for Good Housekeeping, and are now republished with many changes and additions. Several families living in one of the delightful suburbs of Boston inaugurated a series of evening entertainments to which each member of the company invited was required to come prepared with some game, story, riddle, or song for the amusement of the rest. These parties were known as fagot parties. The "fagots" brought to the social hearth are described in full and make a pretty volume.

Hale, Lucretia Peabody, and Bynner, Edwin Lassetter. An uncloseted skeleton. Bost., Ticknor & Co., [1888.] c. 100 p. T. bds., 50 c.

The motive of this little story is odd enough. Ralph Wheaton, a young Bostonian, of no great ability, accidentally has his head fractured and loses a portion of his brain. At the moment he is brought into the hospital Ludovic Radzinski, an eccentric Pole, is being operated upon for a supposed tumor in the head. The tumor, however, when the head is opened, turns out to be a surplus of brain. The German doctor has a brilliant idea, which he puts at once into practice—replacing Wheaton's loss by the Pole's surplus. Wheaton's after career is most startling. Influenced by the Pole's brain, he is brilliant and eccentric to a degree and commits many queer acts before the real reason for them is discovered. The little book is fastened with tapes, and gotten up in the same old-fashioned style of type and binding as "Penelope's suitors."

Hale, Mrs. Sarah J. Manners; happy homes and good society all the year round. [New issue.] Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1889 [1888.] c. '67. 2+377 p. D. cl., $2.

First published by J. E. Tilton & Co., 1867.

Hale, W: Gardner. Aims and methods of classical study. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. 47 p. S. pap., 20 c.

A reply to a pamphlet published by Prof. E. P. Morris, of Williams College, who claims that "we no longer study Latin in our schools in order to learn Latin; we study it and teach it with primary reference to the science of philology." The author, who is Prof. of Latin language and literature at Cornell University, agrees partially with the statement, but foresees a totally different future, in which the linguistics and literature of Rome shall again inspire the modern collegian.

Halévy, Ludovic. The Abbé Constantin; il. by Madame Madeleine Lemaire. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1888. 140 p. F. pap., $15.

An édition de luxe of this favorite tale, printed in Paris by Goupil et Cie., from the original photogravures. The pictures are rarely beautiful and illustrative of the text; both figures and scenes are apparently studies from life. The text, which comprises the whole novel, is in English. Bound in paper and enclosed in a sateen-covered portfolio.

Hall, A. D. La Tosca: a novel; founded on the play of the same name by Victorien Sardou. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1888. c. 223 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The scene is laid in Rome at the beginning of this century. La Tosca is a great singer and a beautiful woman. Her love for a young artist, Mario Cavaradossi, is the subject of the story. The book follows the play in all its details, even to the repulsive ending, when Scarpia, the regent of police, pretending to save La Tosca's lover from death and making an infamous bargain with her, is suddenly stabbed by her, in her rage.

As Ingersoll bases his denial of a personal God and other doctrines of revealed religion upon the impossibility of such beliefs being held by intellectual minds, the writer shows by skilfully selected quotations that so great a mind as Shakespeare's grasped the idea of God, a Redeemer, heaven, angels, the creation, etc. Daintily gotten up as a pamphlet, with colored cover design.

Hall, T: B. Treatise on patent estate; comprehending nature, conditions, and limitations of interest in letters-patent. Cleveland, O., Ingham, Clarke & Co., 1888. c. 240 p. D. shp., $3.

"Treating of unsettled patent law touching questions heretofore comparatively undeveloped and of vital concern. In seeking analogy to the technical estate in question, avail has been made of matter concerning estates of every description. Rules of real and personal property—Law of incorporeal rights—English reports—State decisions—Equity principles—Text-books—all are drawn from equally with Federal patent cases. A consideration, commensurate with their respective importance, has been given to the questions; finding, in instance: inventions to be incorporeal—property-right to rest in legal exclusion—profits to consist of moneys from such exclusion—partition to be had of a coöwned patent, by sale and distribution—part owners of a patent to be subject to account to one another—infringement to exist in independent action of a patent part owner—lawful use or sale not beyond selling grantee's territory."

First published in French in France in 1713. Gives a graphic picture of the dissolute court of Charles II. The present edition combines the excellences of all previous editions in notes, introductions, and illustrations; including historical portraits by Kneller, Lely, Scriven, Mrs. Jameson, etc. Twenty-six modern illustrations by Delort, recently published in Paris, are added. The celebrated "Windsor beauties" have been photogravured expressly for the book, and Mrs. Jameson's biographies of Mrs. Lawson, Lady Bellasys, and the Duchess of Portsmouth added to round off the original memoirs, which end abruptly. The publishers have made a handsome book.

Hamilton, J. A. Life of Daniel O'Connell. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. 6+224 p. D. (International statesmen ser.) cl., 75 c.

The great Irish agitator was the son of a gentleman of ancient family. He was born in 1775 and died in 1847, enfeebled by overwork and anxiety for Ireland, where his life-work had been the emancipation of the Roman Catholics. His biographer tells marvellous facts about his vast power of work and attention to detail. For thirty five years he was so much the first man in his country that in the eyes of the world he stood for Ireland. He was a great orator, a great politician, and an amiable and upright man.

The editor of these journals of the last days of the devoted first missionary bishop of Equatorial Africa has already published "The life and work of Bishop Hannington" in two large volumes. These selections from the diaries are illustrated from the bishop's sketches. They give a startling picture of the trials and sufferings from heat, hunger, danger, and exposure, before all was ended by murder.

Hardy, E: J. Faint, yet pursuing, and other sermons. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. 5–286 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Thirty-two sermons of which about half were originally preached to soldiers, the author holding the office of chaplain in the English army. His former volumes, "How to be Happy Though Married," and "Manners Makyth Man," showed his wide knowledge of human nature and keen sense of humor, and the same qualities make his sermons very readable. They are all short, practical, and full of good points.

Hare, A: J. C. Days near Paris. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1888. 4+359 p. il. D. cl., $2.50.

Descriptions of places of note which are near Paris, and directions for making excursions to them. The places described are in the order in which they encircle Paris, beginning with St. Cloud and Sèvres; following are Versailles, St. Germain, Rueil, Malmaison and Marly, Poissy and Mantes, St. Denis, Eughien and Montmorency, St. Leu Taverny, Ecouen, Chantilly and Senlis, Compiègne and Pierrefords, Nautouillet, Vincennes, Meaux, Fontainebleau, etc., etc. The book is on the same plan as "Walks in Paris"—the descriptions being supplemented by extracts from French histories and memoirs. The il. are from Mr. Hare's own sketches.

Hare, Augustus J. C. Walks in Paris. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1888.] 5+532 p. il. D. cl., $3.

To the numerous travellers and readers who have made use of Mr. Hare's interesting guide-books the plan of this, his most recent work, is quite familiar. Its plan is nearer to that of his "Cities of Italy" than any of the earlier books, as the descriptions of famous historical places are all his own. These descriptions are supplemented by numerous citations from French writers of history or memoirs, and also by extracts from celebrated novels. The wood-cuts are from his own sketches.

Hare, H. A. Questions and answers on the essentials of physiology prepared especially for students of medicine. Phil., W. B. Saunders, 33 S. 10th St., 1888. c. 10–170 p. il. D. (Saunders' question-books, no. 1.) cl., $1; interleaved, $1.25.

Not intended to supplant any of the text-books, but to give, as its title declares, the essence of those physiological facts with which the average student must be familiar. In the compilation the standard works of Landois, Yeo, Foster, Dalton, Chapman, Kirke, Flint, and Hermann have all been consulted.

Harland, H:, ["Sidney Luska," pseud.] My uncle Florimond. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 5–198 p. il. D. cl., $1.

Little Gregory, the hero, is introduced as an orphan, living with his uncle and grandmother, a dear old French lady of the old school, in Norwich, Conn. My uncle Florimond is the grandmother's brother, of whom from his earliest years Gregory makes a hero, although he has never seen him. After his grandmother's death he leaves his cruel uncle and comes to New York, where he meets with the kindest friends and protectors among Jews. The author again has opportunity to describe Jewish home life and also to introduce his knowledge of law. The story is charmingly told.

Harland, Marion, [pseud. for Mrs. M. V. H. Terhune.] A gallant fight. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1888.] c. 3+414 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Mrs. Richard Phelps, the wife of a well-to do judge living in an old New England manor-house adopts a young and beautiful girl. After this girl has been killed by a railway accident, in which the judge is also severely injured, Mrs. Phelps discovers a secret, which, for the good of all, she keeps, and her life for many years, during which the family travel to restore the judge's health, is one long, gallant fight with herself. She has a woman friend who plays a villain's part in first weaving and finally unravelling the plot.

How did Virgil look? What sort of a man was he? What kind of hexameter did he write? What did Cicero make all this fuss about? Who was this man Catiline? How may Cæsar's literary style be described?" The authorities given are all available. These pages are designed to tell the student as well as the teacher where to find answers in the briefest possible time.

Harris, Amanda B. American authors for young folks. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. '87. 8–280 p. D. cl., $1.

All lovers of books have a natural curiosity to know something about their writers, and the better the books the keener the curiosity. Miss Harris has written the various chapters of this volume with a full appreciation of the fact. She tells us about the earlier group of American writers, Irving, Cooper, Prescott, Emerson, and Hawthorne, all of whom are gone, and also of some of those who came later, among them the Cary sisters, Thoreau, Lowell, Helen Hunt, Donald G. Mitchell, and others.

The author was sent to China by the Missionary Society of the Methodist Church in 1865. For twenty-three years he has labored in China and acquired a thorough knowledge of the various dialects. The description of his visit to Mount Omei, the greatest centre of Buddhism in the world, is of great value. He relates that the entire precinct is full of art treasures, bronze images, and stone carvings all relating to that ancient faith. The account of the temple worship, the magnificent scenery and the swarming natives is written with enthusiam and is of much interest.

Harte, Bret. The Argonauts of North Liberty. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. 2+206 p. T. cl., $1.

The "Argonauts" are the two heroes of this powerful story, who go to California during the first excitement of the gold fever, which took possession of the former generation. North Liberty, Ct., a typical New England Puritan country-place of fifty years ago, is described with all the author's old-time genius of detail. The heroine, who under her icy, puritanical exterior hides a most unruly, unregenerate nature and sacrifices the two men who in her see all that is good and noble, is a creation. The narrow life ordered by cast-iron rule of North Liberty and the lawless life of California gold camps produce characters that act their parts in a drama full of telling situations.

Harte, Bret. A Phyllis of the Sierras; [also,] A drift from Redwood Camp. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. '87. 215 p. T. cl., $1.

Two stories of California in the author's well-known vein. The hero of the first is a young Englishman who is in search of health; his experience in the house of Jim Bradley, where an ill turn detains him several weeks, is interesting and amusing. "Louise Macy," whom he fancies he loves, "Minty" and "Richelieu" Sharpe and their father, the blacksmith, are extremely well-drawn character sketches. The second story is a tale of Indian revenge—its hero being one of the half-worthless fellows Bret Harte likes to draw.

Hartner, Eva. Pythia's pupils: a story for young girls; from the German by Mrs. J. W. Davis. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1888.] c. 2+309 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.25.

Tells the stories of a party of young German girls who have just left school. The scene is in Germany, and of course the glimpses we get of home-life are German. The girls' little pleasures, their young men friends who become their lovers and husbands, their efforts towards the highest culture of heart and mind, all form a pretty, readable story. The merry meetings of a cooking-class, from whose detailed doings the reader may gain a great deal of practical information, run all through the book.

Havergal, Maria V. G. Autobiography; with journals and letters ; ed. by her sister J. Miriam Crane. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1887. 4+336 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.
The subject of this volume was the sister of Frances Ridley Havergal, and the writer of the "Memorials" in her memory. It is fitting her beautiful and useful life should be told also, as it is fully and sympathetically by another sister, J. Miriam Crane. Some of her verses complete the work. They have the same grace and purity as those of her more famous sisters.

Hawkshaw, (pseud.) Blinky Morgan, the detective's foe. Chic., The Eagle Pub. Co., 1888. c. 217 p. D. (Globe detective ser., no. 5.) pap., 50 c.
Blinky Morgan was the best known alias of Charles Conklin, a noted "safe-blower," who owed this sobriquet to a nervous manner of twitching his eyelids. Blinky figures in the story as chief of a party planned to rescue a comrade, in the custody of Detectives Hulligan and Hoehn. The former officer is killed in the skirmish and the latter vows vengeance; he is assisted in procuring it by a mysterious woman, who furnishes him with valuable clues of Morgan and reveals her own identity. The characters are, with few exceptions, noted criminals or celebrated detectives.

Hawthorne, Julian. Another's crime ; from the diary of Inspector Byrnes. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 242 p. S. cl., $1.
A young man unjustly accused of a theft of twenty-five hundred dollars by a woman who has professed to love him is the chief figure. His career is ruined by the suspicion, and he escapes from New York before the affair comes to trial. He is reported to have been lost on a vessel he sailed away in, and his sister resolves to clear his memory of the stain that rests upon it. The usual detective work follows, with Inspector Byrnes as the prime mover of events.

Contains besides "David Poindexter," "Ken's mystery," "When half-gods go, the gods arrive," "Set not thy foot on graves," and "My friend Paton." They all have the mysterious morbid element characteristic of Julian Hawthorne's stories.

Hawthorne, Julian. A dream and a forgetting: a novel. N. Y. and Chic., Belford, Clarke & Co., 1888. D. cl., $1 ; pap., 50 c.

Hawthorne, Julian. The professor's sister : a romance. N. Y. and Chic., Belford, Clarke & Co., [1888.] c. 3–180 p. D. pap., 50 c. ; $1.
The professor, his sister, and his beautiful twenty-five-year-old stepmother, together with three American students of metaphysics in the University of Dresden, are the characters in this romance told by one of the latter. All the men have theories of matter, nature, future life, spiritism, occult science, electricity, etc. Jealousy between the two women leads to the death of the professor's sister, who after two years is raised from death by her brother by a process to which he has devoted his life. Her husband's ideas of intercourse between the dead and living are poetic.

Hawthorne, Julian. Section 558 ; or, the fatal letter; from the diary of Inspector Byrnes. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 246 p. S. cl., $1.
Under the name of "Maxwell Golding" an episode is given in the life of Jay Gould, the well-known New York stock-broker. Mr. Golding is persecuted with anonymous letters threatening his life, unless he makes reparation to a victim of one of his stock deals, who has lost his little fortune. Inspector Byrnes is called in to discover the author of the letters, the book being an account of his skilful detective methods, and his final success.

The family of a London solicitor, a Mr. Acland, are the characters, and the events of their lives form the story. Mr. and Mrs. Acland have each been married before and have each a child by the former marriage; besides there are two little ones of five and six. The step-children, "Dick" and "Margery" have a hard time of it, and soon leave home to manage for themselves. It is around Mrs. Acland the interest centres. There is a mystery in her past, and there is a man who has a power over her which leads her to rob her husband's safe to give her enemy money. This and an attempted murder on her part are the leading events; the others are the usual love-making and scenes from domestic life of the English novel.

Before "Mona" makes a final choice of which of two men she shall marry, she goes through quite a number of adventures. She had intended to marry Leslie Waring for his money to please her old grandmother, but her grandmother's sudden death gives her an opportunity to break this engagement. After some experience of poverty and a struggling life in London, she meets an old Scotch uncle she had never known before, who is good and loving to her and takes her back to his home. Here the two men who fancy her meet her again, and after a struggle all round her fate is decided. As in all "Mrs. Alexander's" works, the plot is subordinate to the clever conversations and graphic descriptions.

Dr. Hedge is widely known as one of the most accomplished of German students and unsurpassed as a translator of German prose and verse. Mrs. Wister has won great and enviable celebrity by her admirable translations of the popular stories of E. Marlitt and other famous German novelists, which under her skilful touch are better in translation than in the original. Dr. Hedge and Mrs. Wister have brought together in a tasteful little book the best German poems they have both translated into English verse, to which Dr. Hedge has added some excellent original poems.

Heimburg, W., [pseud. for Bertha Behrens.] Her only brother; from the German by Jean W. Wylie. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1888.] c. tr. 406 p. D. cl., $1.25.

When "her only brother" was fifteen years old, little Anne Marie was laid in his arms by his mother, and at her death-bed Klaus promised never to leave his sister. He sternly put aside love and marriage for her sake, and when she was nineteen she did the same for him. They lived in an old German castle with a dear old maiden aunt, whose diary furnishes the chief part of the tale. Her only brother has reached the ripe age of thirty-five when a little fairy sprite, selfish, pleasure-loving in all things, the opposite of his sister, dances and sings her way into his heart. The story passes over thirty years, and the life of Anne Marie's only brother is read by another generation at the cradle of another Klaus.

Helps, Sir Arthur. Casimir Maremma; a story. [New ed.] Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. 4+300 p. S. (Handy lib., no. 3.) cl., 75 c.

Published by this house in 1870. The hero was born in one of England's provinces in the East. His father was rich and devoted to antiquarian, physical, and metaphysical researches. His son was one of the most inquisitive of human beings. He learned many languages and many systems of philosophy, then travelled and studied humanity. He lived with the richest and poorest as their social equal, and finally formulated a plan of society, which he strove to carry out in a new country with a band of emigrants who accompanied him from all parts of Europe.

Henderson, I: Agatha Page: a parable. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 3–413 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.50.

Agatha Page is a violin virtuosa, who resides with her mother's brother, the Duke of Ricci, on the shores of Lake Como. She is introduced at the age of sixteen, after the death of her American father. Her cousin Mercede, the Duke's daughter, has married against her father's wishes and he has cast her off. Agatha hears that her cousin has been deserted by her husband, and after much trouble she prevails upon her uncle to take her home with her boy. But Mercede is proud and prefers to earn her own living as a sculptor. Agatha marries an attaché of the Roman court and goes to live there, devoting herself to all kinds of charities and plans tending to help women especially. Her husband does not share her philanthropic tastes and drifts into the toils of Mercede for a time. Agatha's love, faith, and wise patience finally make all things work together for good.

Twelve years have passed since the first edition of "Gardening for pleasure" was published. In that time vast studies and changes have been made in all departments of horticulture, so that it has been found necessary not only to greatly enlarge the scope of this work, but also to make many changes. The newest and best methods of culture have been substituted for such as a farther experience has shown to have been faulty, so that it is believed that in all matters pertaining to amateur gardening the ground is thoroughly covered.

Henry, Edgar. "89; edited from the original manuscript. N. Y., Cassell & Co., MDCCCXCI. [sic? 1888.] c. 18–498 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Ryal Owen, of Georgia, is supposed to have written the manuscript from which his friend compiles this history of Southern life during the Civil War and the feelings of Southerners who will live in the year "1889." The writer is supposed to have been Grand Master of a society called the Order of the Southern Cross, and by his efforts to have done much to build up the South, and after the presidential election of 1888 to have inaugurated an independent Southern republic. Fact and fiction are inseparably mixed in this peculiar story founded on a speculative theory. The author claims that South and North can never be united under a peaceful government.

"Much has been written on the structure of flowers, and it might seem almost superfluous to attempt to say anything more on the subject, but it is only within the last few years that a new literature has sprung up, in which the authors have described their observations and given their interpretations of the uses of floral mechanisms, more especially in connection with the processes of fertilization."—From Introduction.

Henty, G. A. Captain Bayley's heir : a tale of the gold fields of California. N. Y., Scribner & Welford, 1889 [1888.] 386 p. il. D. cl., $2.

A valorous deed of Frank Norris', his expulsion from Westminster, a sudden flight from England to America, his mode of gaining a livelihood, a wreck on the Mississippi, some daring adventures on the prairies, and a number of adventures in the California gold diggings are the minor incidents that surround the finding of "Captain Bayley's heir," and lend exciting element to a very good boys' book.

Henty, G. A. The cat of Bubastes : a tale of ancient Egypt ; il. by J. R. Weguelin. N. Y., Scribner & Welford, 1889 [1888.] 3–352 p. D. cl., $2.

"Captain Henty's story entitled 'The cat of Bubastes' is a representation of an epoch. The scene is laid in Egypt in the time of Thotmes III., and the author refers to Sir Gardner Wilkinson, and other writers on Egyptian matters, as his authorities for what may be called the antiquarian features of his story. This book is intended for the delectation and instruction of young people, and it is sufficient to say with regard to it, that it is written in Captain Henty's customarily entertaining vein."—*Phila. Henty, G. A. The lion of St. Mark's : a tale of Venice ; il. by Gordon Browne. N. Y., Scribner & Welford, 1889 [1888.] 384 p. D. cl., $2.

Some facts in Venetian history form a background for a fictitious hero. The son of an English trader becomes aware of a plot against Venice. Upon his manner of using this knowledge and rescuing the city from conspirators the story depends. The minor incidents are always exciting and sometimes romantic; they occur on the canals or lagoons that surround Venice. The mouth of "The lion of St. Mark's" plays an important part because of the usage which Francis Hammond puts it to. The characters are made up of men who made their mark in the history of Venice.

Heraclitus of Ephesus. The fragments of the work of Heraclitus of Ephesus on nature; tr. from the Greek text of Bywater; with an introduction, historical and critical, by G. T. W. Patrick. Balt., N. Murray, 1889 [1888.] 8+131 p. O. cl., $1.

The translator is prof. of philosophy in the State University of Iowa. So much has been written about the great philosopher who defined his system of life at Ephesus about 500 B.C. by such distinguished critics as Schleiermacher, Casselle, Zeller, Teichmuller, Schuster, etc., that the translator apologizes for adding still to the many volumes of conflicting opinions. Heraclitus is the Greek thinker most in accord with the thought of our century. Mr. Bywater, an acute English scholar of Oxford, made a complete edition of the Fragments of Heraclitus in 1877, from which the present writer translates.

Herbert, H: W:, ["Frank Forrester," pseud.] Poems of Frank Forrester, [Henry William Herbert] ; coll. and ed. by Morgan Herbert. N. Y., J: Wiley & Sons, 1888. c. 27+251 p. il. Q. bds. portfolio, $10. [Limited ed. of 250 copies.]

The first collection made of the poems of "Frank Forrester," the well-known author of numerous sporting novels and sketches and several excellent manuals of sport. Though dead now almost thirty years, his works still hold a place with lovers of this kind of literature. The poems evince the same passionate love of nature which characterizes his prose writings, and are refined and graceful. The work is handsomely gotten up on fine paper with very broad margins, and offered unbound in a pretty white portfolio. It is illustrated by many full-page views and portraits, taken from pictures in the collection of Mrs. Margaret Herbert Mather, of Somerset Co., N. J. There is an interesting introduction written by "Will Wildwood," [Fred. E. Pond, of Chicago.]

Hereafter (The). Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 1+123 p. D. cl., 60 c.; pap., [illegible].

The Boston Herald on Christmas day (1887) propounded the following question: "What are the strongest proofs and arguments in support of the belief in a life hereafter?" and afterwards printed short answers from twenty-three religious teachers, mostly Boston clergymen —including Unitarians, Catholics, and Jews. This material is republished in this little book.

Hereford, Elizabeth J. Rebel rhymes and other poems. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 5+78 p. D. cl., $1.

Dedicated to the Army of Northern Virginia, which for four years opposed "a constant front to the mighty concentration of power brought against it; which receiving terrible blows, did not fail to give the like; and which, vital in all its parts, died only with its annihilation." A collection of poems that cheered the Southern soldiers during their sufferings.

Herrick, Christine Terhune. Housekeeping made easy. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 7+313 p. S. cl., $1.

In a series of chapters which first appeared as separate weekly papers in Harper's Bazar, the young housekeeper is offered minute directions for the various branches of housework, beginning with directions for renting, furnishing, and settling the house, and engaging a maid. After this the routine for each day of the week is given, suggestions for the care of "closets and cubbies," the cellar, kitchen and pantry; for gathering up the fragments; marketing, house-cleaning, the family dressmaker, etc.

Herrick, Mrs. Sophia Bledsoe. The earth in past ages. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 7+241 p. il. sq. S. cl., 60 c.

An elementary treatise upon geology. Mrs. Herrick wins the attention of the young reader at the start by leading him to regard as data for science familiar facts not hitherto considered by him in this light; for example, the discovery of sandstone having a surface like that of sand rippled by the sea, or bearing the delicate imprint of sea-weed, or holding imbedded within it the remains of a star-fish or an exquisite shell. She next excites curiosity to know the meaning of these phenomena. The child, with imagination stimulated and guided by the author, feels that he is coöperating with her in tracing effects to causes, and experiences in a certain degree the pleasure of original discovery.

Heywood, Philip D. An ocean tramp. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 3–233 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

This is not a story in the general acceptance of the term, but a plain matter-of-fact narrative of the experiences of a country boy of seventeen, who ran away from home to go to sea, and who after an adventurous life of a dozen years came back to find his parents dead, the remainder of the family scattered, and the old homestead in ruins. One cannot help feeling that it is a record of genuine experience, so naturally do the incidents follow one another, and so skilfully are they wrought together.

Hill, D: J. The social influence of Christianity; with special reference to contemporary problems: The Newton lectures for 1887. Bost., Silver, Burdett & Co., 1888. c. 231 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The leading views regarding the nature of society, both ancient and modern, are comprehensively stated, traced in their development, and intelligently criticised from a scientific, Christian, and American point of view. The central ideas of Christianity, which the author carefully distinguishes from the Church, are admirably defined, and their influence upon society historically studied. After this more general treatment, the social relation of Christianity, considered as the influence of Jesus Christ, is elaborated in a brief, clear, and conclusive manner with reference to the contemporary problems of labor, wealth, marriage, education, legislation, and the repression of crime.

Mapleville represents a quiet, peaceful village with a bustle of prosperity, such as are found in numbers in the Eastern and Middle States. A child of four is left by a woman in a travelling show to the tender care of the innkeeper of the little town, an old motherly woman living with her grandson. He protects the little girl all through her young life, and finally suffers much to shield her from imaginary wrong-doing. A healthy story for young people.

History of the Corn Exchange regiment 118th Penn. vols.; from their first engagement at Antietam to Appomattox; to which is added a record of its organization and a complete roster; by the Survivors Assoc. Phil., J. L. Smith, 1888. c. 780 p. maps, pors. and il. O. cl., subs., $2.50; hf. tky. mor., $5.

It is nearly a quarter of a century since the 118th was disbanded, and before many years have rolled away there will be but few survivors of the old Corn Exchange Regiment left and those probably widely scattered. Feeling that a complete history of the events of its three years of service would be valued, not only by the members, but by their relatives and friends, the publisher commenced several years ago collecting material for this purpose. Everything connected with this volume, the portraits, illustrations, maps, etc., are new, and the work, in addition to being a full record of the regiment, contains many incidents of army life. It also includes a complete roster of the regiment, copied from the rolls of the War Department, giving the full record of each member.

Hitchcock, H. R. An English-Hawaiian dictionary; for the use of schools. San Francisco, The Bancroft Co., 721 Market St., 1887. 256 p. D. hf. roan, $2.

Hitchcock, Ripley. Important new etchings, by American artists; text by Ripley Hitchcock. N. Y., F. A. Stokes & Bro., 1888. c. no paging, F. cl., $7.50.

Contents: "The East river from Brooklyn," by C. A. Platt; "What o'clock is it?" by J. D. Smillie; "Lucille," by W. St. John Harper; "Uncle Remus and the little boy," by E. W. Kemble; "Tokens," by C. D. Weldon; "Sailing toy yachts in Central Park, March," by Otto H. Bacher; and "A political marriage," by J. A. Mitchell. Mr. Hitchcock writes a hopeful introduction on the future of etching. The cover design is a matting of bronze and green, with green corner medallions and gilt ornamentation.

Hitchcock, Ripley. Madonnas, by old masters; text by Ripley Hitchcock; ten new photogravures of masterpieces. N. Y., F. A. Stokes & Bro., 1888. c. no paging, F. hf. cl., $7.50.

The Madonnas selected are Raphael's "Madonna di San Sisto," "Madonna Della Sedia," "La Belle Jardinière," "Madonna Del Granduca," and "Madonna of the diadem;" Murillo's "Holy family" and "Immaculate conception;" Guido Reni's "Mater Dolorosa;" Holbein's "The Burgomaster Meyer Madonna;" and Correggio's "Madonna Della Scala." These can at any time be loosened from the binding and framed. Ripley Hitchcock has written an exhaustive essay. The book is chastely bound in white and brown matting with white parchment back and gilt.

Hitchcock, Roswell Dwight, D.D. Eternal atonement. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 6+306 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

The author was the president of the Union Theological Seminary, N. Y. City, and professor of church history for many years. The last sermon he preached gives the title to this volume. There are eighteen besides. He destroyed most of his manuscripts, retaining about thirty sermons, from which these are selected, as defining his personal views upon disputed questions of faith. Dr. Hitchcock was a strict Trinitarian and believed the verbal inspiration of the Bible. The vast amount of knowledge he acquired in his studies for his lectures never for one moment made him waver on any point of doctrine. He is said to have had strong personal magnetism, but his sermons also read well.

Dr. A. A. Hodge's sudden death left this volume incomplete. He had, however, written Pt. 1, the most important, which sets forth "what man is to believe concerning God." His cousin, Dr. J. Aspinwall Hodge, has endeavored to carry out his plan in preparing Pt. 2, which teaches "what duty God requires of man."

Hodgetts, J. F. Edwin the boy outlaw; or, the dawn of freedom in England. N. Y., T. Whittaker, [1888.] 3-391 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The date is the end of the 12th and beginning of the 13th century. The hero is Edwin Brand, and the story tells how he became an outlaw; of the daring deeds which made him an associate of the far-famed Robin Hood; how he was knighted; and, finally, how he gained his bride. The author claims in the preface that he has attempted to give a correct picture of a certain time in English history, and to represent Robin Hood "in his true light."

This little book is full of interesting facts about India, its people, its customs, its worship, its private and social life—the very things that really tell most concerning a country and yet the very things which most writers are apt to overlook. The author has long been a missionary resident in India, and is thoroughly familiar with the things of which she writes so pleasantly.

Holcombe, W: H., Condensed thoughts about Christian science. 3d ed. Chic., Purdy Pub. Co., 1887. c. 53 p. D. pap., 25 c.

"Christian science is a most fascinating study. Whether available or not in the cure of disease, its metaphysical and theological elements are exceedingly instructive and interesting. Involving the deepest questions of life, and therefore surrounded with mystery, it still must have a thoroughly scientific basis. I offer here no positive instructions upon this subject, but some hints, which may perhaps suggest some better explanations than have been yet presented, or at least may stimulate inquiry in the right directions."—Preface.

Holden, E: S. Handbook of the Lick Observatory of the University of California. San Francisco, The Bancroft Co., 1888. c. 135 p. il. and por. S. flex. cl., 75 c.

Dr. Edward S. Holden, the director of the observatory, gives a very complete though succinct account of the history of James Lick's great gift to science, and also furnishes a large amount of interesting information about the great telescope on Mount Hamilton, and other telescopes.

Holder, C: F: A strange company ; wonder-wings, mullingongs, colossi, etc. ; il. by J. Carter Beard. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 324 p. D. cl., $1.25.

No American naturalist of late years has written more comprehensively or entertainingly than Dr. Holder. In the present volume, prepared for young readers, he describes some of the more remarkable specimens of animal life and their peculiarities. Many of the facts he cites will be new to older readers. In a chapter devoted to the speech of animals, we are told how some of the noises made by insects are produced, undoubtedly for purposes of communication, and how birds, fishes, and animals convey intelligence one to another. In another chapter the sports and games of animals are dealt with. Other chapters are upon "Wonderful flyers," "Homes underground," "How animals protect themselves, "Giants," and "Feathered giants."

Holder, C: F: A frozen dragon, and other tales : a story-book of natural history for boys and girls; il. by J. C. Beard, D. C. Beard, and J. M. Nugent, from sketches by the author. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1888.] c. 6+285 p. sq. O. cl., $2.

The "frozen dragon" relates to an extinct species of the rhinoceros found in northern Russia some years ago. A land-slide exposed it to view, frozen in the earth as hard as stone, where it had probably been for thousands of years. The other stories are equally as interesting, being based upon the doings of various known animals, fishes, birds, etc., and upon the traits and habits of many extinct species. "The smallest circus in the world," telling of the performance of educated fleas, and "The left field in the Lincoln nine," having for a hero a dog who had a passion for base-ball, are extremely amusing chapters. The whole work is instructive together with being most entertaining.

Holding, Carlisle B. "Cash ;" or, number 19 : a story of real life. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt, 1888. c. 238 p. D. cl., 90 c.

Charlie Strong's father dies and leaves him a boy of eleven with his mother, who is forced to work for daily bread after a life of comparative ease. Charlie was started as "Cash" in a store, and met with many ups and downs. By good work and patience he fought his way to a good position. The writer says only the names are fictitious, the circumstances are real.

There are over sixty poems, some short and others of considerable length, in this dainty and prettily gotten-up volume. Some of the separate poems are quite tender and beautiful. As a whole, there is a naturalness, a delicacy and sweetness of sentiment, and a touching pathos, to say nothing of the rhythm pervading it, that cannot fail to commend the volume to all lovers of good poetry.

Hood, E. Paxton. The throne of eloquence: great preachers, ancient and modern. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1888. 6+479 p. O. cl., $2.

Rev. E. Paxton Hood was one of London's best known preachers. This volume was first issued in England in 1885, and has since been revised. It is full of anecdote and illustration. Some of the chapters treat of such themes as: The pulpit the throne of eloquence; False finery of the pulpit; But what is eloquence? Wit, humor and drollery in the pulpit; Live coals and dry sticks; The use and abuse of the imagination; and analyses of the characters of great preachers, such as St. Bernard; Jeremy Taylor; Alexander Waugh; James Stratten and Henry Melvil.

Hood, E. Paxton. The vocation of the preacher. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1888. 7+528 p. O. cl., $2.

On June 12, 1885, while busy on this volume, which was the second of a series he had in contemplation upon pulpit work and workers, the author suddenly died. His wife very touchingly explains the circumstance in the dedication of "The throne of eloquence" to Rev. Chas. H. Spurgeon. She completed the work and has apologized for her possible shortcomings in a pathetic preface. In his first chapter, called "The instinct for souls," this earnest preacher has formulated his ideas of the requisite endowments for the vocation of a preacher.

"Little people" is the name under which the fairies are known to the Indians. The fairies treated of in this story are butterflies, crickets, grasshoppers, beetles, fireflies, ants, flies, bees, spiders, and all the inhabitants of the air which do such marvellous things. The pictures make many facts clear to the young people, for whom this department of natural history is treated in a poetical and artistic manner.

Hopkins, Alphonso A. The life of Clinton Bowen Fisk; with a brief sketch of John A. Brooks. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1888. c 10+295 p. por. D. cl., $1.

This biography of Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, Presidential nominee of the Prohibition party, prepared (with the General's approval) by Prof. Hopkins, who has enjoyed free access to all the General's private papers, is very accurate and complete. It is the record of a self-made man; the biography of a typical American life; a charming story, reaching from the log-cabin of a pioneer to positions of national honor. Contains also a short biography of John A. Brooks, the Vice-Presidential nominee of the Prohibition party.

Hopkins, Miss I. T. Judge Havisham's will. N. Y., American Tract Soc., [1888.] c. 311 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.25

The will found upon the death of Judge Havisham was dated some years before his death. By it he made two young nephews equal heirs with his only daughter. The daughter knows her father had made some additions to the will and insinuates to the boys that his plans for them had changed. Wynt and Cyp immediately leave the house and go to work. After the usual trials of business life Wynt stands high with his employers. By accident the missing codicil is found, which in no way changes the old will.

Hopkins, Mark, jr. The world's verdict: a novel. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 355 p. D. cl., $1.50.

It is at Paris and Nice that almost all the events of this story happen. The chief characters are the Harding family, father, mother, "Leslie" the daughter, and "Fred," a young nephew. In Paris they meet an old friend, Stanley Munroe, who is, like themselves, rich and American. Through him they get to know Serge Tolofski, a Russian artist, and his sister "Illyne." These two Russians have a story which only comes out after a double love affair has progressed almost to the end between the four young people. It is this secret which holds the fate of all in the balance for a time. French student life is well sketched.

Hopkins, Selden R. A young prince of commerce: a penniless boy's fortune. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1888. c. 252 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.25.

Besides a pleasant story which all boys will enjoy, Mr. Hopkins offers a fund of information on business matters, cleverly sandwiched in between the incidents, which gives a clear understanding of the principles of trade. When the boy closes the book he knows the character of mortgages, notes, drafts, stocks, and bonds; the theory of banking, discount, exchange, and collateral; he learns all about the mysteries of Wall Street and how the brokerage business is conducted; in fine, he gets an excellent understanding of the way business is carried on in general.

Horace. Eight songs from Horace, ed. by G: E. Vincent. N. Y., F: A. Stokes & Bro., 1888. c. on parchment-paper, in a cylindrical box, $2.

An attempt to reproduce with all possible exactness a Roman book of the classic period. This facsimile of an old Latin ms. is in the shape of a scroll of heavy parchment-paper, wound about a wooden cylinder with a white enamelled knob at each end, and tied with a leather thong. The first eight pages are lithographed, and consist of a title-page in Latin, together with one of the rude, colored portraits of Horace, such as adorned the more pretentious volumes of the Roman bookseller, and followed by eight characteristic songs of the genial society poet of the time of Augustus. These are printed side by side in the Latin, being followed by the translations on the end of the scroll.

Intended for use in the class-room. The notes are intended not so much to aid the student in the study of the Latin language as in the study of Horace—what he meant, how he felt, and what prompted him to write as he did. The notes are put at the bottom of the page to facilitate reference.

Hosmer, H. L. Bacon and Shakespeare in the sonnets. San Francisco, The Bancroft Co., 1887. c. 5–302 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The writer finds a complete history of the lives of Bacon and Shakespeare in the sonnets credited to Shakespeare; also evidence of a contract between the two authors by which Shakespeare assumes, for certain reasons, the authorship of what the writer considers Bacon's works. An explanation is also offered of the hidden meaning of the plays. The sonnets are quoted in full and carefully analyzed.

Young Sir Henry Vane was one of the most interesting and noteworthy figures in the early colonial history of Massachusetts. He was also intimately connected with the leaders of the Commonwealth in England. Professor Hosmer, whose excellent book on "Samuel Adams" is one of the notable volumes in the series of American Statesmen, has made a prolonged and exceedingly careful study of the career and times of Vane, examining minutely the full records in the British Museum, and has produced a book of great biographical and historical interest. It is, as few books could be, of almost equal interest to Englishmen and Americans, and will serve to bring out into clearer relief one of the most striking and admirable characters of a memorable era.

"From time to time," says the Phila. Press, "we have noted the charm of Mr. E. H. House's story of 'Yone Santo, a child of Japan,' which has been running as a serial in the Atlantic Monthly. It was the merest thread of a tale—relating the miseries of a beautiful Japanese girl who, married to a vulgar native brute, learns to love an unscrupulous American, but is saved from sinning by the interposition of the narrator. The sweet simplicity of Yone's character, the hypocrisies of the mission people, the glimpses of Japanese scenery and society, make up the interest of the story."

Howe, E. W. A man story. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1889 [1888.] c. 380 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The title means that this is a story of a man, Tom Saulsbury, who is living a double life all through the book, being the husband of two women. There is some excuse for his apparently unprincipled conduct, which Mr. Howe eloquently sets forth. Like "The moonlight boy" and "The story of a country town," this is a novel of character more than of incident. Outside of the entanglements of "Uncle Tom" and the mystery of his two families, there is no plot. Some of the characters are elaborately described and are quite amusing, such as the narrator's grandfathers, "Number one" and "Number two," and his father, the "Boomer."

Judge Kilburn and his daughter Annie had lived eleven years in Rome, when the Judge died, and Annie felt it her duty to return to the old homestead in Massachusetts, and look life seriously in the face, and do her duty to her neighbor. Annie's return to the narrow village life and primitive ways of her countrwomen, after the larger, broader life she has lived in Italy, is well depicted, and her disappointment and ennui admirably described. A little plot, in which a love affair is involved and some excellent character sketches introduced, gives a most excellent picture of New England life in a manufacturing town.

This burlesque on light opera has been put to music and is published by A. P. Schmidt & Co., with piano accompaniment. The scene is an ocean steamer. The heroine has been taken on board by her mother to get her away from the hero, who has shipped as "Love's stowaway." Miss Muriel, reclining on her steamer chair, has a dream in which the ship meets an iceberg inhabited with fairies, who add to the songs, plot, and general merriment. Some of the songs, although "pulled in by the ears," as our French neighbors say, are full of fun and satire.

N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. '87. 17+1023 p. il. O. cl., $5.75; shp., $6.75.

The literature of personal adventure and daring of all time has been searched by the editors in the compilation of this handsome volume. The sole object in making it was to send out a book that young and old would find entertaining, and at the same time instructive. No page can be turned to without the attention being claimed at once by a thrilling narrative, which has the great merit also of being authentic. The material is arranged geographically, and in each division the editors have given the narrative a chronological sequence, "so that the volume is in some sort at once a map and a history, fragmentary, of course, but useful to any reader wishing to place in time and space the great adventurers whose names occur in the stories of nations." Profusely illustrated.

Hubbell, Walter. The curse of marriage: a true story of domestic life. N. Y., The American News Co., 1888. c. 224 p. il. and por. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The scene of this story is laid in New England, the action being principally in an old homestead near Boston, and in the adjacent country. During the civil war the owner of this ancient house served his country on the battlefield, and it was during his absence that several horrible murders were committed, one of the victims being his beautiful little daughter, who was only six years of age. The whole country was aroused in consequence of these heinous crimes, and in the blindness of human passion an innocent man was made to suffer. Finally, after the death of the soldier-father in a rebel prison, his ghost returned to the old New England home, and by the most thrilling and wonderful supermundane effects proved to a clergyman and physician of the highest standing in the community, that the real and unsuspected murderer had been born with a mania for blood and slaughter, caused by antenatal maternal influences, all of which was afterward fully corroborated by the strongest material evidence, including a verse in the family Bible.

"'Esther, the Gentile.' is a story of life in Salt Lake City. It is told with a simplicity, a directness, and an intensity of feeling that make it seem like an autobiography. It does not deal in murders or the atrocities of blood atonement and the Danites; they are only incidentally alluded to; but it is one of the most powerful and terrible pictures of polygamy that has been drawn by any writer of fact or fiction. The author calls Utah the 'empire of legalized heart-breaking.' She indulges in no angry invective, but she shows how all that is noble in man and all that is best in woman is debased and ruined by the destruction of true family relations."—Boston Post.

The aim of this monograph is to present as simply and practically as possible some of the advanced methods of teaching English grammar and English composition in the secondary schools. The author has kept constantly in mind the needs of those teachers who, while not giving undivided attention to the teaching of English, are required to take charge of that subject in the common schools. The defects in existing methods and the advantages of fresher methods are pointed out and the plainest directions given for arousing and maintaining an interest in the work and raising it to its true place in the school curriculum.

Hullah, Mary E. In hot haste. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1888. 3+296 p. S. (Leisure hour ser., no. 217.) cl., $1; pap., 30 c.

Although coming from an English source, this novel is so German in thought and setting that it might be a translation. It opens in a small German village during the Franco-Prussian war, and though we get scarcely a scene from the campaign, the story is colored by its events. Sabine von Vogelheim, the heroine, is the one who gives the title to the book. Her marriage "in hot haste" to Kurt von Weide, of Pomerania, is originally conceived and daringly carried out. The motive for the marriage is the mystery of the book, held back to the last page. Sabine is always the central figure. First her home life is charmingly described with its German surroundings; then she is a governess in an English family outside of London and finally a society belle as Kurt's wife.

Humes, Rev. T: W: The loyal mountaineers of Tennessee. Knoxville, Tenn., Ogden Brothers & Co., 1888. c. 400 p. il. O. cl., $2.

The gentleman who writes this book, Dr. Humes, was for twenty years Rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, at Knoxville, and for eighteen years President of East Tennessee University. He was a loyal Union man all through the late war and witnessed in East Tennessee the scenes which he describes. The loyalty of a large portion of the people of East Tennessee to the Union during the war, through persecutions and hardships is one of the thrilling chapters of that history never before written. We have it here from an eye-witness, written with a clearness and vividness that charm the reader. The volume begins with a brief description of the early history of East Tennessee and the struggles and trials of its early settlers, afterwards giving an historical account of the peculiar political and military situation of East Tennessee immediately preceding and during the secession of some of the states. This is followed by a vivid and thrilling recital of political and military events as they occurred, soon after; interspersed with personal recollections and incidents of individual heroism, suffering, and daring.

Humphrey, E: P., D.D. Sacred history from the creation to the giving of the law. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1888. c. 13+540 p. O. cl., $2.50.

Dr. Humphrey, who was one of the clear-headed, strong, good men of the Presbyterian Church, died on the 9th of December, 1887, just after he had completed his manuscript and made all arrangements with the present publishers for its publication. Dr. Humphrey was led to write this view of sacred history at the repeated suggestion of clergymen who have been his pupils. He shows ripe scholarship and vast reading on a most catholic plan. To him science and religion offer no conflict and he faces and refutes all argument without any signs of hedging or any policy in choice of words. Suited to lay readers. Index to texts quoted arranged in the order of the books of the Bible.

Hurlbert, W: H: Ireland under coercion: the diary of an American. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 21+475 p. D. cl., $1.75.

William Henry Hurlbert will be recalled as an American journalist of great prominence in New York some years back. In the first half of this year he made a series of visits to Ireland to endeavor through actual observation to throw some light upon the many social and political problems now disturbing it. His views are all rose-colored, and against the accepted ones generally. He did not find the country, as a whole, either misgoverned or ungovernable; nor did he discover any outward and visible signs of grinding misery, such as he saw in Belgium. His observation of the working of so-called "coercion" does not carry out the statements of the Nationalists, nor have his visits made him strongly in favor of "home rule."

Hurlbut, Rev. Jesse L., and Simpson, Rev. H: M. Lesson commentary on the International Sunday-school lessons for 1889. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt, 1888. c. 262 p. il. and maps, O. bds., $1.25.

This work began its history with the Berean lessons for 1872 as the "Lesson Compend," prepared by Rev. J. H. Vincent and Rev. G. H. Whitney, and has been continued upon substantially the same plan, though enlarged and improved, until the present time. It does not design to give the original thoughts of its editors, but to present the results of the best thinkers upon the lessons of the year.

This volume is a continuation of an earlier one in the same series entitled "The misrule of Henry III.," also compiled by Dr. Hutton. Here he takes up the tale of opposition to royal misgovernment which was there begun and carries it to its conclusion in the revision of the constitution by the ban of Kenilworth. The extracts are from the writings of Robert of Gloucester Matthew Paris, William Rishanger, Thomas of Wykes, and others. The aim has been not simply to select the more brilliant passages from the chronielers, but rather to show how the men of the time lived and acted and thought.

Hyde, Mary F. Practical lessons in the use of English for primary and grammar schools. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1887. c. 10+116 p. D. cl., 35 c.

Consists of a series of practical lessons, designed to aid the pupil in his own use of English, and to assist him in understanding its use by others. No topic is introduced for study that does not have some practical bearing upon one or the other of these two points The pupil is first led to observe certain facts about the language, and then he is required to apply those facts in various exercises.

Hyde, Mary F. Practical lessons in the use of English for grammar schools; Book 2. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1888. c. 11+226 p. D. cl., 54 c.

The compiler is a teacher of composition in the State Normal School, Albany, N. Y. Her aim is to teach pupils to think clearly and formulate their thoughts into language which they are to be taught to speak and write correctly. Selections from some of the best writers are introduced, that from them the pupil may learn certain facts about the English language and also form a taste for good literature. A very useful part of the book relates to letter-writing and devotes twenty-three lessons to the various kinds of letters that must be written at one time or another by every person who claims to be educated.

Ibsen, Henrik. The pillars of society, and other plays; ed. with an introduction, by Havelock Ellis. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. 28+315 p. S. (Camelot ser.) cl., 40 c.

Ibsen is a Norwegian poet and dramatist, born in 1828. Of the three dramas presented in this volume, viz., "The pillars of society," "Ghosts," and "An enemy of society," only the last had been previously translated into English. The author is noted for his satire and liberal opinions, which he incorporates in his works. In the first drama his editor tells us he "pours delicious irony on those conventional lies which are regarded as the foundations of social and domestic life." "Ghosts," said to be the greatest of all Ibsen's plays, "is the tragedy of heredity." The last is a social drama.

India, pictorial and descriptive; by the author of "The Mediterranean Illustrated." N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1888. 6–271 p. il. Q. cl., $4.

A contribution towards the end of diffusing trustworthy information about England's vast Eastern dependency. It is a book of description, not of criticism. The religions and government of India are pictures as they exist without political or sectarian comment. It is profusely illustrated, and although written to quicken an anxiety in English people to promote the welfare of their far-off fellow-subjects, it is full of matter of universal interest.

It is a strange fact that twenty-seven years have elapsed since the death of a writer of the eminence of Mrs. Browning, and this concise biography should be the first that has appeared. The author has been at great pains to verify every statement he makes, as much of the material hitherto given to the world has been proved unreliable. He gives a list of his authorities. His estimate of Mrs. Browning as woman and poet shows fine human and literary feeling. His quotations from her writings are aptly selected, and his work will be valued by cultured readers.

Iron, Ralph, ["Olive Schreiner," pseud.] The story of an African farm: a novel. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. 3–375 p. S. (Handy lib., no. 1.) cl., 60 c.

A fresh unconventional story of South African colonial life. The writer's style is not only original, but his subject is almost wholly new in fiction. He is so realistic that there can be no doubt the material has been drawn from experience or observation. The picture of Tant, Sannie, the Boer-woman, whom an Englishman, dying, marries that she may take care of his little ones and his farm, is a graphic delineation. "Em" and "Lyndall," the little English girls, the German overseer and his son "Waldo," are all characters full of force and a new interest. The descriptions take in not only the outside workings of an ostrich farm, but also the home life. Pathos and humor are both to be found within the book's limits.

Iron, Ralph, ["Olive Schreiner."] The story of an African farm: a novel. N. Y., G: Munro, [1888.] 237 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1120.) p. 20 c.

These sketches were written more than fifty years ago. Portions of them at first appeared in a New York newspaper and were so widely copied that the author collected them, and added enough narrative to explain the object of the expedition. In the introductory account, written in 1835, the author explains that he was sent with the United States Indian Commissioner to study the rights and wrongs of the Indians and to advise with the Government as to their future. Gives many new details about this native race.

John, Eugenia, ["E. Marlitt," pseud.] The Owl's Nest: a romance; from the German by Mrs. A. L. Wister. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. c. tr. 3–362 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The last descendant of the ancient family of Geroldshas had ruin overtake him in the opening chapter, and is turning his back forever, with his little girl, upon Geroldscourt, which is in the auctioneer's hands. The only refuge left him is the Owl's Nest, a small picturesque property belonging to his beautiful sister, Claudine, who has resigned her position as maid-of-honor at the ducal court to preside over their humble home. Claudine's story takes up the larger portion of the book. The Duke has conceived a passion for her which annoys and distresses her deeply. She is the Duchess' closest friend, besides loving another, who does not always trust her as thoroughly as she deserves. There is an intense strain of passion all through the book, alternating with charming scenes of German home-life and well-delineated pictures of courts and court intrigue.

Johnson, Miss K. H. Peace; il. by E. L. H. Chic., C. H. Whiting, 1888. c. 17 p. il. obl. Tt., torchon, ribbon-tied, 25 c.

Johnson, Rossiter. A short history of the war of secession, 1861–1865. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 14+552 p. O. cl., $3.

As Mr. Johnson says in his preface: "Current literature abounds in minute studies of the separate campaigns and engagements, most of them purely military and many of them exceedingly valuable; but the reader finds no ready answer to his question, How did it happen that the war took place at all, what was its general course, and what were the motive forces that brought it on, prolonged it, and finished it?" To answer this question within the compass of a single compact volume is the purpose of this work. It is an admirable résumé, told in a rapid, picturesque style, which gives the reader a perfect picture of the period, and also the feeling and spirit of the time. The narrative is "easy reading," as the author intended it should be, and is unincumbered by many foot-notes and references.

Johnston, R: M. Mr. Absalom Billingslea and other Georgia folk. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. '87. 7+414 p. il. S. cl., $1.25.

Short stories by the author of the "Dukesborough Tales," each aiming to illustrate some phases of old-time rural life in middle Georgia. The author says he has also "tried to show how superior was the character to what might have been expected from the dialect of the people." These sketches have all appeared in the leading magazines. A few of the titles are "The brief embarrassment of Mr. Iverson Blount," "Martha Reid's lovers," "Dr. Hinson's degree," "The hotel experience of Mr. Pink Fluker," etc., etc.

Johonnot, Ja., comp. Stories of other lands. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 232 p. il. D. (Historical ser., Book 3, pt. 2.) bds., 47 c.

Designed as a supplementary reader. The stories are grouped as "Stories of Spain," "Stories of France," "Stories of Central Europe," "Stories of Britain," "Stories of artists," "Stories of science and industry," "Miscellaneous stories." The stories of the different lands are well-known historical sketches. In addition are sketches of Raffaelle and Michael Angelo, and of Sir Isaac Newton, William Caxton, George Stephenson, and "the Blackburn farmer."

Jones, Alonzo T. The abiding Sabbath and the Lord's day; the $500 and $1000 prize essays: a review. Oakland, Cal., Pacific Press Pub. House, 1888. 3–173 p. S. pap., 20 c.

A review of two essays published in 1884 and '85 by the American Tract Soc. and the American S. S. Union. The one is called "The abiding Sabbath," by Rev. G: Elliott, the other "The Lord's day," by A. E. Waffle. They received respectively prizes of $500 and $1000. They seek to uphold the sacredness of the first day of the week as the Sabbath. Mr. Jones believes the seventh day of the week is the Sabbath, and makes many quotations from the books reviewed, which he considers sustain his argument.

Jones, C: C., jr. Negro myths from the Georgia coast, told in the vernacular. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 9+166 p. S. cl., $1.

"Buh Rabbit," "Buh Bear," "Buh Wolf," and other animals are the speakers, their quaint stories recalling Mr. Harris' ("Uncle Remus") work in a similar field. But Mr. Harris devoted himself chiefly to the folk-lore of Middle Georgia, the present author reproducing the dialect and myths of the swamp-region of Georgia and the Carolinas. The legends are not only humorous but full of wisdom.

Three young men lose government clerkships owing to a change in political parties. They start for the Sandwich Islands to try their fortune, are wrecked, and are introduced to the reader floating in the Pacific Ocean. They reach an island where they are immediately married by three beautiful native girls and lead lazy, careless lives, spending most of their time in conversations on religion, politics, customs, manners, etc. They hold rather radical views and call a spade a spade unhesitatingly.

Kane, Ja. J. Ilian; or, the curse of the old South Church of Boston: a psychological tale of the late civil war. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. c. 368 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Story opens in Boston in 1840. Prof. Homerand leaves the girl he has promised to marry, a wealthy South Carolinian, and marries for the sake of a professorship at Harvard. The Southerner vows vengeance. Twenty-one years after, during the civil war, her daughter, in the Southern secret service, gets Adrian, the professor's son, into her meshes, makes him fight on the Southern side, and through life keeps him in suspense. Both Adrian and Ilian are subject to spiritualistic visitations. The author is chaplain in the United States Navy.

Kay, D: Memory: what it is, and how to improve it. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 26+334 p. D. (International education ser., no. 8.) cl., $1.50.

Many years ago, Mr. Kay contributed an article on "Mnemonics" to the 8th ed. of the "Encyclopædia Britannica;" and since that time, and indeed before, the subject of memory has had for him a special interest. The more he studied systems of mnemonics, the less satisfactory did he find them to be. It was only when he came to view the subject in connection with the facts of physiology that he arrived at what he believes to be a right understanding of it. Hence, he devotes much space to the physiological side of the question, showing the close and intimate connection that subsists between mind and body. His statements are supported by copious quotations from the literature of the subject.

Keats, J: Endymion; il. by W: St. John Harper. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, 1888. c. 140 p. 12×16 in., satin, $15.

One of the finest books of the season. Exquisitely illustrated in numerous full-page and text-pictures, reproduced in photogravures from Mr. St. John Harper's paintings, and beautifully printed in tints. The paper, printing, binding—in yellow satin and gold—are all one could desire. From an art side, the book is a notable one, in originality, grace, and finish.

Kebbel, T. E. Life of Lord Beaconsfield. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. 13+220 p. D. (International statesmen ser., ed. by Lloyd C. Sanders.) cl., 75 c.
The "Statesmen series," of which this is the first volume, will not comprise any American statesmen. It claims, however, to be extremely catholic in its scope, embracing biographical studies of the great men who have influenced the political history of the world, both among the ancients and moderns and on the continent, as well as in Great Britain and her dependencies. The studies are brief and meant for rapid reading. In the preparation of this sketch of Beaconsfield much new material was gathered together relative both to his public and private life. Volumes are being prepared on "The Prince Consort," "O'Connell," "Prince Gortschakoff," "Gambetta," and others equally famous.

Keddie, Henrietta, ["Sarah Tytler," pseud.] The Blackhall ghosts. Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1888. 3+313 p. D. (The illustrated ser., no. 6.) pap., 50 c.
An old estate in the moorland country of Devonshire has been allowed to run to decay through the brutality and neglect of its owner and his weak, silly, sinful wife. The oldest daughter persuades her mother to leave her father's house and emigrate to the antipodes with her. After many years a stranger appears on the old Blackhall estates, becomes a power for good, and in the end lays the Blackhall ghosts and discovers that in spite of her whitened hair her best life has but just begun.

Kennedy, J. H. Early days of Mormonism ; Palmyra, Kirtland, and Nauvoo. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 6+275 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.
The author is editor of the Magazine of Western History. His material has been gathered through years of unusual opportunity. He has told the history of Mormonism, leaving the issues that make Mormonism one of the problems of the age to those who have studied it from the moral, religious, or political standpoint. Salt Lake is now so identified with the Mormons, that their early struggles and persistent growth in the settlements at Palmyra, N. Y., Kirtland, O., and Nauvoo, Ill., are almost unknown history to the present generation. Gives vivid character sketches of Joseph Smith, whom he calls the bodily force, Sidney Rigdon, the intellect, and Martin Harris, the financial foundation of Mormonism in its cradle-days, before Brigham Young, in 1852, introduced polygamy as one of the articles of its creed, the one upon which, most erroneously, the system is now generally supposed to be founded. No attempt is made at argument. It is careful, dispassionate, historical writing.

Kenney, Minnie E. Bernie's light. N. Y., American Tract Soc., [1888.] c. 272 p. il. S. cl., $1.10.
Bernie Allen's life had been nothing but ignorance and darkness until the day she wandered into a mission school and heard the children singing:

"Jesus bids us shine
With a clear pure light,
Like a little candle
Shining in the night.
In this world of darkness
We must shine;
You in your small corner,
And I in mine."

Bernie's small corner was Ragman's Alley, and the story tells how she adapted the words of the hymn to her own needs, and followed literally the advice about her light until she accomplished startling results.

Kercheval, G: Truman. Lorin Mooruck, and other Indian stories. Bost., J. Stilman Smith & Co., 1888. c. 8+96+27+21 p. D. cl., 75 c.

"Three men of Wallowa" and "Samuel, an Arapahoe," are the other stories. E. E. Hale writes an introductory note saying that the incidents described are substantially true, and Bishop Whipple, of the P. E. Church, writes a preface. He says the reform in the Indian policy of the United States "needs and must have the best efforts and wisest care of the largest-hearted men of the nation, or the last state will be worse than the first." All three stories are sad.

Voluminous histories of Presbyterianism have been written covering every age and country in which that church has had existence. The author now aims in one work to give an outline of the principles, influence, and general history of this far-reaching religious institution, in the hope that the many will note its most important events and characters. The notes and statistic tables at the end are very full. Frontispiece of John Calvin.

King, C: The deserter; [also.] From the ranks: two novels. Phil., The J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. c. '87. 324 p. sq. D. pap., 50 c.

"The deserter" appeared in May, "From the ranks" in December, 1887, as the complete novels in Lippincott's Magazine for those months. Both stories are laid in Colorado and give vivid pictures of life on the Indian frontier. The author of "The colonel's daughter" has studied the intrigues, jealousies, and romances of army life on the spot and draws life-like portraits of favorite officers and men, of overbearing captain's wives and sisters, and describes the monotonous camp-life and its sudden dangers truthfully.

King, C: A war-time wooing: a story. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 4+195 p. il. D. cl., $1.

Based upon an incident common enough during the late war. A young girl, a member of a "Soldiers' Aid Society," places her name and address in a "Havelock" she has just made and is sending out for the soldiers' use. The result is a correspondence and an exchange of photographs, the young girl's heart becoming warmly interested in her unknown correspondent. The story is redeemed from the commonplace through the fact that a young officer's name and picture have been used in the affair by a jealous rival to weaken his influence with a woman they both love. The young girl, Bessie Warren, who has been made the victim of this plot, is almost broken-hearted when it is revealed to her. The story ends well, however, and the villain is unmasked and punished. Zogbaum illustrates the story with a number of full-page pictures of unusual merit.

King, Grace. Monsieur Motte. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1888. c. 5–327 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A story of French creole life in Louisiana. Opens in a boarding-school on the day before the charming heroine is to graduate. She is supposed to have been kept at school for thirteen years by an uncle, "Monsieur Motte," who on the day of her graduation proves to have been a myth invented by her old nurse, a quadroon woman. This woman, after being made free, has made a fortune as a hair-dresser. Marcelle remains with her teacher, a well-drawn character, and afterwards the romantic element enters her life, the mystery of her coming into the possession of the quadroon is solved and all ends happily. The author shows a keen sense of humor, and its closely allied quality, pathos.

King, Harriet Eleanor Hamilton. The disciples. 9th ed. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] 2+319 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A poetical history of Mazzini and his followers in their struggles for a free Italy. It consists of the overture and four books. Book 1 is called "Jacopo Ruffini;" 2, "Ugo Bassi;" 3, "Agesilao Milano;" 4, "Baron Giovanni Nicotera." Each book is a personal narrative of participators in the Italian insurrections of 1833, 1848, and 1858.

King, Rufus. Ohio, first fruits of the ordinance of 1787. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 5+427 p. map. D. (American commonwealths.) cl., $1.25.

Ohio, now the third state in population, was admitted as one of the United States in 1803, and is therefore the seventeenth state in order of time. Mr. King devotes himself largely to the earliest period after the enactment of the Ordinance of 1787. He gives a good account of the services of Ohio during the Rebellion, and has chapters on the Moravians, early settlers, and progress in the public schools. Mr. King's views on some public men may lead to argument, but be has his subject well in hand and has added an interesting volume to this valuable series.

N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. 6+608 p. D. hf. mor., $1.75.

Contains nearly 6000 quotations in alphabetical order, with an "Index of quotations not occurring in their alphabetibal order," an "English subject index," and a catalogue of authors and works quoted. Two special features of the book may be mentioned. The first is that, in order to secure strictly verbal accuracy, each quotation has been carefully verified by reference to the best available edition of the author's work whence it is taken. The second is that to every quotation is appended a reference to the author, work, and place of the passage cited.

Kinglake, Alex. W: Invasion of the Crimea; its origin and an account of its progress down to the death of Lord Raglan. In 6 v. V. 5. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 3–242 p. maps, D. cl., $2.

This, the last volume but one of Kinglake's graphic story of the Crimean war, is devoted entirely to the siege of Sebastopol "from the morrow of Inkerman to the fall of Canrobert." The French Emperor's interference with the plans of the siege, and the secret mission of General Neil form a large part of the history of these days. The London Spectator says of this volume: "To all intents and purposes, the history which he now lays before the world is revealed for the first time. . . . His style seems to us as clear and attractive as ever. There is much of the present volume which would be of thrilling interest if it were mere romance."

Kip, W: T. Would you have left her? N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 4+295 p. D. cl., $1.25.

"Would you have left her?" was the query of Trueman Agnew every time he thought of his sudden decision and renunciation of Frances Florian. The results of this step supply incidents, in the shape of a hasty wedding and a number of woes that are the natural sequence of ill-judged marriages. The question of the story is answered in a rather different manner than the earlier chapters forecast.

Kirk, Hyland C. When age grows young: a romance. N. Y., C: T. Dillingham, [1888.] c. 281 p. S. pap., 50 c.

A strange theory about immortal life. A remarkably clairvoyant hero, a villain of some power of action, and the doings of a charming young woman are embodied in a plot of much interest. The characters are well delineated. Daniel Ritter's experiences prove whether it is possible for "Age to grow young." In a somewhat humorous vein the author disclaims in his preface that Arthur Rullison is simply the exponent of his own views.

Kirkland, Jos. The McVeys: an episode. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. 4+468 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Those who read "Zury, the meanest man in Spring County," will need no introduction to the Widow McVey and her young family. She figured in the former book first as Anne Sparrow, a bright New England girl, who goes west to teach school, and then as the wife of Zury Prouder. The present story is a parallel narrative in point of time with "Zury," but dealing entirely with Anne's life, which in "Zury" was given only in outline, the interest there being so largely in the hero. Now we are told in detail of Anne's life from the time she became a widow till she married "Zury." Her children, who are as interesting as herself, have each a story full of romance. Again as in "Zury" we get vivid descriptions of pioneer life in the west of about fifty years ago. Lincoln, Douglas, and other afterward famous men are introduced.

The poem is in type and duplicated in a fac-simile of the author's handwriting. The sketches, four in number, represent the Church of the Nativity, Bethlehem; the Sea of Galilee, from Tiberias; the Mount of Olives, from Jerusalem; and Jerusalem, from Mount Scopus. The book is very pretty and the pictures quite artistic. It is designed for an Easter offering, and has the advantage of being entirely new and fresh.

terranean Basin, Spain, and the United States. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 220 p. il. O. cl., $2.50.

Not intended as a scientific text-book. Prepared for popular reading and seeks to give such information on the subject of volcanoes and earthquakes, now of universal interest, as every liberally educated person may desire to possess. Much of the material used is the result of the author's own observation in the countries described, and partakes largely of personal adventure; the remainder is condensed and simplified from special books and journals in many languages.

Knox, J. Armoy. A devil of a trip; or, the log of the yacht Champlain; il. by T: Worth. N. Y., National Literary Bureau, 72 John St., [1888.] c. 128 p. O. (The unique ser., no. 1.) pap., 50 c.

The records of a trip made by Col. Knox and "Adirondack" Murray on the yacht Champlain through the Richelieu river into the Saint Lawrence, down to the Saguenay; from thence out into the Gulf of Saint Lawrence, around Nova Scotia, and to New York via Boston. The narrative appeared as weekly letters in the Boston Herald, N. Y. World, Chicago Herald, and other newspapers. The text has been cut from the columns of the newspapers, pasted on an octavo page, head-lines and all, and photo-engraved, making quite an odd-looking book. The broad margin outside of the narrow newspaper column has been filled in with amusing illustrations by Thomas Worth. The text is bright and clever, and deals with many odd adventures.

Knox, T: W. The boy travellers in Australasia: adventures of two youths in a journey to the Sandwich, Marquesas, Society, Samoan, and Feejee Islands, and through the colonies of New Zealand, New South Wales, Queensland, Victoria, Tasmania, and South Australia. N. Y. Harper, 1889 [1888.] c. 14+538 p. il. O. cl., $3.

The method followed in the preparation of previous volumes of the series has been observed in the present book, as far as it was possible to do so. The author's knowledge of the countries and people of Australasia has been supplemented by information drawn from many sources—from books, newspapers, maps, and other publications, and from numerous Australian gentlemen whom he had known or with whom he has been in correspondence. During the progress of the work he has kept a watchful eye on the current news from the antipodes, and sought to bring the account of the condition of the railways, telegraphs, and other constantly changing enterprises down to the latest dates. Frank Bassett and Fred Bronson and Dr. Bronson are again the chief characters. The book is profusely illustrated.

Kydd, S: A sketch of the growth of public opinion; its influence on the constitution and government. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1888. 2+84 p. O. cl., $1.

The author holds that public opinion has now become the primary governing power of England. "On the instruction, intelligence, and conscience of the majority must depend the future of the state." He states leading facts in national history, present and past, and draws his inferences logically. He is a well-known lawyer and author of the "History of the factory movement," "Essay on land," and other works of political and social bearing.

Ladd, G: T., D.D. What is the Bible? an inquiry into the origin and nature of the Old and New Testaments in the light of modern Biblical study. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 11+497 p. D. cl., $2.

In the fall of 1883 the author embodied the results of several years of study in a work on "The doctrine of sacred scripture," which received an extended notice in the P. W. of Oct. 13 (no. 612). The conclusions of this large treatise are here put into a form better adapted to the wants of the multitude of lay readers of the English Bible. The book contains a statement of the answer which critical investigation gives to the question, What is the Bible?—made with that brevity, clearness, and freedom from discussion of the more doubtful matters which the average reader requires. The conclusions of the earlier book are substantially unchanged. The author asserts that modern critical study of the Bible has discovered nothing which need disturb the employment of it "as the believer's rule of faith and life."

A very warm biographical sketch of Lamartine begins the volume. This is followed by selections in French. A chapter of notes at the end gives translations of many words and tells when the different poems were written, and under what circumstances. Lamartine's poems had a moulding influence on the religion, history, and politics of France.

Lamb, C: A dissertation upon roast pig ; il. by L. J. Bridgman. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. ed. no paging, sq. S. hf. cl., 75 c.

These letters to Coleridge, Wordsworth, Southey, Manning, Godwin, and others form a complete biography of Lamb—at least from the time when he came of age and began the battle of his sad and lonely life. They go down to a date preceding his death by a few days. Read consecutively as now given, with many omissions supplied and with the aid of the supplementary information provided by Mr. Ainger's notes, we get all the details of the tragical events which not only colored but shaped his career. Lamb's broad sympathy and versatile taste are illustrated through the many criticisms, embodied in his letters, of the literary work of his contemporaries. The work is one of the most important literary events of the year. The notes are very full. A good index.

The excavations which the Italian Government has made since 1871, under Professor Lanciani's observation, and latterly under his direction, are here described. They have brought to light the Forum, the House of the Vestal Virgins, the Palace of the Cæsars, the walls of the Senate-house, and multitudes of statues, inscriptions, and other objects of historic interest. The New York Evening Post, in speaking of Professor Lanciani and his lectures on this subject, remarked: "Many of his discoveries, in fact, sound like fairy tales, or would do so if they were told by anybody but a man of science, who never for a moment allows his fancy to get away from the facts, and never produces a theory until he has placed the authorities under our eyes. No one, too, who has not followed the explorations of the last ten years in Rome, can guess, without hearing him, what these explorations have done to fill up the vast gaps in our knowledge of Roman institutions or manners. They in truth almost amount to a reconstruction of Roman history." Richly bound in red and white cloth. Contains a hundred illustrations.

The works embraced in this volume are among the most celebrated of Landor's writings. The "Pentameron" relates to five imaginary interviews between Boccaccio and Petrarca in which they discuss Dante. The second work describes the citation and examination of William Shakespeare and others before Sir Thomas Lucy touching deer-stealing on the 19th Sept., 1582. The criticisms are on the idyls of Theocritus, the poems of Catullus, and on Francesco Petrarca.

Lawrence, W: Life of Amos A. Lawrence; with extracts from his diary and correspondence; by his son. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 9+289 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

A typical American business man is eulogized in this biography. Mr. Lawrence was born in Boston in 1814; as a boy he was thoughtful, high-minded, and honorable, with a decidedly religious nature. After his college life at Harvard and Andover he entered upon his chosen career of a merchant. Besides bestowing unusual attention upon his business, his energies found many other outlets. He threw his whole heart into the settling of Kansas with New England men, and so making it a free state. His relations with John Brown are full of interest, as is also the part—a most practical one—which he took in the rebellion. His generosity was illustrated by many munificent acts to the educational institutions of Boston. As a whole the book gives a most instructive picture of a busy life, unblemished in any of its relations with its fellow-men.

The recent death of Mr. Lear has once more called attention to these songs and rhymes, which on their first appearance convulsed old and young and were quoted and parodied by everybody. Two letters of the author are given that add value to this edition. Very neatly and appropriately bound.

Lear, H. L. Sidney. Henri Dominique Lacordaire: a biographical sketch. New ed. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1888. 3+336 p. 1 il. S. cl., $1.25.

The life of Père Lacordaire, based upon his own writings and upon two memoirs, one written by his life-long friend, Montalembert, the other by his disciple and brother Dominican, Père Chocarne, has been happily sketched by a hand practised in the writing of Christian biographies. Personal magnetism, personal beauty, and great eloquence were the natural gifts which the great good priest of Nôtre Dame brought to the high office which he chose from conviction, after having been educated for a lawyer. Politics and religion were closely allied in the troubled seventeen years that preceded the Coup d'état of 1851, and Père Lacordaire made his mark in both. He was elected member of the French Academy in 1859. He died in 1861. The writer is a Protestant, which makes her judgment of a Roman priest interesting and valuable to readers of both faiths.

Le Conte, Jos. Evolution and its relation to religious thought. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 8+344 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The subject of this work is embraced in three questions: What is evolution? Is it true? and if so, what then? The first is answered by a concise account of what is meant by evolution. The second by an outline of the evidences of its truth drawn from many different sources; and the third by showing the relation of evolution to fundamental religious beliefs. The latter portion of the work is the most important, as it seeks to do away with a deep and widespread belief that exists in the popular and to some extent in the scientific mind, "that there is something exceptional in the doctrine of evolution as regards its relation to religious thought and moral conduct."

Mr. Leone Levi is professor of commercial law in King's College, London. While accepting the principles of codification laid down in the elaborate treatises of David Dudley Field and Bluntschli, he aims to cover a part of the subject not included in their works—"the positive portion of the law, that resulting from treaties and conventions." Preceding the "materials for a code of international law" is an historical and statistical introduction, giving an account of the progress of international relations from ancient times to our own day. Supplemented with a conspectus of the actual area and population and treaty relations of all those countries which recognize international obligations.

The selections from the scriptures in the 34 regular services contained in this volume, together with the superintendent's readings which precede them, make up a history of the life of the Saviour as recorded in the four gospels. The revised version—a few marginal readings being made use of—has been uniformly followed. Each service has a responsive reading, a chant, a prayer, and a hymn, which are selected or written with reference to its selection from the scriptures. Thus each service, as well as the whole series, is a unit.

Libbey, Laura Jean. Miss Middleton's lover; or, parted on their bridal tour: a novel. N. Y., American News Co., 1888. c. 212 p. por. D. pap., 25 c.

The writer is the author of a number of novels that have had a popular success, such as "Flora Temple," "The heiress of Cameron Hall," etc. The chief event of the present novel is a mysterious murder and robbery. "Miss Middleton" is the unconscious agent in the robbery. She is a somnambulist, and in her sleep walks to the shop of a well-known safe and lock company on Oxford St., London, and brings back the clerk to unlock her uncle's safe, on the plea that the combination has been forgotten. From this results the robbery and a number of sensational incidents.

Lieber, B. Franklin. Lieber's universal telegraphic cipher adapted to the use of bankers, stock brokers, merchandise brokers, importers and merchants. N. Y., B. Franklin Lieber, 2 and 4 Stone St., 1888. c. '83 and '88. 3+250 p. O. cl., $10.

This edition of Lieber's "Universal telegraphic cipher," first published in 1883, has been considerably enlarged, the publishers now claiming that it is "the most concise and complete telegraphic cipher yet issued." Alphabetical arrangement has been strictly adhered to of words taken from Webster's "Unabridged dictionary;" no word of less than four or more than ten letters has been employed. Many words similar to other words, and words generally occurring in commercial phrases have been omitted, thus reducing the liability to error in transmission. To facilitate reference, great care and attention has been bestowed upon classification; in the most important cases the same phrases are repeated under different headings, so as to assist in finding them.

N. Y., D. Van Nostrand Co., 1888. c. 8+143 p. O. cl., $3.

The present book had its origin in a lecture, read by the author Nov. 17, 1885, at the Ohio Mechanics' Institute. This lecture met with such favor, that it had to be repeated Jan. 9, 1886. Thereupon the author was urgently requested by his friends to publish his paper in book-form. To give the work the value which the author wished it to have, much new matter had to be added, and many recipes tried and experiments made. This all required time and delayed the publication of the work. The volume has, however, gained so in completeness that its value is doubly enhanced by the additions. The author is a mechanical engineer. A large number of the formulas given have been tested by him, and many of the processes communicated have been practised by him for years.

Lillie, Lucy C. The household of Glen Holly. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 6+368 p. il. sq. S. (Harper's young people ser.) cl., $1.

The central figure of the Glen Holly household is Felix, a little crippled boy. For several years he had been in Europe with his young maiden aunt trying every means of regaining the use of his legs, and had just returned when the story opens, his case having been pronounced hopeless. He is an orphan and there is a mystery in the cause of his lameness. Added to the lameness he has a frightful temper, which makes him a very troublesome boy to manage. Near Glen Holly is a family named Thorne, with the children of which Felix becomes very intimate. The events of this friendship, the improvement it works in Felix, and the mystery of a closed-up room at Glen Holly are among the many episodes of a charming story for young people.

Lillie, Lucy C. My mother's enemy: a story for girls. Phil., Porter & Coates, 1888. c. 2+272 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Helen Glegg, who tells this story in the first person, is fifteen when the tale opens. Her father is dead, and her mother, having obtained a situation as governess in a Russian family, is obliged to leave Helen in a school in Devonshire, England. Here Helen meets her "mother's enemy," who is the brother of a man who through Mr. Glegg has been tried for forgery and has since died. By a succession of happy accidents Helen discovers the secret of the forgery and all become friends at the end. Mrs. Lillie has already written several excellent books for young girls under the titles "Nan," "Rolf House," "The story of English literature," etc.

Linton, Mrs. E. Lynn. Through the long nights: a novel. N. Y., Harper & Bros., 1888. 158 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., no. 625.) pap., 25 c.

Introduces a wordly-wise mother "with a hoard of maxims preaching down a daughter's heart." Her father has been unsuccessful and the mother hopes to retrieve his losses by a good marriage for her daughter. The country-seat of Kingshouse offers few eligible men. The young artist, poor, selfish, and fascinating, upon whom Estelle's heart is set, keeps all in hot water for some time. The characters of Estelle and of her cousin Lady Elizabeth are drawn with all Mrs. Linton's old skill. The plot is intricate, Estelle's devotion to her artist lover is the key-note of a composition full of tenderness, pathos, wit, and tragedy.

Lippitt, Francis J. Physical proofs of another life given in letters to the Seybert Commission. Washington, D. C., A. S. Witherbee & Co., 1888. c. 65 p. O. pap., 25 c.

The Seybert Commission, it will be remembered, was appointed by the University of Pennsylvania, and owed its existence to the fact that the late Mr. Henry Seybert, an enthusiastic believer in modern spiritualism, shortly before his death presented the University a sum of money sufficient to found a chair of philosophy and added to the gift a condition that the University should appoint a commission to investigate "all systems of morals, religion, or philosophy which assume to represent the truth and particularly of modern spiritualism." In 1886 a committee was appointed to investigate slate writings, rappings, etc. In the report published by the Lippincott Co, in 1887, they declare that in all they found fraud of the grossest kind. The letters in this work purport to refute the report of the commission.

Litchfield, Grace Denio. A hard-won victory. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 2+384 p. S. cl., $1.

Jean Ormsby is a rich young lady left alone in the world through her grandfather's death, who thinks it is her mission in life to be helpful to others. As she has no living relatives to care for, she obtains the position of companion to a rich old lady, Mrs. Van Voorst, who is partially paralyzed. Mrs. Van Voorst is a clever, satirical woman of the world, who still governs the whole family from her sick-room. Jean becomes mixed up in the fortunes of all the younger people of the house, and exerts more or less influence over all with whom she comes in contact. The story illustrates the development of her character, and how, after many failures, she reaches the high mark she had aimed at. The scene is laid in New York City.

Contains a complete list of all lithographers, photographers, and of all establishments intimately connected with lithography, such as stationers taking and executing orders for lithographic work, establishments doing work relating to lithography, and thus competing in some way with lithographers, block printers, printing labels, color, theatrical and similar work on type presses, steel- and copper-plate printers, engravers and embossers, gummers, varnishers, mounters and framers for the lithographic trade. In addition to this: photo-lithographers, photo-engravers, zinc-etchers, and all employing the new processes and practical appliances introduced into lithography and its kindred branches, as well as all supply houses that deal in tools and materials of any kind connected with the trades; also manufacturers of all kinds of machinery used in the lines indicated; also paper-mills, paper-warehouses, and manufacturers of and dealers in all kinds of paper and cardboard specialties for the branches enumerated.

Little, Caroline Frances. The three vocations. Milwaukee, Wis., The Young Churchman Co., 1888. c. 252 p. D. cl., net, 75 c.

A book for the Sunday-school library. It pictures the lives of three young girls, and the opposite vocations they embraced. One became a member of a sisterhood; one devoted herself exclusively to literature, and the other became a wife and mother. The experience of each one seeks to illustrate the necessity of belief in the Episcopal church as the one only religion.

Little, W. J. Knox-. The child of Stafferton: a chapter from a family chronicle. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1888. 12+330 p. D. cl., 75 c.

A companion story to "A broken vow." The same element of the supernatural is woven into this story of succession to large English estates. The heir apparent always bore the name of "the child of Stafferton" and according to the laws of entail must be a boy. The heroine of the story, however, was thus called by her uncle, there being at the time no such heir. A romantic love story brings in the hero, whose birth is shadowed in mystery. He comes from Italy, and the story plays between England and Italy. Many comparisons between the Roman and English churches afford Canon Knox-Little opportunities to speak his well-known ideas about the Catholic and apostolic church.

A treatise on the law of building and buildings; especially referring to building contracts, leases, easements, and liens; containing also various forms useful in building operations; a glossary of words and terms commonly used by builders and artisans; and a digest of the leading decisions on building contracts and leases in the United States. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 50+618 p. O. cl., $4.50.
One of the remarkable omissions in the literature of law in this country is the absence of any work upon buildings, building contracts, and leases. To fill this long-felt want is the object of this treatise. The author has diligently compiled and compared both the English and American authorities, preparing his text directly from judicial determinations, strenuously avoiding all "speculations" as to the law. He has also endeavored to state all propositions as briefly and concisely as is consistent with clearness.

A study of the life of Jesus from the standpoints of Rénan and Strauss. Accepting him from the start as man only, and not of miraculous birth, all the episodes of his career as presented in the New Testament are subjected to the test of reason. All that is apparently supernatural, even the miracles, are logically explained. The book, in spite of its standpoint, is reverent and instructive, applying the sayings of Jesus helpfully to the life of to-day.

The designs made by M. F. T. Merrill illustrative of this familiar poem, are six full-page pictures admirably reproduced by the photogravure and phototype processes. George Boughton depicts a number of scenes in the career of Miles Standish, which are fine specimens of wood-engraving. There are a number of half-titles and tail-pieces by Charles Copeland and S. L. Smith, which are full of character and at the same time decorative. The work is one of the leading holiday books, and is most beautiful in all its details of paper, print, and binding. In addition to its other features it contains notes relating to the antiquities of Plymouth, together with fac-similes and othe pictorial representations of objects of great historic interest.

Lost and found, and other stories. Bost., T: B. Noonan & Co., 1888. D. cl., 75 c.

Lothrop, Mrs. H. M., ["Margaret Sidney," pseud.] How Tom and Dorothy made and kept a Christian home. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] 3–163 p. 1 il. D. cl., 75 c.

This bright little sketch was written for a purpose, and is directly addressed to those young people who are just beginning married life on small means, and who find it hard to resist the temptations of dress and amusements in the whirl of life in a great city. Tom Foster is a clerk in a store in Boston on ten dollars a week. Dorothy Barnes, whom he marries and takes to the city, is a girl of high aspirations and loving character, and with little experience in the ways of the world. Their experiences during the first year are interestingly told, their little trials and temptations, common to all, are touched upon, and the story as a whole cannot but be helpful to readers who are in a like position.

Lothrop, Mrs. H. M., ["Margaret Sidney," pseud.] Old Concord, her highways and byways. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1888. c. 114 p. il. O. $3.

The author is a resident of Concord and a dweller in one of its historic mansions and is throughly acquainted with every nook, and corner of the town as well as with every legend that belongs to them. The illustrations are nearly all views about town and pictures of the home of Thoreau, Emerson, Hawthorne, and the Alcotts, father and daughter.

Lothrop, Mrs. H. M., ["Margaret Sidney," pseud.] St. George and the dragon: a story of boy life; [also,] Kensington Junior. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 3–175 p. il. S. cl., $1.

Two stories for boys. The first, "St. George and the dragon," relates to the doings of George Edward Allen from his birth to his sixteenth year. His bravery and generosity and noble defence of his smaller and weaker playmates earn for him the title given the story. "Kensington Junior" was the name of Harold Whiting's art-museum; the night before it was to be thrown open to the admiring gaze of "the boys," Harold was clever enough to capture a burglar who had entered it by the window. The story of the treatment of the burglar by Harold and the Whiting family is an excellent lesson in practical Christianity.

Loti, Pierre. From lands of exile; from the French by Clara Bell. Rev. and corr. for the U. S. N. Y., W: S. Gottsberger, 1888. c. 19+301 p. S. cl., 90 c.; pap., 50 c.

The "lands of exile" are China and the Malay peninsula. The descriptions of the country, the people, and events that transpired there are in the form of letters written during the year 1883 to Mrs. Edward Lee Childe, who was slowly dying of consumption in Paris. The introduction describes the author's devotion to this lady and the descriptions which follow are divided under separate headings; From lands of exile; Three hours' respite; Mahé; Ohock, for a day; The death of Admiral Courbet; Subterranean temples; and An old salt.

Loti, Pierre, [pseud. for Louis Marie Julian Viand.] An Iceland fisherman (pêcheur d'Islande:) a story of love on land and sea; from the French by Clara Cadiot. N. Y., W: S. Gottsberger, 1888. c. 232 p. S. cl., 50 c.; pap., 25 c.

A poetic love story giving a succession of word-pictures of the scenery, habits, customs, and people of far-off Iceland. Descriptions of the fisherfolk, men and women, their hard lives and scanty pleasures, their peculiar ideas and sentiments, are interwoven with the little story of true love, which at the outset of smoothness became a sacrifice to the all-absorbing sea. One of the fishermen compelled to serve in the navy introduces a description of war in China.

Loti, Pierre. Madame Chrysanthème; tr. by Laura Ensor; with designs by Rossi and Myrbach, reproduced by Guillaume Frères. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1889 [1888.] 5–335 p. O. pap., $5; hf. leath., $6.

The story of a Frenchman in Japan, who takes to himself a little Japanese wife, who is "Madame Chrysanthème." The story embraces a great fund of information about the manners, customs, and life in Japan, which the illustrator has taken advantage of—the book being rich in Japanese studies, chiefly small pictures scattered through the text.

Loughead, Flora Haines. Quick cooking: a book of culinary heresies for the busy wives and mothers of the land; by one of the heretics. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. '87. 294 p. S. cl., $1.

Unlike any other cook-book, the leading principle is to economize labor and time, at the same time securing a wide choice of appetizing fare. Contains 630 recipes, tested and vouched for by an experienced cook, 340 of which, if prepared according to the directions, can, severally or in groups, be made ready for the table in from five to fifteen minutes, and 250 of which require from fifteen to forty minutes, or, rarely, an hour's time. The few remaining dishes, which consume more time and are distinctly segregated from the rest, are nevertheless greatly abridged, and so planned as to require the least possible attention.

Lovett, R: Irish pictures drawn with pen and pencil. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1888. 223 p. il. and map, O. (Pen and pencil ser.) cl., $3.50.

This is simply what it claims to be, "Irish pictures" of the most beautiful and most distinctive of Irish scenery. They are taken from photographs and sketches, and represent amply and in excellent style the many spots of interest in the Emerald Isle. The text is entirely descriptive, the author excluding altogether political subjects. He glances at some of the most noteworthy men and deeds of the past, and has sought to catch and depict with his pen, as well as with his pencil, the most typical aspects of the Ireland of to-day.

Lowell, Ja. Russell. Heartsease and rue. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888 c. 8+218 p. por. S. hf. cl., $1.25.

"The friends of Mr. Lowell will find a number of old favorites in this new volume, a large portion of which has been printed before in the magazines of the last fifteen years. It is a larger book than will be generally expected, and it is preëminently the work of a cultivated man, full of the memories of other literature and executed with a highly finished art; one must add to this characterization only, that much of it is retrospective, and deals with past days and men who have finished their labors. The friends of the poet have the field, and this gives opportunity for the exercise of some of Mr. Lowell's most effective qualities as a writer. . . . The ode upon Agassiz's death, which leads the volume, is perhaps the most complete expression of these traits. . . . The more general themes of poetry, romantic, sentimental, or reflective, occupy the middle of the volume, and generally speaking there is an unexpected lightness in this portion." . . . The last part of the volume is taken up with humorous and satirical verse." —Boston Post.

Lowell, Ja. Russell. Political essays. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 6+326 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Contents: The American Tract Society (1858); The election in November (1860); E pluribus unum (1861); The Pickens-and-Stealin's rebellion (1861); Gen. McClellan's report (1864); The rebellion, its causes and consequences (1864); McClellan or Lincoln (1864). Reconstruction (1865); Scotch the snake, or kill it (1865); The president on the stump (1866); The Seward-Johnson reaction (1866); The place of the Independent in politics (1888). With the exception of the last all these essays appeared more than twenty years ago, and Mr. Lowell only reluctantly consented to have them reprinted, as they seemed to him to have mainly a polemic value contemporaneous with the date at which they were written. There is nothing to regret in their tone, although written at a time when Mr. Lowell's heart "was at boiling-point." The speech on the "Independent in politics" was spoken before the Reform Club at Steinway Hall on April 13.

Lowell, Percival. The soul of the far east. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 4+226 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A thoughtful review of the individuality, family life, language, art, religion, and imagination of the people of Eastern Asia, Japan, and Corea. Mr. Lowell spent several years in the East and is well qualified to write on the subject. He will be remembered as the author of "Chōsen." His deductions on the present are summed up in a closing paragraph: "If these people continue in their old course, their earthly career is closed. Just as surely as morning passes into afternoon, so surely are these races of the far east, if unchanged, destined to disappear before the advancing nations of the west."

Lowndes, Cecilia Selby. Both sides of the river: a tale. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1888. 3+342 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.50.

Madge Dickson is the daughter of a clergyman with a large family. To help him educate her brothers she accepts the position of governess in her uncle's (Mr. Fleming's) family to his grandchild Rica. Her uncle is wealthy and has a beautiful home. On the other side of the river from "Honesworth" is the country-seat of Mr. Hammond, his dearest friend, and it is Mr. Hammond's supposed son Maurice who becomes the great influence in Madge's life. Rica is the only child of Mr. Fleming's son Fred, who has made an unfortunate marriage and died early. Madge's attempts to protect Rica from her undesirable relatives on her mother's side, gets her into quite a tangle of trouble.

"In the present volume I have collected together some of my recent observations on the senses and intelligence of animals, and especially of insects. While attempting to understand the manners and customs, habits and behavior of animals, as well as for the purpose of devising test experiments, I have found it necessary to make myself acquainted, as far as possible, with the mechanism of the senses and the organs by means of which the sensations are transmitted. With this object I had to look up a great number of memoirs, in various languages and scattered through many different periodicals, and it seemed to me that it might be interesting and save others some of the labor I had to undergo myself if I were to bring together the notes I had made and give a list of the principal memoirs consulted. I have, accordingly, attempted to give very briefly some idea of the organs of sense, commencing in each case with those of man himself."—Preface.

Lull, Rev. De Los. Father Solon; or, the helper helped. N. Y., Wilbur B. Ketcham, 1888. c. 367 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Father Solon is introduced at a Thanksgiving dinner at the old family homestead in Yonkers, N.Y., surrounded by his wife, children, and grandchildren, after thirty-seven years of married life. The son Willie, an irresolute boy of twenty, and Carrie, a lovely girl of seventeen, are still at home. The old father loses everything through devotion to a friend, the old home is abandoned, and Carrie goes to work in the village factory. Willie is enticed to Salt Lake City by a Mormon priest and much space is given to his adventures there until he is found and released by his devoted sister and father. The story inculcates all the good, home virtues. The "helper" is Father Solon, who is specially "helped" by his delightful daughter.

The wonderful imaginative power of the Celtic mind is strikingly displayed in this unique collection of legends and fanciful tales. The material was collected by the compiler during a recent lengthy visit to Ireland, in the course of which he traversed every county in the island from end to end, and was in constant association with the peasant tenantry. They are told just as they were told to him without the slightest embellishment, and in the broadest brogue. Nothing so funny as several of the sketches has before been published. We specially refer to "The seven kings of Athenry" and "The defeat of the widows" and "The taming of the Pooka." All are quaint and witty, dealing with old superstitions which still exist, or bits of legendary history that have never before been printed. The illustrations are numerous and characteristic.

As presented, with Mr. Rolfe's copious notes, these well-known lays are especially adapted for that parallel reading in English which should, in the editor's opinion, accompany the study of Latin in our high schools and academies. There is an introduction, embracing the author's preface and critical comments on the lays.

Justin McCarthy's object in writing this book is to make clear to Americans what is the destinct national cause which the Irish parliamentary party represent in the English Parliament, and why Ireland should have a national cause to plead there. He describes the methods her representatives have adopted in order to accomplish that success, and also the forces of opposition to the Irish cause, as well as the forces that are friendly to it.

Another excellent collection of words and music from the best sources. The arrangement is the same as in the former volumes. Each song is complete on one or two pages, so the page need not be turned while singing and playing. The space sometimes left on the page by this arrangement is filled with interesting quotations and matter relating to music, singing, training of the voice, and comment upon the song on the page.

McClelland, M. G. Madame Silva. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 4+320 p. S. (Sunshine ser., v. 1, no. 11.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Mme. Silva is a "healer" or "adept," who is first met on her way to Staten Island to cure a nervous invalid, who has exhausted almost every form of treatment. The story is told by a young widow of twenty-eight, a friend of the invalid. A fascinating child of three or four plays a conspicuous part in the unravelling of a mysterious plot. The peculiar theories of various systems of healing are introduced and Mme. Silva and her evil genius and co-worker appear in several uncanny scenes. After bringing separated dear ones together the narrator smothers her own heart and retires in solitude. The second story is well-told.

Hitherto Dr. McCosh's published works have been chiefly philosophy. That the public should know that, much as he values philosophy, he places "the gospel of Jesus Christ" above it, he sends out this volume of sermons, which are selected from the many he has delivered in Scotland, in Ulster, and to the students in Princeton College. He considers them the ones in which he has "been enabled to proclaim most clearly the way of salvation."

Dr. McCosh from his first installation as President of Princeton College, was known to be in favor of evolution—that is he demonstrated to the students of the upper classes that evolution "was not inconsistent with religion." In these lectures he details his reasons for thinking so under the following headings: "The state of the question," "The organic history," "Powers modifying evolution," "Beneficence in the method of evolution," "Geology and scripture," and "The age of man."

The author of "Beyond the stars," who is pastor of Ross Church, Brooklyn, has written another comforting, helpful, encouraging book. The description of Palestine, geographical, political, and social, the historical reasons for its conflicting peculiarities of condition, the manners, customs, superstitions, religious divisions, etc., of its people, of the ancestors of the Baptist, his personal relation to the Messiah, his lofty conception of his mission, once more make the old, old story as clear as a photograph taken on the spot.

McCulloch, Hugh. Men and measures of half a century: sketches and comments. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 23+542 p. O. cl., $4.

Hugh McCulloch made his first entrance into public life under Secretary Chase, who called him to the important post of Comptroller of the Currency, when the national banking system was to be organized. He acquitted himself so well that Lincoln made him Secretary of the Treasury, which position he held through Johnson's administration, and afterwards through President Arthur's. His opportunities for seeing and studying prominent men he made constant use of, as his book reveals. His judgments are broad and impartial, his opinions his own, and his whole method of writing that of a man of unusual intelligence and discrimination. Hence his work is unusual in its interest and among the most valuable of our reminiscences of men of recent years His defence of President Johnson and Gen. McClellan, his criticism of Gen. Grant, his appreciation of President Cleveland, his views on the tariff question, his anecdotes of Chase, Stanton, and other public men, are given with a winning frankness and dignity that rivet attention. His own early life occupies a large part of the volume, Macdonald, G: The elect lady. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 4+345 p. 1 il. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 11.) pap., 50 c.

A simple story of simple Scotch people, with a strong religious element pervading it Two brothers, Andrew and Sandy, and a young girl, "Dawtie," by their simple faith and pure lives have a great influence on all they come in contact with. "Dawtie" is a servant in the laird's house, and discovers that he has in his possession a most valuable chalice, the work of Benvenuto Cellini, which she is clever enough to find out he has obtained from a party who knew it was stolen from a famous collection. "Dawtie" works on the laird's conscience to return the cup to the original owner, and suffers for her zeal. The laird's daughter "Alexa" is "the elect lady." Her overweening self-esteem is well illustrated by her experience.

Macdonald, G: Home again. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 4+313 p. S. pap., 50 c.

A novel with a purpose, by the author of "Malcolm," "Annals of a Quiet Neighborhood," etc. It is based upon the experience of a young Englishman raised to a farmer's life who fancies he is a great poet. He goes to London, but failing to receive recognition as a poet becomes a reviewer. That one cannot be false to one's self, even in the capacity of literary hack, without deteriorating, is shown in young Walter's life.

Macdonald, G: Poems; selected by V. D. S. and C. F. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1887. c. 15+207 p. por. T. cl., $1.25.

Mr. Macdonald is best known as the writer of a number of novels strongly religious in tone. At intervals however, between 1855 and 1868, four volumes of his poetry were published in England; but as American readers have had scant opportunity of becoming acquainted with his verse, it was thought that a volume which should include his best work and collect for the first time the charming poems scattered through the novels would be welcome to many.

That "truth is stranger than fiction" is proven in this biography of an American soldier of fortune. Gen. Maciver, who is still living, began his career in the great Mutiny in India as a cavalry officer in the English army. Afterwards he successively fought for Italian independence under Garibaldi, for the Southern Confederacy during the late war, for Maximilian in Mexico, and also served under the flag of Brazil, the Argentine Republic, Crete, Cuba, France, Don Carlos, Herzegovina, Servia, and Greece.

Begins in Paris, but plays mostly in a mountain-region of Germany. The odds are against the hero's sister-in-law, who though in love with him cannot resign the hope of winning the family fortune as well as its most popular member. A beautiful hand has a guiding influence on the hero's fate. He sees it on several most opportune occasions. The owner of this hand has played, is playing and is to play an important rôle in his checkered career. All comes out right, but the details of the plot are intricate and sometimes there is a hitch in the parts and the setting.

The first issue of a new series edited by the Rev. W. Robertson Nicoll, of the London Expositor, to be known as "The expositor's Bible." It is to contain expository lectures on the Bible by the foremost preachers and theologians of the day. While regard will be had to the latest results of scholarship, the volumes will be essentially popular and adapted to general readers quite as much as to the clergy. With one or two exceptions, the volumes will be absolutely new.

McMinn, Rev. Edwin. From cave to palace; or, the anointed shepherd. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] c. 352 p. S. cl., $1.15.

The purpose of this narrative is to give a realistic picture of the early life of David and of the poverty of his surroundings, contrasted with the splendor of the kingdom during the reign of his son. "There are many lives of David, but in none of them is the fact made prominent," says the author, "that the rise of Jerusalem was as wonderful as that of Chicago in our day, and the development of Israelitish civilization as remarkable as that of the Karens under Christian missionaries." This book brings out these facts. Its descriptions of customs and scenery are drawn from the best authorities.

"During the last two years, an unusually large number of important questions have been settled. Among them are the Electoral Count act which was pending since 1872, the Inter-state Commerce act, which was pending since 1884, the Mexican War Pension act, and the Supplementary Anti-Mormon act. . . . The Common School bill, the South Dakota Admission bill, the War of the Rebellion Dependent Parents' and Soldiers' Pension bill, having passed the Senate, are pending in the House. "Land grant," forfeiture, preëmption, timber-culture and desert acts repeal, Pacific Railroad indebtedness, tariff and fisheries, all figure more or less prominently, but neither has yet reached solution. The precise attitude of each is recorded within."—Preface.

Maguire, Ja. G. Ireland the Pope: a brief history of papal intrigues against Irish liberty from Adrian IV. to Leo XIII. San Francisco, Ja. H. Barry. 1888. c. 118 p. O. bds., 50 c.

The author claims that the purpose of his book is "to show the wrong and injustice of papal interference with the struggles of the Irish people to regain the national independence which they lost through the treachery of an English pope."

Maher, W: H. A man of samples; something about the men he met on the road. Toledo, O., The Toledo Book Co., 1887. c. '86. 5-160 p. D. pap., 35 c.; cl., 75 c.

First published as a series of articles, in the summer of 1886, in the Chicago Inter-Ocean. The author belongs to the well-known firm of Maher & Grosh, of Toledo, and writes of his subject from facts. The book is not a story, but the real experience of a travelling salesman doing business for a large gun and hardware firm. He is the speaker, and he frankly states all the methods, good, bad, and indifferent, he resorts to "to sell a bill." The other side is heard from, too, his customer's complaints being detailed in full; nor does he fail to tell of the sharp practice of his competitors that he is obliged to meet and overcome, and the equally sharp methods he uses to do so. Real names of travellers and business houses are given.

Malet, Lucas, [pseud. for Mrs. Harrison.] A counsel of perfection. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 2+324 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 4.) pap., 50 c.

That there may be no doubt of "Lucas Malet's" identity, this novel is dedicated "to my very dear friend and brother-in-law, Clifford Stanley Harrison." It is a character-study like "Mrs. Lorimer" and "Colonel Enderby's wife" betraying keen observation, knowledge of the world, and a most graceful wit. Lydia Casteen, an unmarried woman of almost forty years, who is a Latin and Greek scholar, and who has for years been the right hand of her father, Dr. Casteen, the great authority in church history, is charmingly portrayed. Her visit to Switzerland and her meeting with Anthony Hammond, and the effect he has upon her life and character, form an exceptionably interesting tale.

Malleson, G. B. Life of Prince Metternich. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. 5+209 p. D. (International statesmen ser.) cl., 75 c.

The man who, after the downfall of the great Napoleon, practically ruled Europe for thirty-three years was born in 1773, at Coblentz on the Rhine, and died in 1859. He was always cold and calculating in all his political measures, and in all the events which led to the fall of Napoleon, Metternich was chief factor, chief conspirator, the principal agent. A fair estimate of this almost forgotten despot, for many years prime minister of Austria. Index.

Malloy, J. F. A modern magician. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 315 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1139.) pap., 20 c.

Malot, Hector. Zyte; tr. by J. E. Simpson. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1888. 256 p. D. (Library of continental authors, no. 6.) pap., 35 c.

Opens with a humorous sketch of two travelling vans containing the goods, chattels, and stage properties of a band of strolling players who are making a round of the environs of Paris. Zyte is the daughter of the ambitious leader, who boldly undertakes to represent all the pieces of the day, which he adapts to his company in a most amusing way. At one of these performances Zyte is seen by the author of one of the pieces in which she is playing her father's version. He persuades Zyte to go to the Odéon, and her life as actress, her love for a rich miller's son, the father's opposition, intrigue, and persecution of his sweet, true daughter-in-law make the story. "Love your art, love it alone," is the advice poor Zyte adopts after many troubled years.

Manier, W. H. Law of eminent domain, and of railroads and warehouses, comprising the constitutional and statutory provisions of Illinois, together with the decisions relating thereto. Springfield, D. W. Lusk, 1888. c. 6+467 p. O. shp., $4.

Manier, W. H., comp. Railroads, warehouses, and eminent domain; comprising the constitutional and statutory provisions on these subjects of the state of Illinois; annotated by W. H. Manier. N.Y., The Railway Age Pub. Co., 1888. 467 p. O. cl., $3.50.

Manly, Basil, D.D. The Bible doctrine of inspiration explained and vindicated. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1888. c. 3-265 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The work is designed as a text-book in theological seminaries and colleges, and for ministers, students, and others, in their private studies. It contains a brief but clear exhibition, 1. Of the various opinions prevalent on the subject, with needful distinctions and explanations; 2. Of the proofs of inspiration; 3. Of answers to objections commonly urged.

Mann, Rev. Cameron. Five discourses on future punishment; preached in Grace Church, Kansas City, Mo., by the rector. N. Y., T: Whittaker, [1888.] 138 p. D. cl., 75 c.

These sermons are printed as preached by the rector of Grace Church, Kansas City, Mo. The first deals with the general subject of future life and punishment; the remaining four, with four different theories advanced by different schools of theology: 1. That there will be a final restoration of the wicked; 2. That there will be an endless probation for the wicked; 3. That there will ceaseless torture of the wicked; 4. That there will be annihilation of the wicked. The Rev. Mr. Mann does not commit himself to any one theory.

Mann, Mrs. Horace. The flower people. New ed., il. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1888. c. '62. 3–176 p. il. S. cl., 55 c.

In this book Mrs. Mary Mann has sent forth a little girl among the flowers, and has made the snowdrops, crocuses, violets, anemones, hyacinths, tulips, crown imperials, the mayflowers, the roses, and the October-tinted leaves, with others of the flower kingdom, to speak to the child as if they had in all verity living voices with which to tell in delightful language their places of habitation, the seasons of their appearance, the great flowering family to which they belong, the beautiful and wonderful purposes of their lives, and the processes of their transformation. Excellent for home or school reading for young people.

Manners: a handbook of social customs. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 5+114 p. T. cl., 50 c.

The writer is said to be "a member of New York's most exclusive social circles," the little book having been written from her own experience "as a woman of society and fashion." Hence it deals with many little conventionalities that people "out of society" are not burthened with. For fashionable people it will be found an excellent guide as to the right thing to do at balls or evening parties, in leaving cards, for formal calls or visits, clubs, christenings, with information about coats-of-arms, courtships and weddings, deaths, funerals and mourning, dinners at restaurants, garden or lawn parties sending flowers, theatre parties, letter-writing, etc.

Manning, H: E:, (Cardinal.) Miscellanies, v. 3. N. Y., Catholic Pub. Soc. Co., 1888. 4+475 p. D. cl., net, $1.60.

Composed of articles which have appeared from 1880 to 1883 in the Nineteenth Century, Contemporary Review, Dublin Review, Fortnightly Review, North American Review, and Murray's Magazine, together with a few articles culled from papers of which the titles are not given.

Manning, W: A child's dream of the Zoo; il. by Ernest Griset. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1888. 24 p. sq. O. pap., 50 c.

Manton, W. P., M.D. Primary methods in zoölogy teaching for teachers in common schools. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1888. c. 61 p. il. T. cl., 50 c.

Offers a few practical points and methods which have been of service to the author, together with an outline showing how these methods may be utilized in instructing even the youngest pupil.

Manual (A) of practice in probate courts of Ohio. [Anon.] Springfield, Barrett Pub. Co., [1887.] c. 32 p. D. shp., gratis.

Manual-training course of study and teachers' manual. Board of Education of the city of New York. N. Y., J. S. Babcock, 55 Cedar St., 1888. c. 149 p. D. pap., 60 c.

Manuel, Prince Don Juan. Count Lucanor; or, the fifty pleasant stories of Patronio; done into English by Ja. York, M.D., 1868; il. by S. L. Wood. N. Y., White & Allen, 1889 [1888.] 15+246 p. il. D. cl., $2; hf. levant mor. or hf. polished cf., $4.

First published in English by the Pickerings. The book was written in Spanish a century before the invention of printing, the author dying in 1347. It was first printed at Seville in 1575 and again at Madrid in 1642, and these editions rank among the rarest books in the world. Every tale illustrates some wise moral and closes with some pithy maxim. There is no trace of the licentiousness of his contemporary, Boccaccio. Eichendorff has made a German translation, but the book has thus far not appeared in other languages.

Manville, Marion. Over the divide, and other verses. 2d ed. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. c. '87. 4+190 p. por. S. cl., $1.25.

About a hundred poems on almost every subject that comes up in the lives of men. Many of these poems have appeared in periodicals and have met with favor. The title poem is in southern dialect and treats of a war episode.

Mapleson, J. H. The Mapleson memoirs, 1848–1888. N. Y., Belford, Clarke & Co., 1888. c. 2 v., 9+327; 7+319 p. O. cl., $4.

The gallant Col. Mapleson so picturesquely connected with the rise and fall of Italian opera in the United States, gives to the public in these two thick volumes his sad and amusing experience with operatic stars before and behind the curtain, and in European countries as well as in American. The difficulties attending the career of an impresario are told with much spirit and in an exceedingly funny manner. The book is most entertaining reading, being full of anecdotes about Patti, Gerster, Campanini, Grisi, Nilsson, Scalchi, Galassi, Del Puente, and other famous artists. The peep behind the scenes given is often most disenchanting.

Marcus, (pseud.) Letters, describing Romanism in its origin, character, and end; addressed to Rev. E. C. Fabre, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal. Montreal, W: Drysdale & Co., 1887. 3+240 p. S. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The writer of these letters claims that his object is "to awaken attention, particularly that of Roman Catholics, which may lead to a proper understanding of that system of religion, to which they are giving an unreasoning devotion and obedience." As the so-called "revelations" of many of the chapters are broad descriptions of evil practices, the book cannot be recommended for indiscriminate reading.

Maréchal, Miss. Nannette's marriage; from the French by Aimée Mazergue. N. Y., P. J. Kenedy, 1888. c. tr. 170 p. 1 il. S. (Drops of honey lib.) cl., 75 c.

A pretty little story with a French setting, telling how Nannette resolved to remain single till she met with her ideal man in real life. Her uncle, who is determined she shall marry, takes her into the gay world, and she has many campaigns before her hero appears and her dreams are realized.

Mariager, Peder. Pictures of Hellas: five tales of ancient Greece; from the Danish by Mary J. Safford. N. Y., W: S. Gottsberger, 1888. c. tr. 14+318 p. S. pap., 50 c.

Nearly all the more recent romances and dramas whose scene is laid in the classic times depict the period of the great rupture between Paganism and Christianity. These tales aim to give pictures of the distant centuries, whose marvellous culture rested solely on the purely human elements of character. "Zeus Hypsistos" is a tale of the Pelasgian period; "The sycophant" rests on events that occurred 423 years before Christ; "Hetaeriæ" is a tale of secret societies 415 B.C.; "Too happy" is founded upon a prayer for a sign and the acceptance of an omen; and "Lycon with the big hand" deals with the artist Aristeides and his paintings.

Marr, C: A journey round the world; il. by C: Marr. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1888.] no paging, il. Q. bds., $1.50.

Starting from England a father, mother, girl, and boy sail to Spain, then to Ceylon, China, Japan, Sandwich Islands, California, South America, Africa and back to England. Gives much information about slightly known countries, made clear by tasteful, colored pictures.

Marryat, F: The little savage; with il. by A. W. Cooper and Sir J: Gilbert. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1889 [1888.] 440 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

One of the least known of the author's books. First published in this country by Harper & Bros. The story of a boy stranded on an uninhabited island. Forty-nine illustrations by A. W. Cooper and eight full-page plates by Sir John Gilbert.

Mars, [pseud.] Friends and playmates. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1888. No paging, il. obl. O. bds., $2.50.

Bright pictures for the youngest children of every kind of animal and all kinds of games and amusements indulged in by all children, with just a few lines of text to each picture.

Marsh, Caroline Crane, comp. Life and letters of George Perkins Marsh. In 2 v. V. 1. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 11+479 p. por. O. cl., net, $3.50.

In the late Mr. Marsh we possessed a citizen of whom we were justly proud. Both as a philologist and diplomat he made a reputation that was world-wide. His studies of the English language, which have gone through many editions in book form, are authorities wherever English is spoken. He served his country in many capacities—as a member of the state legislature, as United States senator, as Minister to Turkey in 1849, and finally as Minister to Italy, in 1861, where he spent twenty-one fruitful years, dying at his post at Vallombrosa, in 1882. This volume finishes with the year 1861, the story of his mission to Italy being reserved for the second volume. The sixty years here embraced of his long life—he was born in 1801—cover an eventful period of our history. In all the issues of the time he was on the side of right and justice. His letters freely quoted from are rich in interest, and express a manly rectitude and independence of opinion, both instructive and delightful.

Marshall, Emma. Alma; or, the story of a little music mistress. N. Y., White & Allen 1889 [1888.] 5+352 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Alma, a girl of twenty, supports her invalid mother, two romping boys, and a little blind brother by giving piano lessons. The trials she encounters from a snobbish employer, the recognition her talent receives from an authority, her tender care of her family, and her final happiness make a pretty story. A mysterious lodger who turns out a rich nobleman helps to bring happiness to all the family.

Marshall, Emma. Dulcibel's day-dreams; or, the grand, sweet song. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1888. 4+228 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Dulcibel lives in a sea-coast village of England with two aunts and an uncle, a hearty, retired physician of the navy. She is introduced lying on the sands, longing to "do noble deeds." She is overheard by a lady, who becomes her warm friend and shows her many neglected duties near at hand she has overlooked while dreaming all day long. Dulcibel's life becomes a busy and happy one, rewarded by a good man's love.

Marshall, Emma. Eaglehurst Towers. N. Y. White & Allen [1888.] 224 p. 1 il. D. (Eaglehurst ser. for girls.) cl., $1.

The master of Eaglehurst Towers rescues Angelica Dorien from the waves during a fierce storm. She stays for some time at the Castle, then leaves to learn painting. After some time the master loses his only son, and Angelica comforts him.

Marshall, Emma. Houses on wheels, a story for children. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1888. 5+391 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A family of well-to-do English children are taken by their grandmother, while their mother is abroad for her health. A travelling show comes to the village, and the children become interested in helping the children that spend their lives in the vans. An elder brother, a young Oxford student, expresses earnest theories of reform and works hard to get influential people to interfere and save the children that live in "houses on wheels."

Marshall, Emma. On the banks of the Ouse; or, life in Olney a hundred years ago: a story. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., [1888]. 11+339 p. il. D. (Home reading for girls.) cl., $1.25.

Both Cuthbert Rollestone and Cecily Whinfield had a father who drank to excess and quarrelled in his cups. The young people's lives were consequently not very happy. Even on their wedding-day the scenes were so disgraceful that Cuthbert had to find his bride another home. He thus gave his cousin a chance to supplant him with his father and steal his inheritance. Cuthbert is a noble fellow and a hero throughout. His efforts towards the right are crowned with success at last. A pure and elevating story for young girls. Describes minutely the towns of Olney and Weston, and introduces as characters the poet Cowper and his friend John Newton.

Mr. Marston is an Englishman, and this work, as far as it goes, is an autobiography. It relates entirely to the actors he has seen during his life, or to those he has heard a great deal about. Beginning in 1834 to visit the London theatres, his first impressions were of Ellen Tree, the Vanderhoffs, and Macready. Accounts of their chief plays and parts and methods of acting are followed by similar accounts of the Kembles, Farren, Mr. and Mrs. Kean, Benjamin Webster, Mrs. Glover, Mrs. Warner, Samuel Phelps, the Sadler's Wells Co. in general, Charlotte Cushman, John B. Buckstone, Sheridan Knowles, Madame Vestris, Fechter, Adelaide Neilson, Rachel, and others.

Martin, E. S. A little brother of the rich, and other poems. N. Y., Mitchell & Miller, 28 W. 23d St., 1888. 54 p. il. sq. S. bds., $1.

A neatly printed and attractively bound book of short poems "inscribed to the editor of the N. Y. Sun, with the somewhat disquieting consciousness that he knows poetry when he sees it." The first poem tells of all the little sisters of the poor accomplished and of the author's desire to "strive to share and mollify the trials of abounding wealth." The poems are full of clever fun and keen wit most happily worded.

Gives facts and figures of olive culture throughout the world. The author states that California is the most favored of the United States for olive culture, but that there is a large territory besides where the climate, soil and conditions are favorable. He recommends the importing of an expert to adapt old world methods to our conditions and claims that if scientifically carried on, with good business management, olive-oil should make a valuable article of export for this country. A bibliography of works on olives prefaces the book.

Papers which appeared in the Homiletic Magazine during 1886–87. While not professing to cover the entire field of debate between faith and science, they are representative of the spirit and temper in which Christian thinkers seek to deal with the problems to which the progress of modern thought and life is ever giving rise.

Mathews, Joanna H. Uncle Rutherford's nieces: a story for girls. N. Y., F: A. Stokes & Bro., 1888. c. 302 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

All the children introduced in "Uncle Rutherford's attic" about a year ago live a few more years of their helpful, happy lives as "Uncle Rutherford's nieces." Poor carroty-top Jim, the devoted "help" of the family, is put to school, learns to control his temper, and at the close is almost sure of a scholarship at West Point. His efforts as peanut merchant and Amy's experience at cooking-school teach good, practical lessons.

Mathews, W: Wit and humor; their use and abuse. Chic., S. C. Griggs & Co., 1888. c. 6+397 p. D. cl., $1.50.

In a dozen chapters, rich in anecdote and apt illustration, the writer discourses of his subject under the following divisions: The theories of wit and humor; The abuses of wit and humor; The logic of wit; Epigrams; Parody; Puns and punsters; Repartee; Clerical wit; The antiquity of wit; The melancholy of wits; Men who lack the sense of humor. The work is, in its general literary arrangement, similar to Mr. Mathews' "Men, places, and things," and "Oratory and orators," with a good analytical index, which serves as a key to the numerous good things with which the pages are overflowing.

Medici, C: de. Two lunatics: a story, written by one of them. [Anon.] N. Y., Theo. Berendsohn, 86 Fulton St., 1888. c. 6+157 p. D. pap., 50 c.

In this story, which is really a series of essays on life, present and future, the author explains that he earned the name of "lunatic" by advocating truths his fellowmen did not care to hear. With mathematical precision he uses his inexhaustible store of words to prove the reality of the life to come. His friend, the other "lunatic," is an infidel, but the part assigned him is a minor one. The book is full of bright sayings and sarcastic criticisms of the various schools of thought, religion, and philosophy that have educated mankind. The description of a visit to Utopia enables the author to formulate his ideas of a world as it should be. Author of "Groundwork of classification (abstract from the commensurational system), with a panorama of evolution and exposition of Darwinism and theology concilitated;" also "Prefatory essay to the new science, mathematical commensuration, preceded by a research in the domain of geometry.

The author is on the staff of the Boston Daily Globe and a member of the bar of Massachusetts and New York. His book deals with the rights of the press and its obligations toward public men and others whose conduct and whose affairs become subjects of discussion as news. The cases cited, as a general rule, are cases of newspaper libel heard in American courts. The style is happy. The arrangement is chronological, and the history of cases cited brings in many facts about American newspapers, beginning with Publick Occurrences, the first American newspaper, dated September 25, 1690.

Merriman, Helen Bigelow. What shall make us whole? or, thoughts in the direction of man's spiritual and physical integrity. Bost., Cupples & Hurd, 1888. 6–115 p. D. bds., 75 c.

An endeavor to present in a popular way the philosophy and practice of mental healing. The author does not claim for her essay either completeness or permanent value, but hopes "to fix a few points and establish a few relative values, in anticipation of the time when human research and experience shall complete the pictures." She holds that the human mind can achieve nothing that is good except when it becomes the channel of the infinite spirit of God, and that so-called mind cures are not brought about wholly by the power of the mind over the body, or by the influence of one mind over another.

Designed to be a companion to the author's "Weekday religion," which has met with such a kindly and continued favor. "Practical religion," as its title suggests, is meant to help its readers to live out the religion of Jesus Christ in their daily common lives.

Miller, Olive Thorne. In nesting-time. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co. 1888. c. 6+275 p. D. cl., $1.25.

In fifteen chapters the author of "Bird-talk," describes the ways in which thrushes, robins, bluebirds, orioles, blackbirds, woodpeckers, etc., build their nests and teach their young. The chapter devoted to "Baby-birds" brings out the differences of nature shown in their first feathered infancy, describing their little customs, manners, virtues, and foibles with rare grace and humor. The writer shows accurate scientific knowledge, a love of nature that is almost a passion and fine literary taste. All readers of the Atlantic Monthly know the peculiar witchery of her word-pictures.

Minto, W: The mediation of Ralph Hardelot. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 199 p. O. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 628.) pap., 30 c.

"The period at which the action is supposed to take place is the latter part of the fourteenth century, the scene being laid partly in London, but mainly in the eastern counties. The plot, apart from the love interest, is concerned with the great peasants' rebellion, which is usually associated with the name of Wat Tyler. . . . Ralph Hardelot, a young gentleman who, disgusted with the corruption and tyranny which he sees all around him, has vowed his life to the cause of the people, and adopted the tenets of Wycliffe."—London Academy.

Mitchell, S. Weir, M.D. Doctor and patient. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. c. '87. 177 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Essays which deal chiefly with a variety of subjects to which every physician has given more or less thought. Some of them touch on matters concerning the mutual relation of physician and patient, but are meant to interest and instruct the laity rather than the medical attendaut. The larger number have from their nature a closer relation to the needs of women.

Mitchell, S. Weir, M.D. A masque, and other poems. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1887. c. 4+63 p. O. T. cl., $1.50.

Mostly tales told in verse. The poem entitled "How Launcelot came to the nunnery in search of the queen," is an attempt to render in blank verse, and as literally as possible, the most dramatic episode in the "Arthur" of Sir T. Malory. Two of the lyrics have a legendary foundation, "The Christ in the snows" and "Adam."

Mitchell, Rev. Walter. Bryan Maurice; or, the seeker. [New issue.] N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. c. '67. 288 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co. in 1867. The author was at one time an Episcopal clergyman in New York City. He shows the processes of change from a belief in Unitarianism to a faith in the Protestant Episcopal Church. It is republished now, according to the Standard of the Cross, as a foil to "Robert Elsmere."

Chic., J. Anderson & Co., printers, 183–187 N. Peoria St., 1888. c. 303 p. S. cl., $1.25; bds., $1.

A new effort to simplify human speech. The author sets forth at some length, and with some particularity of details, the familiar objections to current English, and then unfolds his system, which is too elaborate to describe in our limited space. The volume embraces a grammar, reader, and vocabulary of the proposed American language.

Forty-nine sermons by twenty different clergymen from various parts of the United States on the portions of the Old and New Testaments selected for this year's Sunday-school lessons. The first and second quarter relate to Matthew, the third and fourth quarter to Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Joshua, Judges, Ruth.

Monday Club. Sermons on the International Sunday-school lessons for 1889; by the Monday Club. 14th ser. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1888.] c. 403 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The sermons by the "Monday Club" are widely known among ministers and Sunday-school teachers. The ability as sermonizers of such men as Drs. Dunning, Gregg, Boynton, Griffis, Clark, Leavitt, etc., is well known. After a teacher has studied his lesson thoroughly, making use of his customary lesson helps, it will help him to a broader outlook if he have by him the Monday Club sermons for final hints.

Montague, C: Howard. The face of Rosenfel: a novel. N. Y., A. L. Burt, [1888.] c. 3–248 p. D. (The Manhattan ser., v. 1, no. 6.) pap., 25 c.

By the author of "Two strokes of the bell." An attempt to obtain a large fortune by the abduction of the real heiress and the substitution of an impostor is the central feature of the novel. Some interesting medical theories are aired about mental troubles and what the author calls "visualization," a good deal of sensational incident introduced, and the usual amount of love and love-making.

Montague, C: Howard, and Hammond, Clement Milton. The doctor's mistake; or, what Myrta saw; an experiment with a life: a novel; il. by "Boz." Bost., T: Downey, Jr., & Co., 1888. c. 3–146 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 25 c.

Dr Lowenthal is a chemist and a scientist but a veritable disciple of that prince of materialists, Broussais. He believes that he has discovered the secret of intelligent life and that his theory is capable of demonstration. He proposes to establish his materialistic doctrine by depriving a human subject of life and restoring it. He awaits a voluntary victim. The book tells the story of this experiment and the result of it. Philip Haynie, driven to despair by the treatment of Myrta, who has taught him to love her only that she might scorn him, offers himself to Dr. Lowenthal.

A rich, selfish young man of the world, with some culture and literary gifts, is the speaker. His career for ten years in Paris and in London, during which he sees all that is good or bad in life, and strives unsuccessfully to be an artist, a poet, a journalist, and a novelist, is the theme upon which he eloquently discourses. His criticisms upon English and French writers and artists of today are quite piquant.

Morris, C: The Aryan race; its origin and its achievements. Chic., S. C. Griggs & Co., 1888. 7+347 p. D. cl., $1.50.
The author aims to epitomize the story of this race from the many volumes which have been devoted to its languages, mythology, folk-lore, village communities, or some other single aspect of its many-sided history. All the facts are drawn from trustworthy authors; the theoretical views are, as a rule, original with the writer. He accepts Prof. Huxley's division of races, and points out the general supremacy of the Aryans in intellect and enlightenment, and the natural steps of evolution through which they emerged from savagery. Morris, Gouverneur. Diary and letters of Gouverneur Morris, Minister of the United States to France, Member of the Constitutional Convention, etc; ed. by Anne Cary Morris. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 15+604 p. por. O. cl., $7.50.
Gouveneur Morris was one of the most eminent Americans of the first years of our country. The original draft of the Constitution is in his hand, and his influence was deeply felt in the counsels which finally crystallized in that document. A few years afterwards he was made Minister of the United States to the Court of St. Germain —at that time on the eve of tragic dissolution. Throughout the early days of the French revolution he played an important part. While almost every other foreign minister deserted his post, he with a rare courage remained faithful during the perilous days of the Reign of Terror. This portion of his diary is most interesting, as he knew all the most prominent men and women of the time. Soon after the revolution he left Paris, returned to America and established himself at Morrisania, served a term as U. S. Senator, greatly influenced the successful opening of the Erie Canal, married, and died in 1816. His letters to Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson, and various European statesmen, which supplement the diary, are of unusual value

Morris, C:, comp. Half-hours with the best foreign authors. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. c. '87. 4 v., ea., 512 p. 1 il. D. cl., per set, $6.

Compiled for the enjoyment of those who speak English only, and yet would read th masterpieces of the literature of the whole world, in versions which prese.ve all tne value of the ideas and which equal or closely approach their originals in beauty of rhetoric and grace of expression. The selections, taken from the writings of the most famous foreign authors, a e both in prose and verse and divided into four volumes, namely, the literatures of Greece and Rome; those of the German and other Teutonic nations; those of France; and those of Spain and Italy—the latter volume contains also some selections from the Portuguese and Russian. The selections are brief and designed for half-hour readings.

Morris, W: Atalanta's race, and other tales from "The earthly Paradise;" ed. with notes by Oscar Fay Adams, with the coöperation of W: J. Rolfe. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. ed. 3–242 p. il. and por. S. cl., 75 c.

Uniform in method and arrangement with Rolfe's "Students' series," and embracing, like those little volumes, besides copious notes, an introduction treating of the life and works of William Morris, his style, characteristics of his verse, etc., etc. Mr. Adams says in his preface: "In bringing this volume of selections from 'The earthly Paradise' into suitable form for reading and study, the desire of the editor has been to popularize the verse of one of the great poets of the Victorian era. His books have been left unread by the majority of readers, who have been deterred by the great length of many of his poems. When, however, he has once captured the attention of any one, the enchantment is never broken. The tales in 'The earthly Paradise' are particularly well suited to win the interest of younger readers, who care little for lyric verse, but are often enthusiastic admirers of epic poetry."

Morse, Lucy Gibbons. The Chezzles: a story. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 7+280 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Mrs. Chezzle receives a letter from her brother, married in France, who, thinking himself on his death-bed, desires to give his little girl into her personal keeping. She puts the little Chezzles, two bright boys, under the care of an old sea-captain, and leaves for Paris. The story is told chiefly in letters to and from Paris. The little boys' bad spelling and sea-coast slang and the little French girl's ignorance of English lead to some amusing jokes. The author has herself illustrated the story, and the pictures are delicate and descriptive.

The three lectures are entitled "The simplicity of language," "The identity of language and thought," and "The simplicity of thought." There is an appendix which contains a correspondence on "Thought without words," between F. Max Müller and Francis Galton, the Duke of Argyll, George J. Romanes, and others.

Munhall, L. W. The Lord's return and kindred truth. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell, 1888. 192 p. D. cl., $1.

Munroe, Kirk. Chrystal, Jack & Co.; [also,] Delta Bixby: two stories. N. Y., Harper, 1889 [1888.] c. 7–221 p. il. sq. S. (Harper's young people's ser., no. 31.) cl., $1.

A runaway accident deprived the Carys of their father and sadly injured Chrystal, the elder sister, who supplied a mother's place to her brother Jack and three younger children. They form a firm under the title-name, for the sale of wild flowers, and through the kindness of a little old gentleman and the ladies of the flower mission, the little family at length sees happy days. "Delta Bixby" is the fourth child of a student of Greek, who named his children by the letters of the Greek alphabet. He desires to see the world, and his father allows him to go from home. His adventures on sea and land make the story.

Munroe, Kirk. Derrick Sterling: a story of the mines. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 4+256 p. il. sq. S. (Harper's young people ser.) cl., $1.

The life and hardships of young boys in the coal-mines of Pennsylvania are woven into a thrilling and instructive story. Derrick Sterling is a brave, intelligent young fellow, who is forced to earn a living as a breaker-boy in the mine his father had lost his life in—while acting in his capacity of mining engineer. Derrick and his friend Paul have many dramatic experiences, which are only saved from being fatal through their own bravery and presence of mind. Many good lessons of self-control and forbearance are inculcated through the incidents of the story.

Munsey, Frank A. The boy broker; or, among the kings of Wall st. N. Y., Frank A. Munsey & Co., 1888. c. 243 p. il. O. cl., $2.

The scene of Frank Munsey's latest story is New York City. The hero is a Vermont lad whose business will undoubtedly excite admiration in the breasts of juvenile readers, whom the author has endeavored to benefit through the medium of Herbert Randolph. By interesting them in the career of a country boy he hopes to at once please their fancies and incite them to imitation or an effort to distinguish themselves. Bob Hunter and Tom Flannery, two newsboys and important personages of the story, may reach another class of boys, who will be pleased with their amateur detective work and its results; Bob's rapidity in formulating and executing plans is also worthy of emulation. Well-known New York localities and several fictitious criminals are introduced.

Murfree, Miss Mary N., [Charles Egbert Craddock, pseud.] The despot of Broomsedge Cove. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1889 [1888.] 2+490 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Again does Miss Murfree lay the scene of her novel in the mountains of East Tennessee. Teck Jepson, the despot, is only one of many striking characters that she graphically depicts as belonging to this region. "Marcelly" is as notable in her way as "Teck," and her fortunes are followed breathlessly to the end. The descriptions of scenery, the quaint ways and superstitions of the people, and the character drawing are all most carefully presented.

Murray, Rev. Andrew. Holy in Christ: thoughts on the calling of God's children to be holy as he is holy. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] 302 p. S. cl., $1.

"In writing this little book, my object has been to discover in what sense God uses the word [holy], that so it may mean to us what it means to Him. I have sought to trace the word through the most important passages of Holy Scripture where it occurs, there to learn what God's holiness is, what ours is to be, and what the way by which we attain it."—Preface.

Daylight land: the experiences, incidents, and adventures, humorous and otherwise, which befell Judge John Doe, Tourist, of San Francisco; Mr. Cephas Pepperell, Capitalist, of Boston; Colonel Goffe, the Man from New Hampshire, and divers others; in their parlor-car excursion over prairie and mountain. Bost., Cupples & Hurd, 1888. c. 5–338 p. il. O. pap., $2.50; cl., $3.50; $4.

Describes the country, its game, scenery, etc., along the line of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, through Canada from Montreal to Vancouver City on the Pacific, with side excursions into the Canadian wilds. The country is so little known, that the volume is unusually fresh and rich in novel information; it is also full of humorous and pathetic incidents. Mechanically the volume is exceptionally fine. The paper is rich, the type large and clear. The illustrations (140 in number), are from sketches made on the spot by J. D. Woodward, J. C. Durand, C. Broughton, C: Copeland Beard, Johnson and others. They are printed in various tints, having been produced under the supervision of J. B. Millet.

Murray, W. H. H. The doom of Mamelons: a legend of the Saguenay. Phil., Hubbard Bros., 1888. c. 5+136 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The development of the story turns upon the working of an old Indian prophecy or tradition, which has been in the Lenni-Lenape tribe, to the effect that when an intermarriage between a princess of their tribe and a white man should occur, it would bring ruin to the tribe, and cause it to become extinct at "Mamelons," this being the Indians' name for the mouth of the Saguenay. The characters who work out the "doom" are John Norton, a trapper, and Atla, a princess of the Lenni-Lenape tribe.

In a pretty lithographed cover uniform with the other volumes, "Fifty soups," "Fifty salads," etc., which preceded it. Contains directions for a number of appetizing dishes suitable for luncheon, ushered in by some "remarks on luncheon." The recipes are grouped as: Relishes for luncheon; Fish and shell-fish; Hash—a kind word for it; Macaroni; Luncheon curries; Eggs and omelets; Patties; Vegetables; Sweetbreads; Miscellaneous.

Murrey, T: J. Oysters and fish. N. Y., F. A. Stokes & Bro., 1888. c. 86 p. S. bds., 50 c.
This practical culinary artist advises Americans to substitute fish for the everlasting steak and chop of the breakfast-table, and gives a series of recipes and suggestions extremely valuable to the average housewife. A very neat cover design.

At the present time, when the student is forced by the rapid progress of medical science to imbibe an amount of knowledge which is far too great to permit of any attempt on his part to master it, a book which contains the "essentials" of a science in a concise yet readable form, must of necessity be of value. Manuals of this kind are in no way intended to supplant any of the text-books, but to contain, as its title declares, the essence of those facts with which the average student must be familiar. See, also, Wolff, Lawrence, M.D.

Napoleon Smith. N. Y.; The Judge Pub. Co., 38 Park Row, 1888. c. 202 p. D. pap., 50 c.
The author is said to be "a well-known New Yorker." His hero is an American who has a most remarkable experience. He claims to be an illegitimate descendant of the great Napoleon and to have inherited papers from his grandfather showing where vast treasures are buried, that Napoleon captured in his campaigns. Napoleon Smith after the battle of Gettyshurg goes to Paris to hunt up his treasure and take part in the Franco-Prussian war. His adventures there during the Commune are most marvellous.

Neuvaine (La) de Colette, Reprinted from La Revue des deux Mondes. N. Y., W: R. Jenkins, 1888. 236 p. D. (Romans choisis, no. 9.) pap., 60 c.

A novel. The story of a romantic young girl, shut up in an old château with an angular and prosaic old aunt, who makes life about as dull as possible to her niece, whose sentimental tendencies, however, are not to be overcome either by suppression or isolation. Having learned from a wise woman of the neighborhood that nine day's devotion at some saint's shrine will bring the desired husband, she sets up a bronze statue of St. Joseph in her bedroom and duly performs her devotions there, without, however, bringing forward the unknown lover. Getting angry at herself and the saint for her failure, she throws the statue out of the window and nearly kills a young man, who thus obtains his introduction into the household.

Newell, C. M. The Isle of Palms; adventures while wrecking for gold. Bost., De Wolfe, Fiske & Co., 1888. c. 7+460 p. il. D. (The Fleetwing ser.) cl., $1.50.

Quite up to the author's "Voyage of the Fleetwing" for exciting incidents in sailor life. It deals with adventures while wrecking for gold, an encounter with a mad whale, a battle with a devil-fish, and the capture of a mermaid. Seven striking illustrations. The Fleetwing again proves seaworthy in her dangerous cruising ground, seeking for sperm whales along the coral islands near the equator.

Newsby, Mrs. Peleg, [pseud. for Mrs. A. A. Evans.] Aunt Nabby. Bost., Rand Avery Co., 1888. c. 9+274 p. il. S. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Under this title Mrs. A. A. Evans collects her letters that have appeared from time to time in the columns of the Boston Commonwealth and other newspapers into a neat little illustrated volume. The quaint diction and irresistible humor of these missives serves as an effective medium for the good-humored satire and comment upon measures and men for which "Aunt Nabby" is especially distinguished.

Newton, R:, D.D. Bible animals and the lessons taught by them. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., [1888.] c. 4–450 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.25.

Sixteen sermons on the beasts and birds mentioned in the Bible, in which their habits and characters furnish the illustrations, to teach children truths and the duties that spring out of them These sermons were found in Dr. Newton's study after his death, but he had intended to have them published. Frontispiece of Dr. Newton and the children at the Chautauqua Lake convention.

Newton, R:, D.D. The heath in the wilderness; or, sermons to the people ; to which is added the story of his life and ministry by W. W. N. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1888. c. 58+13–374 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

A selection of twenty from the fifteen hundred sermons that were found upon the death of Dr. Newton on May 25, 1887. These sermons are prefaced by the sketch of his life written by his son, Rev. Wilberforce Newton, of Pittsfield, Mass. Dr. Richard Newton was the fifth in a family of six children. He was born in Liverpool, July 26, 1812, and came to this country at the age of twelve. He entered the ministry feeling a deep call for the work, and until the last day of his life worked indefatigably in Philadelphia churches. He was a typical broad churchman in the Protestant Episcopal Church. His gift for talking to children made him justly and widely known far beyond his own denomination.

Newton, R:, D.D. Heroes of the early church. Phil., American S. S. Union, 1888. c. 292 p. il. D. cl., n. p.

Articles originally prepared for The Youth's World. Gives sketches of nineteen heroes who lived during the first six hundred years after Christ.

Newton, Rev. W: Wilberforce. A father's blessing, and other sermons for children. N. Y., Robert Carter & Bros., [1888.] c. 3–343 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

The first twelve sermons relate to the blessings Jacob left to his sons, bringing out the peculiarities of every character from Reuben to Benjamin. The remaining twelve are practical talks, made vivid by anecdotes, on such subjects as "Lessons from the clock," "Dogs," "Satan's fishing tackle," "Wells and water-pipes," etc. Doctor Newton is justly renowned for his happy methods of interesting children.

The author acknowledges his indebtedness for material to the works on Bacon written by Froude, Prof. S. R. Gardiner, and such partisan biographers as Spedding and Dr. Abbott. He claims to be more impartial than any of these writers in his judgments of Bacon's career, and to have taken great pains to arrive at the exact truth.

Noble, Annette Lucile. The silent man's legacy. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] 379 p. 1 il. S. cl., $1.25.

The same family appears in this story as in "The professor's girls," by the same author, although it is in no sense a sequel to that work. Here we have the story of the household during times of anxiety and considerable distress, and learn many good lessons on the true way to endure such experiences so as to get from them the discipline and strength they are designed to give. The book is specially adapted to young girls, during and after school age.

Nobody knows ; or, facts that are not fictions in the life of an unknown ; by a nobody. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1888. c. 2–290 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The name is not given of the subject of this biography; he figures as the "Unknown" throughout. He is apparently a real personage, who dedicated his life to righting the miseries of the poor and oppressed. A number of original poems intersperse the text.

Norcross, Jonathan. The history of Democracy, considered as a party name and as a political organization. Atlanta, Ga., S. P. Richards & Son, 1888. S. pap., 30 c.

Nordhoff, C: Peninsular California : some account of the climate, soil, productions, and present condition chiefly of the northern half of Lower California. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 3–130 p. il. sq. O. cl., $1 ; pap., 75 c.

When Mr. Nordhoff published this book on California in 1872, he was believed to have overestimated the resources of the state. It has now been proved that he underestimated them. He has since given special attention to the part he now describes and in 1887 bought land there. This book embodies his reasons for doing so. There are two maps made from careful surveys and many comparative tables of climate, products, taxation, etc. The illustrations, mostly of trees, show the luxuriant vegetation of the country. From an agricultural and political standpoint this is a useful book.

Norris, W. E. Chris. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1888. 187 p. D. (Globe lib., no. 61.) pap., 25 c.

Of this novel the London Bookseller says: "As a writer of society novels Mr. Norris holds a high position, and his latest effort will undoubtedly maintain his present reputation. His heroine, who gives title to the book, is a fascinating though somewhat free-and-easy young lady, who does all kinds of rash and compromising things in the most reckless and unthinking fashion. It is in the delineation of these delicate situations that the author's power becomes conspicuous. From the moment we meet this most interesting heroine, down to parting with her, on the occasion of her happy marriage, we follow the story with intense pleasure."

Norris, W. E. The rogue. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1888. 3+507 p. S. (Leisure hour ser., no. 220.) cl., $1; pap., 35 c.

Two heroes divide the interest—Oswald Kennedy, a high-minded, cultured, cynical man, who has lived abroad a great deal, and only returns to England on the death of his father, to take possession of his estate, and Tom Heywood, his nephew, who is seven years older than Oswald, and who in his early life believed himself the heir of his grandfather—that is Oswald's father. Tom is the "rogue"—though few people are convinced of his character, even at the end of the story. His pleasant, easy disposition gains friends, where Oswald's reticence often loses them. The story is a study of character, with a couple of love experiences and a number of scenes from English country life.

Brief biographies of the President and members of his cabinet, in which is embraced a history of the administration; to which is added the President's message on the tariff; the Democratic platform of 1888; letters of acceptance, and other valuable documents, including a biography of Hon. Allen G. Thurman.

Nursery (The), Q. 23*d year*. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, 1888. il. sq. O. bds., $1.25.

Nye, Edgar W: Bill Nye's thinks: prepared at the instigation of the author in response to a loud, piercing and popular demand. Chic., The Dearborn Pub. Co., 1888. c. 3+181 p. T. pap., 25 c.

A choice selection of some of Mr. Nye's most humorous papers.

Nye, Edgar W., and Riley, Ja. Whitcomb. Nye and Riley's railway guide; il. by Baron De Grimm, E. Zimmermann, Walt, McDougall, and others. Chic., The Dearborn Pub. Co., 1888. c. 7+203 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The humor of the book begins with the title which is purposely misleading. The book is not a guide of any kind except to good humor, a hearty laugh, a hearty meal, sound sleep, and general comfort. The preface states that railway guides and maps are so misleading that this one has been prepared to while away time after losing or missing trains owing to the inaccurary of all railway guides and maps. It is simply a collection of humorous prose and poetry of unusual merit.

Oakley, Mrs. Caroline, and Fern, Willie, [pseuds. of W. H. F. Briggs.] The career of the stolen boy, Charlie. Chic., W: H. F. Briggs, 1888. c. 197 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The little hero is named "Charlie Ross," but he is not the Charlie Ross of world-wide fame abducted some years ago. This boy is stolen from his mother by his drunken father and carried out across the Rockies and into California. The father dies, the boy finds other protectors, mines in the Sierra, discovers his mother, makes a home for her, accumulates a fortune, loses it, and builds up another in Arizona, etc., etc.

Ober, F. A. The Knockabout Club in the Antilles and thereabouts. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, [1888.] c. 239 p. il. O. cl., $2; bds., $1.50.

The birds, plants, places of interest, etc., in the Lesser Antilles, or Caribbees, are here described. Many adventures, too, are combined, the actors being the same characters as appeared in previous volumes of the series.

Ober, F: A. Montezuma's gold mines; with 12 il. by Hy. Sandham. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 4–191 p. D. cl., $1.

The author bases his story—the third he has written of Mexican life and adventure—on the popular belief that gold mines of great value have existed in Mexico since the days of Cortez. The hero is a young naturalist, who goes to Mexico in the employ of the United States government, to make a collection of bird specimens. He is regarded with suspicion by some of the Indians, who finally seize him, burn his notes, books, and specimens, and carry him to a distant point, with the warning never to return. He makes the acquaintance of one of his captors, a young Indian named Juanito, who helps him to escape, and after they are safely away they form a plan to go in search of Montezuma's gold mines.

O'Brien, Harry. The prairie boy: a story of the west. N. Y., P. J. Kenedy, 1888. 3–268 p. il. S. (Drops of honey lib.) cl., 75 c.

Wisconsin is the scene of this story; the hero is a little New York boy whose father emigrates to the west when Jimmie is only nine years old. Jimmie loses his health and becomes lame. This great affliction the boy turns into a blessing almost, through his courage and patience. He becomes a great student and finally a prominent public man. For Catholic children.

Red Riding Hood, Little Bo-Peep, Little Jack Horner, Old Mother Hubbard, Cinderella, Tom, the piper's son, Little Boy Blue, and Little Miss Moffett look very fresh and pleasing in their new attire, and seem quite at home in their decidedly new Kensington art cover, with embossed gilt title.

Oliphant, Mrs. M. O. W. Joyce: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 191 p. O. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 620.) pap., 35 c.
Colonel Hayward accepts the invitation of his young subaltern, Captain Bellendean, to go down to Scotland with him to attend the festivities incident to his coming of age and heir to a large country-seat. Here the Colonel meets a beautiful girl whom he hears addressed as "Joyce." She recalls old memories. Joyce proves to be the daughter of the Colonel's first wife. She is taken home to Richmond, and she and Mrs. Hayward take some time to learn to live together. Joyce has two lovers, one Captain Bellendean, the other a Scotch schoolmaster. From a sincere wish to do the best thing possible for all who love her and whom she loves, she does a most unexpected thing which brings the rather slim plot to a totally unforeseen climax.

Oliphant, Mrs. M. O. W., and Aldrich, T. B. The second son: a novel. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 6+524 p. D. cl., $1.50.
The reader is let into all the family secrets of the Mitfords of Melcombe, with whom he finds himself intimately acquainted after a perusal of this thick volume. The Mitfords are an English country family consisting of a father, three sons, and one unmarried daughter. The fortune of each son is followed out most carefully. The first loses his inheritance because he refuses to marry as his father desires, and loses his life through the ill temper of the younger brother. It is this younger brother, Stephen, who is the bad element of the story, although his father's favorite. Edmund, "the second son," wins the reader's cordial liking. The whole story is one of every-day incidents, told in Mrs. Oliphant's usual sympathetic manner. The story has been running in the Atlantic.

O'Reilly, J: Boyle. Ethics of boxing and manly sport. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 17+358 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Not intended as a mere manual for the special use of skilled professional or amateur athletics, though necessarily many of its details refer particularly to these classes. The main purpose is to bring into consideration the high value, moral and intellectual as well as physical, of those exercises that develop healthy constitutions, cheerful minds, manly self-confidence, and appreciation of the beauties of nature and natural enjoyment. The first part treats of the ethics and evolution of boxing, and embraces the rules of the ring; following are chapters on the training of athletes tested by every-day life, and ancient Irish athletic games, exercises, and weapons. Completed by sketches of canoeing upon the Connecticut, Susquehanna, and Delaware Rivers. Freely illustrated.

Original 'Mr. Jacobs (The): a startling exposé. N. Y., The Minerva Pub. Co., 10 W. 23d St., [1888.] c. 5+308 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Claims to be "an account of the life, customs, and habits of the Jews." It is in fact a bitter and unwarranted attack upon the race as found in Europe and this country. It is an abstract, mostly, of La France Juive by Edward Drumont, published in Paris.

Osborne, Duffield. The spell of Ashtaroth. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 7+234 p. D. cl., $1.

The story opens on the seventh day of the siege of Jericho under Joshua, and strictly follows the Bible account of the fall of the city and the horrible slaughter of all the inmates by command of Joshua. Achan disobeyed the command and stole and hid some of the "accursed things" of Jericho, and his son Adriel, the hero of this modern version, saves and hides a beautiful Chaldean maiden, whom he has found in prayer before the female idol Ashtaroth. Success deserts the arms of Israel, a trial is made, and it is found that Achan's sin is the cause. Adriel confesses his guilt also and meets his punishment with the girl for whom he has doubted Jehovah and almost believed that the spell of Ashtaroth would save him.

O'Shaughnessy, T: Terence O'Dowd; or, Romanism to-day: an Irish story founded on facts. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] 350 p. il. S. cl., $1.15.

The author in his introduction announces his purpose to be to instruct and awaken the people or the Protestant Churches to a clearer conception of nineteenth century Romanism in countries where its power is uncontrolled. Especially does he desire to warn Protestant parents of the danger of sending their children to Romanist schools.

Oswald, E. J. The dragon of the north: a tale of the Normans in Italy. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1888. 10+350 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The monk, Fra Laurentio, whom the author makes the narrator of this romance of the early Middle Ages, is said to be an historic character. At that time three powers wrestled together in Southern Italy. the Greeks, the local Lombard princes, and the German emperors of the West. Their endless strife laid the land open to the attacks of the Saracens, who laid it waste or settled in colonies and fortresses along the coast, made prisoners and tortured them in the manner described. The dragon is supposed to be the original of the griffin of mediæval romance.

Otis, Ja. Little Joe. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 3–246 p. il. D. cl., $1.

"Little Joe" is a story something in the "Tobey Tyler" line, and by the same author. The hero is a little newsboy, alone in the world, yet with plenty of pluck and perseverance. He is a newsboy not because he wishes to be, but because he is obliged to be. He has to make a living, and that is the only way open to him. He has push, and circumstances aid him, so that he at last finds himself out of the contaminating air of the city streets, on a large farm, where he finds life well worth living. It is a bright, healthy story, which will be read eagerly by boys from ten to fifteen.

Owen, Catherine, (pseud.) Gentle breadwinners; the story of one of them. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. '87. 186 p. D cl., $1.

The story of a young girl, who is left friendless and penniless through her father's death. She does not possess any brilliant accomplishment or gifts, but is proud and independent and determined not to be a burthen to her friends or relatives. After failing at dressmaking, she turns her knowledge of fine cooking to account. The book relates her experience in selling her mince-meat, preserves, fancy cakes, candy, etc., to the Woman's Exchanges in New York City, and her success not only in gaining a living but in building up a permanent business. All the recipes she uses are given, a good index making them easy of reference.

Owen, Catherine. [now Mrs. C. O. Nitsch.] Molly Bishop's family. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 6+270 p. D. cl., $1.

On a thread of story this practical housekeeper strings many excellent ideas on the management of babies, servants, and homes. The early death of Molly Bishop's husband forces her to earn her children's bread and butter, which she does by keeping boarders and making puddings, pies, and cake to be sold at the woman's exchange. The recipes for all these dainties are embodied in the story.

The book is dedicated to John L. Le Conte, M.D., the leading entomologist of America. The author has aimed to make it useful to different classes of readers. Besides treating of the elements of the science and the means of ascertaining to what order and family insects belong, the reader is referred to descriptive works and reports, while chapter 5 gives the fundamental principles of economic entomology, with brief accounts of the more injurious insects, and the natural and artificial means of checking their attacks. It is hoped the copious glossary will make the book useful to agricultural editors, and useful as a text-book in agricultural schools and colleges.

Page, T: Nelson. Two little Confederates. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 5+156 p. il. O. cl., $1.50.

The story of two little boys who are left at home on a Virginia plantation with their mother and the negroes, their father and uncle having gone on to Richmond. Frank and Willy only see the bright side of the war, all the hardships and changes being so much fun to them. They have many adventures with both Confederates and "Yankees," and there is also a dash of pathos over a dying Federal soldier. The fact that the incidents are just such as might and probably did happen in war-time to two bright, brave little boys makes the book most fascinating. Illustrated with a number of full-page pictures.

Palmer, A. J. Divorce abolished: a treatise. 2d ed. N. Y., The Baker & Taylor Co., 1888. c. 85 p. D. cl., 75 c.

The causes of disagreement in married life the author classes under ten general headings. When these are remedied or done away with he rightly believes divorce may be abolished. These causes are: 1. The ignorance of women in the conduct of households. 2. The lack of sympathy between men and women. 3. The lack of proper respect, in both men and women, for womanly employments. 4. The lack of business training in women. 5. The failure, on the part of the husband, to respect the wife's ownership of herself. 6. Habits of dissipation. 7. The undue idealism with which young people enter married life. 8. The interference of outsiders. 9. Finances. 10. The balance of power now resting in the hands of the husband.

Mrs. Marlow is a widow with a large fortune; a false claim is made on her by a pretended friend of her husband for a large sum in United States bonds; one night she finds this man in her room, where he has secured the bonds; not only is her property stolen, but she is abducted, imprisoned in a mad-house, while her son spends many fruitless months searching for her. The burning of the asylum sets her free after many thrilling experiences, and all her wrongs are finally righted.

Incidents of an exciting nature forecaste a plot that nvolves a sudden social downfall and an attempt to imulate death in order to obtain a large sum of money; upon the success of this scheme and the manner of executing it the interest depends, although a new element is added in the shape of two love affairs, and a double resurrection, which bring about an unlooked for ending to a very sensational novel.

Parkes, Harry. That sister-in-law of mine. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1888. 27 p. obl. Q. hf. sateen, $1.50.

A series of pictures with almost superfluous explanatory text tells the story of the surprise of the brother-in-law, who consented to have the heroine stay with her sister during vacation, imagining her a raw young schoolgirl, when he finds her "a giantess," intensely self-possessed, full of fun and mischief, and bent on changing all his ideas and habits. The author and artist of "The man who would like to marry" and "The girl who wouldn't mind getting married" has made another success. Printed on one side only of heavy paper and attractively bound.

Parmelee, Rev. M. P., M.D. Home and work by the rivers of Eden. Phil., American S. S. Union, 1888. c. 5–197 p. il. D. cl.

Erzroom, in Asiatic Turkey, near the source of one branch of the Euphrates, is supposed by Mr. Parmelee to be near the site of Eden. He did not find it an Eden in his experience. The story of his missionary work is told in an attractive way, that will please the young people. He seems to be a cheerful optimist, making the best of conditions which were often hard and at times dangerous. He gives a series of pictures of life and work among the Turks near the borders of Russia.

Parr, Mrs. Louisa. Loyalty George. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1888. 2+358 p. S. (Leisure hour ser., no. 213.) cl., $1 ; pap., 30 c.

The odd title of this novel is the name of the heroine, who is named after her father's ship. The girl is brave and beautiful, but has grown up in poverty and ignorance, her only associates the rough outlaws her grandfather has gathered around him. There is a mystery and a tragedy connected with Loyalty's history, which has set her apart from the good people of Plymouth, in which old English town she was born. The one passion of her life is her love for Roger Coode, who is quite incapable of appreciating her innate nobility, which has remained untarnished in spite of her surroundings. This love is the chief motive of the book and the cause of its many incidents.

So much new matter has been added and so many changes made that this is practically a new work. Pt. 1, "Rudimentary navigation," has been rewritten and greatly enlarged and improved with numerous illustrations. Pt. 2, "Practical navigation," has also been rewritten, and the rules for finding a vessel's position by dead reckoning and by observation are so simplified that even the novice, it is thought, may soon become sufficiently self-taught to navigate his yacht around the world. Pt. 3, "Yacht discipline," has been revised, and many interesting and valuable articles and il. added. Pt. 4 is entirely new, and details all the intricacies of marlinespike seamanship, standing and running rigging, working and racing sails, etc., etc., in a clear and practical manner. Pt. 5 completes the work with il. dictionaries of ship building and nautical terms, a yacht captain's medical guide, and U. S. laws governing steam and sail yacts.

Patton, Jacob Harris. Natural resources of the United States. N.Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 16+523 p. O. cl., $3.

The intention of this volume is to give the American people a concise narrative of the natural resources of their own country, in all their numerous forms. The work is unusually complete and thorough, having been compiled from information placed at the disposition of the author by the governors of the various states and from material derived from other authentic sources. There are chapters on coal, petroleum, natural gas, iron ores, gold, silver, copper, quicksilver, lead, zinc, tin, precious stones, clays, building-stones, salt, timber, grasses, fruits, game, etc.

Illustrates the adage that "listeners never hear any good of themselves." Among other things that Ned Browne inherits from an eccentric uncle is a blue jar full of a black paste which turns out to be fern-seed. Directions accompany it saying if one eats a portion of it he becomes invisible. The antidote to the dose is a lump of sugar. Ned Browne experiments with the fern-seed, and assists invisibly at a consultation of his doctors, visits his club and his sweetheart in the same way, and hears some unwelcome truths.

Mirbridge is the familiar country town in character and surroundings that the English novel has made us so well acquainted with. The return of Sir Richard Trevor to Trevor Court after twenty-five years' absence with an unknown wife and grown son, has set all the gossips talking in the early chapters. This wife and son are the heart of the mystery, which is unravelled with much dexterity.

The present work has been written on the basis of the maxim that economy and simplicity are not incompatible with excellence and elegance. The compiler has also borne in mind that there is an increasingly large class of persons who, without being vegetarians, consume a greater amount of vegetable and farinaceous food than was customary years back. These persons will find an unusually large number of recipes under "vegetables" and "puddings." The book is divided into two parts, viz.: Recipes and general directions. The parts are subdivided into chapters and the chapters arranged alphabetically in dictionary style under subjects.

In this work Mr. Payson shows that the methods of advance in the realms of matter and of morals are entirely unlike, and endeavors to recall the thought of America from its intense devotion to material pursuits and acquisitions to the far more important objects which demand attention in ethics and social life. He suggests very important considerations with regard to the family, indicating wherein it differs from society, the state, the school, the church. The book treats large subjects in a sincere spirit and with excellent ability.

Peabody, Andrew P., D.D. Harvard reminiscences. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 6+216 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Prof. Peabody offers here 70 biographical sketches of the Harvard College officers whose names appeared with his in the several annual catalogues in which he was registered as undergraduate, theological student, and tutor. "Of some of these men," he says, "I have very little, of others much to say. Much of what I tell I saw and heard; the rest was derived from authentic sources of information." The sketches embrace 56 years of college life, from 1776 to 1831 (inclusive). The volume is completed by a chapter containing some of the author's reminiscences of Harvard College as it was during his novitiate as a student.

History and romance are cunningly interwoven, and the result is a story which introduces a family of Royalists, whose father becomes a refugee from France, a Puritan minister and his daughter, Adrian Ibbetson, and several other real and fictitious characters, and a few graphic scenes in the life of Charles II. The character delineations are excellent. The bold cover design seems to be made with a view to pleasing the juvenile eye.

The first number of a new series entitled The Elite opens in Quebec with a mysterious tragedy, that costs a young Englishman his life and involves a priest, two noblemen, the warden of the Ursuline Convent, and a young nun; then the scene changes to an English one and the story recedes, introduces the characters, and gives a clue to the motive of a plot which encompasses an abduction, Miñon's rescue, and the happy incident that ends an exciting novel.

Pearson, H: Clemens. Her opportunity. N. Y., Ward & Drummond, 1889 [1888.] c. 3–462 p. D. cl., $1.50.
The author's views upon certain social questions are illustrated in a story whose scenes alternate between the most fashionable quarter and the dirtiest slums; in localities familiar to every New Yorker the votary of fashion mingles freely with the ill-paid workman, and even the beggar or the most vicious rough. The heroine is young, beautiful, wealthy, and of high social position, when she becomes an instrument of reform and gives herself up to a scheme to better the condition of the paper-box makers. Upon her furtherance of this scheme and her manner of dealing with a political question the interest depends, although the book has side issues, dealing with intemperance and its attending evils, and the bearing that mission work has upon this evil. Author of "His opportunity."

The witty author says our Commissioner of Patents has abandoned all idea of ever again taking stock of the patents evolved by Yankee brains for great conveniences, little conveniences, alleged conveniences, imitation conveniences, and over-the-left conveniences. This volume is to give notable instances of the latter class. It is very happily illustrated.

Mr. Pellew spent four months last summer in Ireland. He went there armed with numerous letters of introduction, that he might carry out a plan of interviewing representative men of all shades of opinion on home rule. He made full notes of all his conversations and reproduces them in this work. They represent records of talk with over two hundred people, "including officials, landlords, land-agents, priests, farmers, professional men, merchants, shopkeepers, commercial travellers, and laborers." They are of course contradictory, as many arguing against home rule as for it.

Pen; by the author of "Miss Toosey's mission." Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. 294 p. S. cl., $1.
"Pen" is fifteen when the story shows her comforting her little sister while their idolized mother lies dead and their artist father forgets them in his grief. Pen's mother ran away from her aristocratic home to marry Pen's father and for sixteen years saw nothing of her only sister, Lady Penelope, who plays her part in the girls' lives, however. The children have learned to look for kindness and companionship to dear, ugly freckled "Sandy," a man in good circumstances, who throughout the ten years covered by this tale takes care of everybody in the way the author of "Miss Toosey's Mission" makes so helpful as example for all readers.

Pendleton, Edmund. A Virginia inheritance: a novel. N. Y., D. Appleton & Co., 1888. c. 303 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 6.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.
A successful New York lawyer is employed by a rich man to go south and arrange negotiations for his entrance into his "Virginia inheritance." He finds a most original family living under happy-go-lucky circumstances and also meets his fate in the beautiful elder daughter. New York and Virginia society are admirably contrasted. Two life histories of interesting women are worked into the plot, and the character drawing of the women who lead society, their aims and ambitions, is excellent.

Pendleton, L: Bewitched: a tale. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 3+288 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., v. 1, no. 10.) pap., 50 c.
"Bewitched" is a story of Florida. The hero is a hater of mankind; he obtains a grant of land from the Government and buries himself far away from civilization on the southwestern coast of Florida. His solitude is invaded by a strange party of people, who arrive in a yacht and take possession of an empty house. There is an old gentleman and beautiful girl, apparently the prisoners of a dark-browed Spaniard, some colored servants, and a "Voudoo" woman. They all have parts in an exciting tale of love and revenge. Two short stories complete the book, "Ariadne in the wire-glass" and "The story of black Dan."

Pennell, Jos. and Eliz. Robins. Our sentimental journey through France and Italy. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1888. c. 13+268 p. il. and maps, D. cl., $1.75.
The ground gone over by Mr. and Mrs. Pennell is the same as that described by Laurence Sterne in his "Sentimental journey." Their journey was made on a tricycle in the same manner as "A Canterbury pilgrimage" and "Two pilgrims' progress," through the highways and byways, with frequent stoppings to see the sights of large cities, or single places of interest in small ones. The book is charmingly illustrated by the authors, and very attractively gotten up.

Phelan, Ja. History of Tennessee, the making of a state. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 5+478 p. map, D. cl., $2.

Mr. Phelan, who is a native of Tennessee, and now represents one of its districts in Congress, has made a very careful study of the history of Tennessee, and in this work contributes an excellent addition to the state histories of our country. In his preface, after describing in a few sentences the development of civilization and government in Tennessee, with its processes and results, and stating that these form the real history of the state, he adds: "It is the story of this history which I have attempted to narrate without going unduly into detail, and not passing over wholly in silence the individuals who have been the factors of this law, or the occasional adventures which surround them with the golden light of mediæval romance. This story, if accurately and impartially told, the author imagines, may not be altogether without interest; showing to the outside world the justice of this state's claim to a place of honor among the commonwealths of the Union, and recalling to the minds of her children the fact that their forefathers were men of brave hearts, of pure ambition, and of great achievements."

A young girl brought up by her widowed father in the midst of old servants, naturally turns out an entirely unconventional character : such is "Benedicta." To obtain the polish and restraint society demands, her father places her with Mrs. Blake, a lady of limited means who has raised a large family. The Blakes figure largely in Benedicta's life, and her sweet, honest nature influences all about her. Her father's second marriage, her own love for Gresham Blake, Olive Blake's unfortunate attachment to a married man, Mrs. Blake's impecuniosity and frequent debts, are but a few of the interesting parts of this novel.

Philpott, H: J. Tariff chats. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 39 p. D. (Questions of the day, no. 52.) pap., 25 c.

Addressed to the American citizen who, when asked his views on the tariff question, answers, "I don't understand it." These little chats endeavor, quite successfully, in homely language to explain the "mystery"—by showing what is a tariff tax, what are trusts, what are the duties on iron, steel, etc., what are the relations between the tariff and wages, etc., etc.

Pierson, Ernest de Lancey. A slave of circumstances: a story of New York. Chic. and N. Y., Belford, Clarke & Co., 1888. c. 4+195 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The author has risen to high rank among the young poets who have written society verses. He now writes a story of New York City life introducing characters from all classes of society. The hero is found very poor and shabby and almost ready to commit suicide on a doorstep in Fifth Avenue by a member of the Impecunious Club. This club looks up good-looking talented men, puts them on their feet, introduces them to good families, and helps them win the affections of girls with money, upon condition that a percentage of the lady's capital shall after marriage be paid regularly toward the expenses of the club.

"The matter here treated has been on my mind and heart for many years. Heart-sickening facts have come to my notice within the past few months, and I feel it my duty to send out this warning in regard to what I consider the first and greatest danger of our family and national life. I believe the prevention or destruction of unborn human life to be, par excellence, the American sin, and that, if not checked, it will sooner or later be our calamity."—Preface. An appendix gives the laws of most of the states and territories regarding certain forms of crime.

Pool, Maria Louise. Tenting at Stony Beach. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. 5+ 236 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The two enterprising ladies who last year rode through the Berkshire Hills in "A vacation in a buggy" have this year pitched their tent on the Cape Cod coast and are ready to get and give as much enjoyment as before. With the same keen sense of humor they seize on every peculiarity of the native fishermen and their wives and children, and give a series of pictures of scenery, people, animals, and customs indigenous to the soil. An element of pathos is cleverly and feelingly introduced. In contrast to the natives the peculiar race of summer boarders is sketched. A pretty cover design showing tent, beach, and water, tempts every one to put this book in a trunk for a hot afternoon.

Poole, Stanley Lane, assisted by Gibb, E. J. W., and Gilman, Arthur. The story of Turkey. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 15+ 373 p. map and il. D. (Story of the nations ser.) cl., $1.50.

The main outlines of Turkish history are given from the year 1250 until 1880. Clearness and brevity have been the main considerations. The author gives facts, but does not moralize about them. The naval history he only slightly touches, as this will be covered in the "Story of the corsairs," which he is writing for the series. Mr. Gibb gave special attention to the chapters on Ottoman literature and Ottoman administration; and Mr. Arthur Gilman was helpful on the modern period. The book is one of the most interesting in this excellent series.

Poor, H: V. Twenty-two years of protection. N. Y., H. V. & H. W. Poor, [1888.] c. 222 p. O. pap., 25 c.

Mr. Poor, the well-known editor of the "Manual of Railroads of the U.S.," divides his work into three periods, that of "Construction" covering the period from the formation of our government to the close of the administration of John Quincy Adams; that of "Destruction" extending from the beginning of Jackson's administration to the restoration of peace in 1865; that of "Restoration" extending from 1865 to 1887. It is this last division of time that the title covers, the book aiming to show the advantages of the protective policy during that period. The other divisions only lead up to this, being a historical résumé of the question. Some twenty pages of railroad statistics complete the pamphlet, and are offered as illustration and evidence of the writer's argument.

Porter, Jermain G. Our celestial home: an astronomer's view of heaven. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] c. 116 p. S. cl., $1.

The scientific author is Director of the Cincinnati Observatory. His theory is that nature was cursed for man's spiritual sin and that we have no reason to think the curse extended beyond our own planet, that this idea is an unwarrantable assumption, that we must acknowledge that, with the exception of this one tiny globe, the material universe still exists in its pristine purity, and may well be a fit dwelling-place for immortal holy beings. He bases all his arguments on Bible quotation, and an array of astronomical facts. His mind is poetic and his ideas are inspiring and encouraging.

Presidential campaign (The) of 1896 : a scrapbook chronicle ; comp. by an editor of that period. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1888. c. 3–163 p. D. pap., 50 c.

By the author of "The battle of Bietigheim," and like that work a prophetic picture of the near future of the United States. The volume consists of scraps of all kinds seemingly cut from the daily papers of 1896; these extracts narrate the events of a presidential campaign in which the struggle is between the National party and the Labor party. The latter party represents all the worst elements of socialism and anarchy, and after a fierce struggle, during which the whole country is aroused, finds its Waterloo in 1896.

Pressensé, E. de, D.D. The ancient world and Christianity ; tr. by Annie Harwood Holmden. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, [1888.] 25+479 p. O. cl., $1.75.

The author asserts that positive science can only deal with matter. There is a higher sphere to be explored by methods appropriate to it—the moral world of conscience and duty. He describes the religions and philosophies of the ancient world, of the Chaldeans, Phœnicians, Aryans, Vedas, the Buddhists, etc., reviews Hellenic and Roman paganism, and gives an historical picture of the world at the birth of Christ, whom he recognizes as the Saviour of the world. He claims that all these religions assumed to relieve and raise humanity and were all a preparation to kindle in mankind the desire for a Redeemer. He thinks that through all the ancient religions man sought God; in the religion of the gospels God sought man and delivered him. The translation is excellent. Good index.

Preyer, W. The mind of the child. Pt. 1, The senses and the will : observations concerning the mental development of the human being in the first years of life; from the German by H. W. Brown. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. tr. 26+346 p. D. (International education ser., no. 7.) cl., $1.50.

The author is professor of physiology in Jena, Germany. He has already published works upon the physiology of the child both before and after birth. In this book he studies the development of the mind during the first years of the child's life, based on minute observations of his own child during its first three years. He has also written another part devoted to the intellect, which will follow almost immediately. The studies in heredity are of great interest, the author considering it a fact of as much importance as individual activity in the genesis of the mind.

Price, Ella Brown. The major's love; or, the sequel of a crime. Phil., T. B. Peterson & Bros., [1888.] c. 17–179 p. sq. S. pap., 50 c.

The scene is western Missouri, the period considerably after the rebellion, and the theme, the love of a former Union officer for the daughter of a rebel raider whom he believes he killed during the war, but whose death popular opinion ascribes to assassination. The raider's murder stands as a bar between the lover and the beloved. There is a vein of enjoyable humor pervading the novel, principally sustained by Little Elf, a bright and precocious child, though some mirthful incidents are contributed by an aged negro, Uncle Lem, and Tom, a colored boy.

Prime, S: Irenæus. Autobiography and memorials; ed. by his son Wendell Prime. N.Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] c. 13+385 p. por. O. cl., $1.75.

S. Irenæus Prime was born at Ballston, N. Y., in 1812. At fourteen he entered Williams College and graduated in 1829. He taught for three years and then studied theology in the seminary at Princetown. In 1835 he was ordained and installed pastor of the Presbyterian church in Ballston Spa, N. Y. In 1840 he became editor of the N. Y. Observer, and in 1858 its proprietor. He died July 18, 1885. This autobiography is divided into six parts; Pt. 1 consists of the letters of Irenæus which appeared in the N. Y. Observer during 1886; Pt. 2 describes his residence in Newark; Pt. 3, residence in Brooklyn; Pt. 4, residence in New York City; Pt. 5, personal associations; and Pt. 6, death and commemoration. An appendix gives a list of his publications, and there is a good index.

Prime, Wendell. Fifteenth century Bibles: a study in bibliography. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1888. 94+7 p. O. cl., $1.50.

This study of the Bibles of the fifteenth century includes the oldest of printed books, and only those which are included in the class called Incunabula, namely books printed during the first half century of the art, 1450–1500 A.D. The history of the printed Bible is the history of the invention and progress of the art of printing. A detailed description of the ten chapters into which this valuable book is divided appeared in the P. W. for December 8, [no. 880.]

Princess Daphne (The): a novel. Chic. and N. Y., Belford, Clarke & Co., 1888. c. 5–260 p. il. D. $1; pap., 50 c.

Mesmerism plays a large part in this novel. The characters are taken mostly from "Bohemia," and are not notable for their high moral qualities. The "Princess Daphne" is a Creole and an artist of some reputation, her story being mostly evolved in London. She has a lover, Eric Trevanion, who is an important factor in her life. Paul du Peyral, who obtains a fortune through her refusal to marry him, experiments with mesmerism through a woman he loves upon the "Princess," and thus obtains her secrets. The reader is asked to believe that he is her "double," and that his soul enters her body on his death, working a complete mental transformation in her.

Proudhon was a French writer on economics, b. 1809, d. 1865; many of his theories are such as are held by Marx and most of the later socialists. This is considered his greatest work; it was first published in 1846. It constitutes the fourth volume of Proudhon's "Complete works," and is uniform in style with the first volume, "What is property?" The second and third volumes of the complete works have not yet been published in English. The next volume to appear will be the fifth of the complete works—that is, the second and final volume of the "Economical contradictions."

Sarah Pugh was born in Virginia, October 6, 1800. She was an earnest member of the Society of Friends. In 1829 she established a school in Philadelphia, and all through her long career as a teacher of girls her influence upon their character was far-reaching and lasting. Her name is identified with all the great social movements of the century. She was an earnest worker for the abolition of slavery, for woman suffrage, moral education, and every reform that tended to truth, justice, and the improvement of her fellow-men. She was associated with all the prominent people of her day, and the extracts from her diaries give many interesting facts. She died in 1884.

Pure (A) souled liar. Chic., C: H. Kerr & Co., 1888. c. 191 p. D. pap., 50 c.

This remarkable title characterizes a foolish young girl, who is held up as worthy of example, because she assumes the consequence of her friend's sin, and ruins her own character in the eyes of the world, through a Quixotic estimate of the requirements of friendship. The scene is laid in Boston. The two girls who are the heroines are art students. The unconventionality of student-life develops their Bohemian instincts, and in the author's opinion makes them weak in temptation.

Putnam, Eleanor, [Mrs. Bates,] and Bates, Arlo. Prince Vance; the story of a prince with a court in his box; il. by Frank Myrick. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. 3-153 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The Prince Vance was a naughty, idle, impatient little prince, who was rude to all around him, and chose the worst associates. The Blue Wizard, who was always showing him new tricks, gave him a bon-bon one day and told him to give it to the royal court to eat, and wait for the effect. All who ate of it became pygmies, and the Prince was left at the mercy of a fierce general, who kicked him out of the castle. To save his father and mother, and the royal court, he had gathered them together in a small box, and with this he travels the world over, gaining many new experiences and learning many lessons in patience and good temper.

Pyle, Howard. Otto of the silver hand; written and il. by Howard Pyle. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 8+170 p. O. hf. leath., $2.

Illustrated in the same mediæval style as Mr. Pyle's "Merry adventures of Robin Hood." It contains twenty-five full-page pictures, and many decorative head and tail pieces. The scene of the tale is mediæval Germany in the days of the robber barons, when family feuds and the general lawlessness of the time gave scope to numberless deeds of bravery and cruelty. Otto is a most interesting figure, with a loving and tender nature, which often suffers among the rough chieftains with whom he is thrown. In the text and in artistic merit, the book is far above the ordinary juvenile.

Q., (pseud.) The astonishing history of Troy Town. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] 4+308 p. D. (Cassell's rainbow ser., v. 1, no 29.) pap., 25 c.

In a sleepy little seaport town of old England the important people were an admiral who played the bass viol, his enslaved wife, rather good-for-nothing son, and three correct daughters, a pair of twin brothers and their innocent sister, a portly, antique vicar, a sad poet, and several sailors. They lived a life of simplicity and small gossip until two strangers came to live at "The Bower." These upset the town; the lady was gay and social, and her supposed husband put little restraint upon her. In three months these strangers disappeared, and among other things reported of them was that they were dynamiters and smugglers.

Queen Money; by the author of "The Story of Margaret Kent." Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 5-513 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The scenes and characters are taken from the literary and fashionable circles of New York. The struggle that goes on everywhere in the great metropolis for money, at the expense of all that is good and noble, is the subject illustrated. The leading characters are a prominent reviewer and his wife, who entertain all the "lions" of the city; the "lions" in turn expressing some caustic opinions of their brethren and their work. A young man, Otto March, who has an unprofitable experience in Wall St., and who seems for a time to be going to lose his lady-love also, is the chief hero.

Quick, C. Mysticism unmasked; or, ministration of the Holy Spirit. Cin., Standard Pub. Co., 1888. c. 286 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The author in his younger days was caused much anxious thought because of the mysticism that shrouded the special work of the Holy Spirit in the plan of man's redemption and final salvation. He consulted many teachers of theology, and failing to get a satisfactory answer, he searched the Scriptures for himself, and finding many facts on the subject, he he endeavors to make some of the mysteries plain for such are troubled as he was.

Quincy, J. P. The Peckster professorship: an episode in the history of psychical research. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 3+310 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Prof. Margrave had reached the Peckster professorship, the chair of osteology in an American college, the pinnacle of scientific reputation among the men of his day. He marries a rich widow who is well read in psychical and metaphysical science, but horrified when she learns her husband is ready to sacrifice his professorship to study a line of thought incompatible with the teachings of positive science. His object is to show "that what we call the soul is a distinct entity and does not depend upon organic structure for its existence." The book is made up of conversations on abstract researches. A well-drawn clergyman takes an important part in the learned discussions.

Raffensberger, Mrs. A. F. Patience Preston, M.D. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. '87. 4–327 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A bright and true young woman with a medical degree, and money enough to give her a start apparently, by a rather taxing accident settles down in a little city and gets at first the easiest kind of practice, that of the poor—for experience. She conquers society by her earnestness and intelligence finally and makes a permanent place for herself. There is a love tale also and a moral to the whole.

Ragozin, Zénaïde A. The story of Media, Babylon, and Persia; including a study of the Zend-Avesta or religion of Zoroaster, from the fall of Nineveh to the Persian war. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 18+447 p. il. and map, D. (Story of the nations ser.) cl., $1.50.

Continues the narratives the author begun in "The story of Chaldea" and "The story of Assyria." Almost half the book is devoted to the ancient religion of the Parsees and an account of the sacred books of that sect. The narrative portion of the book begins with "The last days of Judah," followed by a series of chapters on Media and the rise of Persia, and the Persian war. Bibliography.

Clever satirical papers which it is quite impossible to describe. They are entitled "The general condition of politics," "The state of science," "The moral, industrial, and social condition of the age," and "Literature and law." The writer is without doubt in sympathy with the administration. His little book casts ridicule upon some of the methods and assertions of the admirers of Mr. Blaine; also upon the present condition of our science, morality, and literature.

Rand, Rev. E: A. Making the best of it; or, tumble up, Tom. N. Y., T: Whittaker, [1888.] 6+281 p. il. D. (Look ahead series.) cl., $1.25.

In the "Look ahead series" the author has aimed to show that traits developed in youth cling tenaciously, and make or mar our entire lives; he claims that the same quality that carries us safely through is just as liable to wreck us. His views are exemplified in the present book, in the career of Tom Parlin, whose advent into the story is a mystery. His boyhood at the Parlins and his manner of baffling difficulties are the chief themes of a book which gives some room to the temperance question.

Rand, Rev. E: A. When the war broke out; or, sailor-boy Bob's sister. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt, 1888. c. 3–368 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Last January the author published "Sailor-boy Bob." That hero's sister Alma is the heroine of this story. The Walkers lose their money, Alma takes boarders, and is a help to all who are privileged to live with her. Her lover goes to the war and fights gallantly in the Army of the Potomac. Alma does her hard duty at home, but when he is wounded takes her place as nurse in the hospital. The emancipation of the negroes and the draft riots of 1863 are brought in.

"As the object of the present selection is to indicate the growth and extent of English and American ballad literature during the last thirty years, no author has been allotted more than a single selection. The ballads have been arranged in chronological order, and their date of publication has been fixed by their first appearance in book-form. Fugitive ballads have for this reason been excluded. . . . The volume very imperfectly represents the work of American poets. . . . In excuse for this defect I can only plead the unwillingness of various publishers to grant me permission to use pieces of which they own the copyright." — Preface. Bibliographical notes and indexes.

A strong Southwestern story dealing with a region and a type of humanity as yet unexplored by literary artists. The character-drawing is very good. "Old Hobdy," "Braley," and "Honeycut," all different characters, and all belonging to a new and rough school, are photographed so naturally that one at once recognizes them. The girl called "Ned" is a rough diamond, whose growth and polish is watched with rare interest; and "Len Gansett" is a young fellow who is a model of a hero, brave, generous, and impulsive. His grandfather, who played him so many curious pranks, is a splendid type of an old backwoods Southerner; while "Dachery" represents the country editor and politician.

Rebel rose (The): a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 252 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 627.) pap., 40 c.

The rebel rose, Mary Stuart Beaton, a lineal descendant of the Scotch queen, comes to London to influence Parliament to concede a claim she puts in for some of her famous ancestor's confiscated estates. Her beauty and pretentions make her the centre of numerous intrigues. She makes an enemy of Lady Saxon, a rival beauty, who attempts to work her ruin. Much of the action takes place in and around the House of Parliament.

In the picturesque surroundings of French Canada, in the country that was once known as Acadie, a most charming love story is evolved. The little heroine "Frank" is quite well worth the love that two men bestow upon her. A well-contrived mystery, a good deal of fresh and unconventional description and character sketching, and bright, clever conversations make up an unusually readable novel.

On the title-page of this work appears the warning motto, "I write for the pure." The author of the "Life of Jesus" develops through a prose drama, which takes place in the last days of the French revolution, a theory relating to love, which at the best must be characterized as dangerous. The tone of the book is elevated, and it is written with skill and also great sophistry, but at the same time it is not for general reading—even admitting the author's motive to be a good one.

Renan, Ernest. History of the people of Israel till the time of King David. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. 29+362 p. O. cl., $2.50.

Forty years ago Renan formed the plan of writing a "History of the origin of Christianity," which ought consistently to have begun with the present volume. His reason for not observing this chronological order was that human life is uncertain, and as he was particularly desirous of writing about the first century and a half of Christianity, he plunged into the middle of his subject in his "Life of Jesus." He says: "As soon as I found that I should probably be given time to deal with the history of Israel, I seemed to gain fresh strength." For the last six years he has given his whole attention to this great work, and the history is here brought down to the epoch of Esdras, the period of the definite constitution of Judaism. If he lives, the second volume will appear within a year, and the third in two years' time. If he dies, the material is in shape for publication, but would lack the author's last careful touches. The translator's name does not appear. His work is exceptionally well done.

The purpose is to enforce the principle that economic conduct is matter of duty, and therefore part of the province of conscienee and of morals. The author, who is warden of Trinity College, Glenalmond, adopted the title "Christian economics" because the purpose is practical, and "because the Christian motive, and the Christian spirit are not only the true, but the most commonly recognized expression of moral principles." The contents consist mostly of sermons actually preached. They are called: Conscience and political economy; Competition, the law of life; Justice, the law of exchange; Love, the law of distribution; The blessing of labor; The privilege of monopoly; Wealth; Property; Consumption of wealth, etc.

Riddell, Mrs. J. H. The nun's curse: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 2+407 p. S. pap., 50 c.

A story of Donegal, Ireland, thirty-four years ago. The Conways of Calgarry were popularly believed to be living under a curse, placed upon them through some misdeeds of their ancestors. Old Duke Conway has just died as the story opens. He had been one of the most wicked of his race, and is thoroughly hated by his tenants. His will is a disappointment to several of his relatives. The career of one in especial, Terence Conway, is told at length. His weaknesses and vices show the Conways are still under the influence of the curse.

A romantic story of the war of 1812–1813 on the then northwestern border of the United States, including the states of Ohio and Michigan. Some historical characters appear, amongst them General Harrison and General Proctor. An Indian maiden and the heroine go through many trials and many of the incidents recall the "Leather stocking tales." A supplemental chapter explains the proportions of fact and fiction in this attempt to make real the almost forgotten history of the northwest.

Rideout, Mrs. J. B. Early western life. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., 1888. c. '87. 208 p. 1 il. S. cl., 85 c.

By the author of "Six years on the border." A story illustrating the experiences of frontier western life. It offers many pictures of the hardships endured by those who are pioneers of civilization. It is written in a plain, natural style and there is story enough to make it interesting to all readers, older and younger.

Riggs, Stephen R., D.D. Mary and I; forty years with the Sioux; with an introduction by Rev. S. C. Bartlett, D.D. [New issue.] Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1880.] c. '80, '87. 437 p. D. cl., $1.50.

First published in 1880, with the imprint of W. G. Holmes, Chicago. A new issue from new plates. Tells through letters written to friends the missionary efforts of Dr. Riggs and his wife among the Sioux of the Northwest. Through the labors of Dr. Riggs the gospel was given to the Dakotas in their own language. He and his devoted wife passed through what is known as the "Minnesota Massacre."

Riley, Theodore M. Charles George Gordon: a nineteenth century worthy of the English church: a biographical sketch. Milwaukee, The Young Churchman Co., 1888. 3–150 p. por. D. cl., net, 60 c.

This little contribution to General Gordon's memory was not prepared for publication. It met, however, on first reading with so favorable a reception from the clergy of Milwaukee that the author yielded to the urgent request that it be put in book-form. The character of General Gordon, "knightly, heroic, and saintly," is the first thought in the writer's mind. He seeks chiefly to point a lesson, the story of his military and political career being a secondary consideration. Gordon's prayer and his motto, together with some of his maxims and sayings, are given as an appendix.

Ripley, Eliza McHatton. From flag to flag: a woman's adventures and experiences in the South during the war in Mexico, and in Cuba. N. Y., Appleton, 1889 [1888.] c. 296 p. D. cl., $1.

The descriptions are written by a married woman, who, when the civil war broke out in 1861, was "basking in the sunshine of prosperity" on a large Louisiana plantation. Her sufferings under the Confederate flag drove her to seek the protection of the Mexican flag, and when the French made life in Mexico insecure, she sought the protection of the red and yellow flag of Cuba. The details of life in Cuba when that beautiful island was under the rule of insurgents, just before the emancipation of the slaves, are graphically told. The book leaves the heroine, with husband and children, rejoicing to live once more under the stars and stripes.

Ristori, Adelaide. Adelaide Ristori: studies and memoirs; an autobiography. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. 6+297 p. S. (Famous women ser.) cl., $1.

The world-renowned artist records here her artistic triumphs in two hemispheres; besides the accounts of her long tours, in which she acted in almost every important city in Europe and America, she gives many interesting details of her childhood. The whole story is told in a familiar, easy style that is very attractive, and is interspersed with numerous anecdotes. The studies of her favorite rôles, with the analysis of her methods of representing them, with which the volume closes, are extremely interesting and valuable. Separate chapters are devoted to Mary Stuart, Myrrha, Medea, Phædra, Lady Macbeth, and Queen Elizabeth.

Rives, Amélie. A brother to dragons and other old-time tales. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 5+230 p. D. cl., $1.

Three strong stories of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. "A brother of dragons" appeared in the Atlantic Monthly for March, 1886. It is a tender little love tale, told by an ancient serving-man in the quaint language of the time. The author finds her odd title in a text from Job: "I am a brother to dragons and a companion to owls." "The Farrier Lass o' Piping Pebworth" appeared in Lippincott's in July, '87, and "Nurse Crumpet tells the story" in Harper's for Sept., '87.

Rives, Amélie, [now Mrs. J. Armstrong Chanler.] Virginia of Virginia: a story. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 3+222 p. il. D. cl., $1.

The promise displayed in "A brother to dragons" is fully realized in this story. Through it Miss Rives takes a prominent place among our novelists as a delineator of character. Virginia Herrick, the overseer's daughter, is a new study, full of power and pathos. She is evidently drawn from life—herself and her surroundings coming within the range of the young writer's possible experience. The story takes place after the war on a Virginia plantation that a young Englishman has bought for a stud-farm. "Jack Roden" becomes the half-savage young girl's hero and the unconscious arbiter of her fate. Bonnibel, a beautiful mare, holds only a secondary interest to Virginia in the story.

Roberts, Marg. A little step-daughter. [Anon.] N.Y., T: Whittaker, [1888.] 4+265 p. il. D. cl., $1.05.

The story of a little French girl written for young people. Her mother dies at her birth and she is brought up by a foster-mother, who is an ignorant peasant woman. Clémence's father is of noble birth and is wealthy, but he is so disappointed that she is not a boy that he is cruelly indifferent to her. He marries again when Clémence is about ten, and the new mother makes quite a change in the life of the chateau. In going to a convent, where she is to be placed at school, Clémence is stolen by gypsies and has some other thrilling adventures. By the author of "Mademoiselle Mori."

Robertson, Margaret M. By a way she knew not; the story of Allison Bain. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] c. '87. 482 p. D. cl., $1 50.

A story of Scotch middle-class life. The heroine marries a man much older than herself for the sake of protecting a careless young brother, but remains at home to nurse her dying father. On the day of his funeral she disappears. She goes as a servant to a minister's family and becomes invaluable to them, especially for her devotion to the deformed daughter. Many new people and incidents are brought into her life, and finally "By a way she knew not" she is led to be a happy, useful woman.

Robinson, C: S., D.D. Studies in Mark's gospel. N. Y., American Tract Soc., [1888.] c. 299 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Twenty-eight studies are made of the sixteen chapters of St. Mark. They were delivered as sermons with illustrations and enforcements joined easily together. They follow the gospel history and doctrine in orderly progress.

Robinson, Ezekiel Gilman, D.D. Principles and practice of morality; or, ethical principles discussed and applied. Bost., Silver, Rogers & Co., [1888.] 11+252 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The book is divided into three parts: the first being devoted to the ascertainment and distribution of fundamental principles; the second to a discussion of these principles, under the general heading of "Theoretic morality;" and the third to "Practical morality." The principles are ascertained by an analysis, first of moral action and then of personality, and are distributed under the four general divisions of conscience, moral law, will, and virtue. Each of these receives distinct and independent treatment, special attention being given to the discussion of conscience and of the theories of virtue and grounds of obligation.

Robinson, Frank T., comp. Living New England artists; biographical sketches; reproductions of original drawings and paintings by each artist. Bost., S: E. Cassino, 1888. c. 200 p. F. cl., $15.

Twenty-seven New England artists are represented by a biographical sketch, a full-page illustration, which is presumed to be characteristic of his work, and, in many, his greatest work, with a head and tail piece executed by the artist himself, and a portrait in pen-and-ink. The full pages have been reproduced either by the artist's own etching-needle, or by that process which seemed best adapted to the subject. The following are the names of the principal artists embraced: L. D. Eldred, W. F. Halsall, D. J. Strain, W. L. Taylor, F. P. Vinton, Frank T. Merrill, Scott Leighton, F. Childe Hassam, W. B. Roe, E. P. Found, yet lost. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1888. c. 222 p. D. pap., 25 c.

Captain Nichol on the evening of one of the battles of the "Wilderness" writes to the girl to whom he is engaged and begs she will consider herself free if he is killed and learn to live without him and learn to love another. After the battle he is lost sight of for two years and finally found by his friend, who in the meantime is engaged to be married to the heroine. The soldier's memory is entirely gone. He is brought home, but nothing brings old scenes to his mind. He dies of typhoid, and at the last remembers the shell that injured his brain. His devoted friend and Helen are finally married.

Roe, E: P. Miss Lou. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1888. c. 5+368 p. D. cl., $1.50.

As the last work from the pen of the late Mr. Roe, this story is invested with a sorrowful interest. The scene of it is laid in Virginia, near the close of the late war. "Miss Lou" is a young Southern girl living with her guardian, Mr. Baron, on an out-of-the-way plantation, which, up to the time when the story opens, has not witnessed any of the horrors of war. Miss Lou has been taught to believe all "Yankees" are brutes and cowards, and that when they do come they (the Southerners) have to fear the worst. At last the fortunes of war bring the "Yankees" to Mr. Baron's plantation, and a battle is fought within sight of it. Miss Lou has a wonderful experience from this out, and is surprised to find how false are all the impressions she has had inculcated. Her release from a marriage with a hated Southern cousin and her love for a young Northern soldier is not the least interesting part of the book.

Roe, E: Reynolds. God reigns: lay sermons. Chic., Laird & Lee, [1888.] c. 187 p. S. cl., 50 c.

An argument against such evolutionists as deny everything but matter and its changes. The author holds that the theory of evolution must prove a God. The work is not controversial. Physical and biological science are urged in favor of the main proposition: "God reigns within and throughout the universe."

Roe, E: R. May and June; a romance of the revolution. Chic., Laird & Lee, [1888.] c. 189 p. il. D. (The pastime ser., v. 15.) pap., 25 c.

In 1769 the Ornithological Society of Edinburgh, Scotland, requested the Philadelphia Academy of Science to designate a young American to make a collection of skins and paintings of American birds west of the Alleghany Mountains. Young Bruce Hamilton was chosen. In doing his work he was thrown in with the Indians of that country and had a most romantic life among them, at times full of danger and adventure. May and June are twin maidens of mixed Indian and white parentage, and their loves and lives furnish the incidents of this semi-historical tale of the environs of the State of Kentucky.

Rogers, Ja. E. Thorold. The story of Holland. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1889 [1888.] c. 18+388 p. il. and map, D. (Story of the nations ser.) cl., $1.50.

Holland was won by its people, acre by acre, against the best European troops of the time, the most practised generals, and what seemed to be boundless resources. The Spanish king, their foe, represented the two principles of sixteenth century despotism, civil and religious, and by defeating him Holland gave the first precedent for civil and religious liberty. The success of Holland was the beginning of modern political science and modern civilization. It instructed Europe in professional and rational agriculture; it was pioneer in navigation and discovery, and was the founder of intelligent commerce. The authorities cited are Davies, Motley, and Wagenaar. The author is eminently fitted for his task, being a specialist in po itical economy.

The plan of this book is similar to that of the "Tales of chivalry," the initial volume of the series. "My aim," as the editor said in the former preface, "is to edit certain selections from standard prose and poetry suited either for supplementary reading, as it is called, or for elementary study in English literature. The brief foot-notes under the text are perhaps all that some teachers will regard as necessary for the former purpose; but I believe that the longer notes at the end of the book will be found more or less useful and suggestive for oral instruction in connection with the reading-lessons."

Rollins, Alice Wellington. Uncle Tom's tenement: a novel. Bost., The W: E. Smythe Co., 1888. c. 5+468 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The writer institutes a parallel between the poverty which holds the masses in New York City in bondage and the slavery which formerly existed in the south. The one is as cruel a master as the other, separating families, crushing out natural feelings, and being the rnot of all kinds of immorality. "Uncle Tom's tenement" is one of the worst examples of a New York tenement in the "Mulberry Bend." Here the poorer people manage to exist who figure in the story. There are other characters from Madison Avenue, who occupy themselves in visiting the "slums" and devising means for bettering the condition of the people. The work is a severe arraignment of the agents and owners of tenement property.

Roosevelt, Theodore. Essays on practical politics. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 2+74 p. D. (Questions of the day, no. 49.) cl., 75 c.

These two essays appeared originally in the Century. The first, on phases of state legislation, relate to the Albany Legislature, the character of the representatives, the dark side of the legislative picture, difficulties of preventing and punishing corruption, perils of legislative life, and incidents of legislative experience, which embraces some amusing anecdotes. The second essay has for its subject, Machine politics in New York City.

Roosevelt, Theodore. Gouverneur Morris. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 9+370 p. D. (American statesmen ser.) cl., $1.25.

Gouverneur Morris belongs to the early colonial period of New York. Though not one of the most conspicuous statesmen of this time, he was one of the most capable and useful. His principal achievements are summed up in the closing sentences of Mr. Roosevelt's biography: "He took a most prominent part in bringing about the independence of the colonies, and afterwards in welding them into a single powerful nation, whose greatness he both foresaw and foretold. He made the final draft of the United States Constitution; he first outlined our present system of national coinage; he originated and got under way the plan for the Erie Canal; as Minister to France, he successfully performed the most difficult task ever allotted to an American representative at a foreign capital."

Roosevelt, Theodore. Ranch life and the hunting-trail; il. by F: Remington. N. Y., The Century Co., [1888.] c. 7+186 p. F. cl., $5.

Both author and artist being practical ranchmen and sportsmen, they have together produced a rarely interesting volume. The series of articles written by Mr. Roosevelt relate entirely to ranch-life and the game of the far west, and are based on personal experience. Mr. Remington's sketches are as bold and spirited as the text, and are also from life. Some of the articles have appeared in the Century Magazine. Others, however, have been added to make up this volume, relating entirely to hunting, and never before published. Besides many full-page and text pictures there are many graceful initials and tail-pieces. The book is from the De Vinne Press, and on heavy plate paper.

The book is given up chiefly to a consideration of the principles and practice of Congregationalism. The author's expositions of what may be termed the law of the polity are quite clear, and will make the volume rank as an authority. "His position on ministerial standing," the publishers say, "will not probably be approved by the majority of his brother ministers, but is one which has not a few supporters nevertheless."

Ross, Clinton. The gallery of a random collector. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 4+310 p. S. cl., $1.25.

In his former story, "A silent workman," the author showed imagination and humor. For this volume he takes a motto from Sterne's "Sentimental journey." "So I went on leisurely, as a trifling man does, sometimes writing a sentence, then taking a turn or two, and then looking how the world went, out of the window." The outcome of this restful method is a collection of a dozen short stories, whose titles give a good idea of their range and character: A door swings open, In New Spain; The man in the frayed frock-coat; Col. Bludlow's idea; The gentleman and the Dryad; The trainer captain; An adventure of Felix Latoon; The young woman in shabby black; The diary of a sentimental fortune-hunter; A November night; Now: a sentimental comedy; The silver mug at Frangipani's.

Richard Rothe, in his lifetime [b. 1799], was one of the leading factors in German thought. "Still hours" is a posthumous work, prepared by Prof. Nippold, of Berne, one of Rothe's admiring students. "To many this collection of choice reflections by so profound and earnest a thinker as Richard Rothe will prove a rich mine of intellectual and religious suggestion, helpful and stimulating in no ordinary degree. So varied, too, are the themes discussed, that all classes of readers may find something to interest, something fitted to throw new light on oft-discussed and long-studied themes, or to lead to new departures in thinking not ventured on before."

Comprises eight chapters, with numerous formulas, on the handling of solids, liquids, mineral solids and liquids, heated solids and liquids, gases and vapors, incompatible solids, liquids and gases; handling of weights and measures, and the right use of technical terms. The author draws his knowledge from practical experience in a long business career. The routine presented begins with the simpler object lessons in the calling and gradually becomes more and more difficult.

Rouse, Lydia L. Angus Leslie's daughter. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt, 1888. c. 232 p. D. cl., 90 c.

Mary Leslie is left motherless when about twelve years old; she is the youngest of six, and the only girl in the family. Her father is a hard-working Scotch laboring man, thrifty and honest. Mary's helpfulness and the family's simple sorrows and joys are the subjects of an instructive story.

Rouse, Lydia E. Kezia and the doctor ; or, the infidel's school. Phil., American S. S. Union, 1888. 250 p. D. cl., $1.10.

The scene is laid under the shadow of the Catskills. Dr. Armstrong is an unbeliever, acute, fascinating, plausible, and bitter. Kezia Fleetwood is the doctor's sister-in-law. He paid her some attention before marrying her sister Laura. Kezia is a well-to-do maiden who has no fear of the doctor, and does not feel it her duty to allow him to propagate infidelity without her earnest protest. She tells him plain truths in plain words. The story is a narrative of events during many years in the life of a rural community, close to a busy town.

Rouse, Lydia L. The laird's son. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt, 1888. c. 192 p. D. cl., 75 c.

The laird's son returns to his Scottish home after losing his right hand on the field of Waterloo. He marries, and the story is a succession of pictures of Scotch country life. The laird learns to control his naturally fierce temper, and when he is an aged man teaches his descendants lessons of religion and duty.

Roy, Jos. E., D.D., ["Pilgrim," pseud.] Pilgrim's letters; bits of current history picked up in the west and the south, during the last thirty years. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1888.] c. 310 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The readers of the Congregationalist, the Independent, and the Advance are familiar with the nom de plume of "Pilgrim." For a period of twenty years or more Dr. Roy's "Pilgrim letters" have appeared in the papers mentioned, and always have been eagerly read. The volume with the title above given has been made up from them, selections having been made from among those that have a permanent interest. A glance at the table of contents shows that they cover one of the most interesting periods of American history, and that they give quite connected, though sketchy, views of the events that took place between the years '57 and '87.

Ruben, E: The path to fame. N. Y., O. Lauckner, 175 B'way, 1887. c. 342 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The hero has from his early youth desired to paint pictures and to become a famous artist. Upon the death of his parents he leaves his comfortable country home, comes to New York City, and begins to tread the path which leads him to fame and brings him to a lovely woman who becomes his wife. The story is merely a framework into which the author puts his theories of art, society, culture, morals, etc.

Ruete, Emily, [Princess of Oman and Zanzibar.] Memoirs of an Arabian princess: an autobiography. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 7+307 p. por. D. cl., 75 c.

"In her 'Memoirs' Emily Ruete, née Salme, Princess of Oman and Zanzibar, gives a simple, unaffected narrative of her early life. She was the daughter of the Sultan of Zanzibar by a Circassian slave, and was educated and reared in accordance with her high rank. At about the age of 18 she fell in love with a young German merchant, resident in Zanzibar, with whom she escaped to Europe. At Aden she embraced the Christian faith and was married to her lover. . . . The author enters very minutely into the life and manners of an Oriental court, the jealousies, intrigues, and conspiracies by which it is environed, and the important part which the harem and its inmates play."—The Sun.

The bias of this pamphlet is found in its concluding paragraph: "My task has been to prove to the people of the south, and to such of the north as choose to examine the evidence, what sort of man the negro is, and what sort of man he is not, and never can be; and therein to warn those Republican politicians and those meddlesome philanthropists that when they commence a policy which will inflame the negro to attempt the destruction of our society, they will be regarded as hostile citizens, and as much worse than foreign enemies, as a civil war is worse than a foreign war."

Many of Mr. Russell's poems appeared in The Century under "Bric-à-brac" from 1875 to 1880. They are mostly in negro dialect and are both amusing and pathetic. The volume is a memorial volume, the author, who is a Mississippian, having died at New Orleans, Dec. 23, 1879, finishing his brief literary career in his 26th year. Mr. Joel Chandler Harris writes a sympathetic introduction, giving some facts of Mr. Russell's life; of the dialect poetry he says: "The most wonderful thing about it is his accurate conception of the negro character."

Ryan, Dan. J. A history of Ohio, with biographical sketches of her governors and the ordinance of 1787. Columbus, O., A. H. Smythe, 1888. c. 210 p. por. D. cl., $1.

The pioneer blood of Ohio came from New England, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. In one century it has been transformed from a land of savagery to a commonwealth of the highest civilization. The author does not give a mere chronological table of Ohio events, but gives his own deductions and lessons drawn from these events. The biographical sketches of the governors are short and telling. The first governor of Ohio, Edward Tiffin, is the frontispiece.

Ryder, Annie H. Margaret Regis, and some other girls: a story. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 279 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.25.

Margaret Regis is one of a group of merry students at an institute for young ladies. The reader is introduced to her on the eve of her graduation, when she and her companions are getting all the enjoyment they can out of the few days remaining to them. From school Margaret goes abroad to prepare herself for her life-work—that of a teacher—and then back again to Boston, and out into the country, where she begins her labors. How her plans fall through, after a brief experience, and how she makes an engagement to teach one grown-up pupil for life, instead of a room full of little ones for half-a-dozen terms, readers must find out for themselves from the book itself.

Translated, with the sanction of Mr. Salomon, from an article that appeared in German under the title of "Der Slöjd im Dienste der Schule," in the Arbeiterfreund, 1886. Slöjd (pronounced sloid) is a Swedish term for which there is no equivalent in any other language. It has reference more particularly to that which is performed by hand. Thus, "slöjd training" means manual training and a "sloydskola" an industrial school. The object of the author is to show the importance of physical labor in the service of the school.

Saltus, Edgar. Eden : an episode. Chic., N. Y., and San Francisco, Belford, Clarke & Co., [1888.] c. 187 p. D. cl., $1 ; pap., 50 c.

Eden is a well-informed, refined New York girl who marries a rich merchant many years her senior. After some months of unclouded happiness she begins to suspect her husband of devotion to another woman. Her best friends tell her all they can to worry her, and she is very miserable, and finally leaves her husband and returns to her father. After many harrowing scenes the mystery is cleared up and Eden learns her husband's true relationship to the beautiful widow and also to his confidential clerk.

Sand, George, [pseud. for Mme. A. L. A. D. Dudevant.] Francis the waif (François le Champi); tr. by Gustave Masson; il. by Eugène Burnand. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1889 [1888.] 5–304 p. O. pap., $5; hf. leath., $6.

One of the best and most popular of George Sand's stories is here presented. It can be safely recommended to all readers; while the pictorial illustrations which accompany this edition impart to it additional value.

Sand, George, [pseud. for Mme. A. L. A. D. Dudevant.] Princess Nourmahal : a posthumous novel, never before published ; tr. by Lew Vanderpoole. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1888. 332 p. D. hf. cl., $1.50.

The scene of this story is laid in Italy, chiefly in Florence. The princess is the daughter of a Persian mother and German father, whose birth remains mysterious almost to the end. She is an undisciplined, fiery, superstitious beauty, brought up by a licentious guardian, waited upon by Persian slaves, and living in a weird castle on the banks of the Arno, full of mysterious panels, curtains, pictures, torture-rooms, etc., that are factors in the unravelling of the plot. The translator claims to be a nephew of George Sand. This manuscript was first offered to the Cosmopolitan Magazine in September, 1887. Upon being asked to p oduce the original manuscript the translator stated it had been lost, and that the story had been written from memory. A full account of this transaction appeared in the P. W. of September 24, 1887, [no. 816–17.]

An earnest attempt to answer a number of earnest questions, "that have come" to the author, "from all over the land." The chapter headings show the nature of the discussions: Present conditions of religious thought; Religion and theology; The scriptures; Cosmology and theology; Ideas of God, old and new; The fall of man; Redemption or education?; Jesus; The old church and the new; The end of the world; The destiny of the soul ; The duty of liberals, etc.

The experience of the author, who is a well-known physician in San Francisco, is that the popular ideas concerning nervous impairment—at least upon the subject of remedies—are frequently vague and erroneous; he is constantly, he says, meeting with persons, in the field of his daily work, "to whom a realization of some of the facts attempted to be explained herein would be priceless;" and he has thought that this short statement from the point of view of a working physician might, in some degree, serve a useful purpose.

Say, Léon. Turgot; tr. by Melville B. Anderson. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1888. c. tr. 231 p. D. (The Great French writers.) cl., $1.

M. Léon Say, the eminent French statesman and publicist, has found a fortunate subject in this volume on Turgot. Turgot has been well called the most beneficent, if not the greatest of French statesmen. John Morley, in his essay on Turgot, places him above Burke. According to M. Say, Turgot is the political philosopher of the nineteenth, rather than of the eighteenth century. The volume on Turgot is, indeed, a study of French history, and deals with the economic problems of finance, trade, and labor, in which Americans are now so deeply interested.

This volume embraces, besides a general introduction to modern church history, the productive period of the German Reformation, from its beginning to the Diet of Augsburg (1530), and the death of Luther (1546), with a concluding estimate of the character and services of Luther. Of Protestant historians, Ranke has chiefly been consulted, and Döllinger and Jansen have been searched for the Roman Catholic views of the subject. Classified lists of sources and literature are given in all leading sections. Alphabetical index.

Schauffler, W: G. Autobiography of W: G. Schauffler, for forty-nine years a missionary in the Orient; ed. by his sons; with an introduction by E. A. Park, D.D. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] 34+258 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

This autobiography was written by its author solely for the benefit of his children, and with no idea that it would ever be put into print. It rather gains in interest for the general reader through this fact—from its frankness and simplicity. Dr. Schauffler died in 1883. He was for the greater part of his life a worker among the Turks in the service of the American Board, and the American and the British and Foreign Bible Societies.

A series of lectures delivered from October, 1887, until April, 1888, at the Temple Adath Israel, of Boston. The Rabbi says that almost all writers and preachers on Judaism confine themselves to Biblical records and forget the place Jews have held in authentic history and the influence they have exercised upon their day and generation. He gives a succession of pictures of the times of Moses, Ezra, etc., down to the days of Spinoza, Moses Mendelssohn, Moses Montefiore, etc. There are twenty-five lectures, full of facts grouped and commented upon in excellent literary style.

Schobert, H. Picked up in the streets: a romance; from the German by Mrs. A. L. Wister. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. c. tr. 3–335 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The heroine was "picked up in the streets" of Paris at the age of eight by a blasé Russian prince, who bought her of her parents, sent her to a convent, and for eight years forgot her existence. When he is informed she must leave the convent he has her brought to his house, but ignores her entirely. Gradually pretty Ferra is enlightened by word and deed that her position in the house of an unmarried man is anomalous. At this moment his father arrives from Russia, falls in love with her and marries her. After three years Ferra reappears at the capital of a German principality—a rich young widow, original, innocent, gay, and very beautiful. Unconsciously she transgresses some of the cast-iron rules of etiquette, and jealousy and envy again take up her name and make her life a burden, until she is taught the use and necessity of society's laws.

Schoenhof, J. Technical education in Europe. Pt. 1: Industrial education in France. Wash., D. C., Government Printing Office, 1888. 24+136 p. il.+pl. O. pap.

"I proceeded to examine by personal observation into the condition and prospects of technical education in the principal industrial countries of Europe. It was evident that an inquiry of this nature could not confine itself to the pedagogical side of it, but would have to extend over all the phenomena of industrial life."—Introductory Letter. Accordingly the author, who is U. S. consul at Tunstall, Eng., extended his inquiry to cover the workshop, the college and the factory, the art school, the museum and industrial art works as well as the practices of the people he visited.

Selections are given from "The heart of Mid-Lothian," "The talisman," "Ivanhoe," "The abbot," "Kenilworth," "Old Mortality," and some miscellaneous extracts. Each set of selections is preceded by a list of the characters and a brief story of the plot of the novel from which they are taken. There is also a short account of Scott and the Waverley novels, and directions for supplementary readings. Intended to serve as the basis of a more extended study of Scott's novels.

First published over fifty years ago. The book describes a consistent Christian, why he should be so, and how he may become so. Every reason given is based upon a Bible text. The responsibility of those preparing sermons is also dwelt on. The author's similes and metaphors are unusually telling.

Seely, Howard. A nymph of the west: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 232 p. S. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

In the beautiful wilds of Colorado the little winged god amuses himself shooting his arrows into the hearts of the pretty, unselfish "nymph" and of three widely differing men who all are ready to be made happy, and who make all about them most uncomfortable. A designing coquette almost completes the wrecking of the nymph's happiness. The nymph's father who plays the violin and makes the strings speak of his matrimonial woes, the tame antelope and Aulus, the pet dog, are all characters. A fresh and breezy novel full of surprises, dedicated to the author of the "Spell of Ashtaroth."

Besides a skilful refutation of the objections that have from time to time been raised against industrial instruction in the schools, the author has presented a philosophical exposition of the principles underlying the claims of hand-labor to a place on the school programme.

"The aim of this volume is to lay the foundation for a more extensive and philosophical treatise soon to follow, and to aid in supplying the needs of the common, high, normal, and other preparatory schools and academies, where the time allotted to this department of knowledge is necessarily limited to an elementary treatise. In scope it includes all subjects essential to a study of higher arithmetic, elementary geometry, and the elements of physics."—Preface.

Septameron (The). Phil., David McKay, 1888. c. 171 p. S. pap., 35 c.

Contents: "Boscobel," by Francis Howard Williams; "A symphony," by Harrison S. Morris; "Hazard," by Samuel Williams Cooper; "The lost elixir," by Charles Henry Lüders; "Parthenope's love," by Colin Campbell Cooper, jr.; "Villa Vielle's one mystery," by Felix E. Schelling; "An old town tale," by W. H. Fox. These seven authors belong to the best Philadelphia society. When driven from their homes by the burning suns of summer, as their Florentine prototypes were by plague and pestilence, they rested amid leafy groves in the early twilight and told these stories. The imitations of Boccacio have been many; this "Septameron" shows more invention and literary polish than has fallen to some of them.

Sergeant, L:, ed. The government year-book: a record of the forms and methods of government in Great Britain, her colonies, and foreign countries, 1888. N. Y., White & Allen, 1888. 7+626 p. D. cl., $2.25.

The exhibit of "the principal forms and methods of government" is given in the fewest and simplest words. Where written constitutions exist they have been either quoted in their entirety or analyzed; and the different constitutions have been incidentally compared with one another. In the absence of a formal constitution, greater stress has been laid upon the historical development of national institutions. In connection with each country brief mention is made of its political position and boundaries, its area and population, and the salient facts of its financial condition. There is also an introduction on the diffusion of popular government over the surface of the globe, and on the nature and extent of international jurisdictions; to which is added a review of the chief occurrences affecting national and international government in 1887.

Sergeant, Adeline. Roy's repentance: a novel. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1888. 2+390 p. S (Leisure hour ser., no. 210.) cl., $1; pap., 30 c.

The different leading characters in this story each tell his or her own part in it, hence it is all in the first person. It relates to an early and disgraceful marriage Roy is entrapped into, and the painful influence it has upon his after-life. Then there is a young girl, Laurence Erle, a friendless governess, who has much to do with the action of the story. There is a good deal of love-making all around, an attempted murder, and an unsuccessful conspiracy to palm off the sister of Roy's dead wife as his wife, and so break up a second marriage he has contracted. The story is an English one, with the usual scenes of English home life.

Sermon Bible (The): Genesis to II. Samuel. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1888. 17+500 p. D. cl., $1.50.

This new series, to comprise 12 volumes, embracing all the books of the Old and New Testaments, will give in convenient form the essence of the best homiletic literature of this generation. This volume, the first issued, is a specimen of the plan of the whole work. Under each text is given: 1. Outlines of important sermons by eminent preachers existing only in manuscript or periodicals, and thus inaccessible. 2. Less full outlines of sermons which have appeared in volumes which are not well known or easily obtained. 3. References to or very brief outlines of sermons which appear in popular volumes such as are likely to be in a preacher's library. 4. Full references to theological treatises, commentaries, etc., where any help is given to the elucidation of the text. Each volume contains at the end 24 blank pages for memorandum notes. Will be published at the rate of 2 volumes a year.

Serviss, Garrett P. Astronomy with an opera-glass: a popular introduction to the study of the starry heavens with the simplest of optical instruments. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 6+154 p. maps, O. cl., $1.50.

The greater part of the matter composing this volume appeared originally in a series of articles contributed by the author to The Popular Science Monthly, in 1887–88. The reception that these articles met with encouraged Mr. Serviss to revise and enlarge them for publication in the more permanent form of a book. The aim of the author has been to encourage the study of the heavenly bodies by pointing out some of the interesting and marvellous phenomena of the universe that are visible with little or no assistance from optical instruments, and indicating means of becoming acquainted with the constellations and the planets. There are maps with directions to facilitate the recognition of the constellations and the principal stars visible to the naked eye.

Shakespeare, W: Complete works [Reader's ed.]; with notes by Malone, Steevens, and others; together with a biography, concordance of familiar passages, index of characters, and glossary of obsolete terms. Phil., D: McKay, 1888. 8 v., 48+17-340; 409; 338; 395; 345; 316; 408; 443 p. il. and por. D. cl., $14; hf. Amer. cf., $18; three-fourths English cf., $25.

The il. by Smirk and other artists are steel-engravings and photogravures. The text is that of Malone and Steevens, recognized as one of the most complete; all the poems and sonnets are included. The volumes are well bound and printed from large, open-faced type on first-class paper. The design of the concordance is not to give a complete concordance of Shakespeare's words, but rather to select all the desirable quotations and insert them under what was the most prominent word, thus avoiding endless duplicating and the inserting of thousands of trivial passages.

As in the previous volumes issued in this edition the text is that of the first folio. The plan is to give in the shape of textual notes, on the same page with the text, all the various readings of "The merchant of Venice," from the First Quarto to the latest critical edition of the play; then, as commentary, follow the notes which the editor has thought worthy of insertion, not only for the purpose of elucidating the text, but as illustrations of the history of Shakespearian criticism. The volume is very handsomely printed on fine tinted paper, with uncut edges.

The editor claims she covers new ground in this anthology, as she has aimed to represent each writer by her most characteristic poem and not her "supreme achievement." The collection is essentially modern, representing many little known writers of Great Britain. In spite of this it is interesting and valuable.

This volume is a collection of opinions gathered by the editor from various professors of our colleges and universities upon the various phases of the tariff question. Prof. Folwell, of the University of Minnesota, writes upon "Protective tariffs as a question of national economy;" Prof. Adams, of the University of Michigan, on "Surplus financiering;" Prof. Ely, of Johns Hopkins University, on "The tariff and trusts;" Prof. Smith, of Columbia, "Shall the internal revenue be retained?" Prof. Thompson, of the University of Pennsylvania, "A defence of the protective policy;" Prof. Macy, of Iowa College, "The theory and practice of protection;" Prof. Clark, of Smith College, "The certainties of the tariff question." Other essays are by Prof. Morse, of Amherst; Prof. Monott, of the University of Nebraska; Prof. Hadley, of Yale; Prof. Walker, of Massachusetts School of Technology; Prof. Canfield, of the University of Kansas; Prof. Yager, of Georgetown (Ky.) College; Prof. Bemis, of Vanderbilt University; Prof. Laughlin, of Harvard, and the Hon. C. D. Wright, U. S. Commissioner of Labor, with a concluding chapter by the editor.

Three "Yankee" girls are advised to visit South Africa in search of health for one of their number, who is quite ill. From the time of leaving their lodging-house in London till the end of their journey the narrative is full of incidents and interesting details. The description of the diamond mines and the manner in which they are worked and the account of the settlers that a longing for wealth has brought here are full of information. The scenery, the social life of the English in the large towns, the characteristics of the Zulus, all meet with ample appreciation. The book is handsomely gotten up, and most attractively illustrated by a number of little cuts in the text in the same style as many recent French works

Shepard, E: M. Martin Van Buren. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 6+398 p. S. (American statesmen ser.) cl., $1.25.

A careful and scholarly study, not only of the life of Martin Van Buren (b. 1782, d. 1862), but of his political period. Van Buren was successively State Senator and Attorney-General in New York, U. S. Senator, Governor of New York, which office he resigned in two months to become Secretary of State in Jackson's cabinet, Minister to England, Vice-President, and seventh President, 1837-41. He was a disciple of Jefferson, the friend and successor of Jackson, and held to the political theory that government is "a mere instrument" to an end, to be tested and measured by its practical service to popular rights and needs. The author's discussions of the crisis of 1837, of the Democratic idea of government, and of the development of the nation, make this book particularly timely and by far the most thoughtful and best book on Van Buren, whom he places with Madison and the younger Adams in "the second rank of American Presidents." "The suggestion has been made by competent critics of this treatise, hitherto entitled the 'Final philosophy,' that its main purpose might be better served by issuing it in an abridged and more popular form. In thus adapting it to the general reader, the author has found that certain omitted portions really belong elsewhere in his general scheme as it was at first published, and should form substantive parts of it rather than mere introductory features. Accordingly, such passages have been recast and transferred to their proper place in a second volume which is now passing through the press. The forthcoming volume will treat directly of 'The science of the sciences,' or first part of 'Philosophia ultima' as outlined in the original essay in the closing chapter of this volume."—Note to new edition.

Shorthouse, J. H. The Countess Eve. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 3–123 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 633.) pap., 25 c.

A walled city of Burgundy, France, in the year 1785, is the scene of two studies of temptation and the unseen influences by which human souls are guarded or betrayed, according to the predominance of the spirit or the flesh in their humanity. An actor and musician are introduced to Countess Eve by her husband. These four characters are analyzed in a masterly manner. Sin, repented of, atoned for, and forgiven is also studied in the character of the Abbess.

Shorthouse, J. H. A teacher of the violin, and other tales. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1888. 5+317 p. D. cl., $1.

Contains the title story, "The Marquis Jeanne Hyacinthe de St. Palaye;" "The Baroness Helena von Saarfeld;" "Ellie: a story of a boy and girl;" and "An apologue." The first three stories appeared in Macmillan's Magazine; the last is reprinted, by permission, from the Nineteenth Century. The first story is autobiographical. The hero describes himself and his teacher in smallest detail and the romance is charming. But the second story, laid in the south of France, in the year 1760, is as fine a piece of work as Mr. Shorthouse has ever done, and shows how sensitive to the spiritual elements of life this great writer is, whose work, unhappily for them, is far above ordinary novel-readers. The plots are of secondary importance. Mr. Shorthouse still believes in pure love and true goodness.

The cards are arranged so as to cover the work of the second year in the primary school, the simplest work being on the first numbers of the cards. Each card has one example in addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division. The cards are intended as a test of the pupil's ability to work independently and not as a lesson given to the class.

Shriver, J: S. Almost: a novel. Balt., Lombard, Druid & Co., 1888. c. 200 p. il. D. pap., 25 c.

A young man starts, as protector to two maiden aunts, on a tour through Europe. He hires an invaluable courier, who has a principal part to play in unveiling the schemes of two adventuresses, who had "almost" captured the very impressionable young man.

Shute, E. L. Over the hills ; il. by Jessie Watkins. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., [1888.] 48 p. Q. bds., $2.

Sibylla ; adapted from the German by Cornelia McFadden. Cin., Cranston & Stowe, 1888. c. tr. 396 p. D. cl., $1.25. Same, in German, $1.

The scene of this story shifts from a sea-coast village of Germany to Berlin, then to Switzerland, and afterwards to France during the Franco-Prussian war. Arnold, the son of a rich nobleman, and Wulf, the son of a workingman, are the heroes. The latter becomes a physician after many trials, and does much useful work. Sibylla, who becomes his wife, leads him from a life of doubt to one of faith. The publishers also have the book in the original German.

Simon, Jules. Victor Cousin; tr. by Melville B. and E: Playfair Anderson. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1888. c. 220 p. D. (Great French writers.) cl., $1.

Victor Cousin was born Nov. 28, 1792. He was the son of a working jeweller of Paris. After brilliant academic studies his mind was directed to philosophy under Laromiguière, Royer-Collard, and Maine de Biran. He became professor at the Sorbonne in 1815, but was suspended on political grounds. In 1827 he was replaced, and shared with Guizot a power and popularity unexampled in university annals. His great work is "The course of modern philosophy." His biographer succeeded him in the chair of philosophy at Sorbonne.

A story of the South, beginning just before the late war, and ending as the rebellion had received its deathblow. It is almost entirely, however, a domestic tale, the only sensational event being a brutal murder. "Victor," the hero, is a young man with a passionate temper, which a rather hard experience teaches him to control.

Smart, Hawley. A false start : a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 4+462 p. D. pap., 50 c.

A novel which tells something of the turf and several sporting clergymen. Maurice Enderby, the hero, is a sort of fortune's shuttlecock who rushes headlong into matrimony, then seeing the necessity of adopting a profession fixes upon the church as his proper sphere, and accepts the curacy of Tunnleton; subsequent events prove Maurice unfit for a ministerial career and he throws it over for a more martial calling; from this time his success is phenomenal and shows his former failure was due to "A false start;" after young Enderby becomes famous fate intervenes unkindly, and a sad incident closes the story.

Smith, G. Barnett. William I. and the German Empire: a biographical and historical sketch. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1888. 6+355 p. O. cl., $3.

In tracing the late Emperor's singularly dramatic and fortunate career, the author has combined with the personal narrative some account first, of the Prussian Kingdom and people, and secondly, of the foundation and consolidation of the new German Empire. His information has been gathered from a variety of sources, which he acknowledges in the work. In the appendix a collection of statistics are given from recent returns, which furnish a bird's-eye view of the extent, growth, and present position of Germany. Mr. Smith is the author of "Poets and novelists," "Life of Her Majesty, the Queen," and "Biography of Mr. Gladstone."

Smith, Rev. J: Talbot. Solitary Island: a novel. N. Y., P. J. Kenedy, 1888. 3–393 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The story opens on an island in the St. Lawrence river, but is transferred to New York. Besides a mystery which is only laid bare in the last chapters, there are several complicated love affairs, in which the religions of the parties separate them—the argument all through being the great sin committed by a Catholic in marrying a Protestant.

Smith, Jessie W. Both sides. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1887. 7–110 p. 1 il. S. cl., 50 c.

A poor widow who has lost husband and son at sea is the chief figure. She fears she is becoming totally blind when the story opens and is full of sorrow. The aim is to show that even her apparently hopeless condition has a bright side to it.

Daddy dies of a gunshot wound when his boy is eight years old, a manly, enthusiastic, imaginative boy. Daddy has always had the boy with him, taught him riding, cricket, swimming, fishing, etc., and given him two maxims to guide him in life: "Never hurt a woman" and "Never lose your self-respect." Daddy's sister, a placid, every-day woman, assumes the care of Daddy's boy, and the story of the impulsive, affectionate boy's breaking-in is exquisitely told.

Snively, W: A., D.D. Parish lectures on the prayer-book. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. 8+260 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The author's standpoint is historical and liturgical only. He has drawn freely upon the works of Wheatley, Proctor, Blunt, Freeman, Goulburn, and other standard authorities. Intended to give to the younger members of the P. E. Church in simple and condensed form an explanation of the services of their church in their general structure and minor details. The facts are given in the form of nineteen lectures. The points of difference in the English and American prayer-book are clearly pointed out and justified. The author is pastor of a Brooklyn church.

Snively, W: A., D.D. Testimonies to the supernatural. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. c. 7+221 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Twenty sermons, of which four are devoted to the prodigal son and three to the observance of the Lord's day. The supernatural subjects include the anomaly of the incarnation, the practical use of the doctrine of the Trinity, the atoning death of Christ, the spiritual resurrection, etc. The author is a Protestant Episcopal clergyman of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Social life and literature fifty years ago. Bost., Cupples & Hurd, 1888. c. 5-96 p. D. cl., $1.

A series of papers pointing out the superiority of former times to the present period, in the purity not only of domestic life, but in their religion and ethics; and also in their literature.

Society list and club register for the season of 1887-8. N. Y., Society-List Pub. Co., 6 Wall St., 1887. c. 371 p. S. cl., $3.

This society-list is a combination of the "List" and "Society." It is a register of New York society, with residences and club addresses, and the maiden names of married ladies; also the names of the governing committees of the leading clubs and other valuable information.

Society rapids : high life in Washington, Saratoga, and Bar Harbor; by "one in the swim." Phil., T. B. Peterson & Bros., [1888.] c. 19-250 p. S. cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

A cleverly drawn sketch of fashionable life in the places mentioned in the title. The frivolity and flirtations of married women and the "fast" ways of the unmarried are shown up with a great deal of satirical power. The heroine, Eveline Mason, a beautiful, refined girl, discovers that with all her beauty and gifts she is a "failure" in society. Her modesty, which is really her greatest charm, keeps her in the background, while loud, pushing girls are having "a good time." She determines to follow their example and enters into a flirtation with the elegant and wealthy Victor Von Vroom. The little schemer gets deeper in than she intends, and quite a dramatic episode is the result.

Soley, Ja. Russell. The sailor boys of '61. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, 1888. c. 5-381 p. il. O. cl., $2.50.

In a succession of graphic chapters are told with many illustrations the prominent events of the late war, in a manner to interest young readers. The subjects are: The outbreak of the civil war; The defence of the Chesapeake; The sounds of North Carolina; Du Pont and the battle of Port Royal; The gunboat flotilla on the western rivers; The battle of New Orleans; The twelve months' struggle at Vicksburg; The attacks upon Charleston; Red river; The blockade; Semmes and the Confederate cruisers; Cushing and the Albemarle; The battle of Mobile Bay; Fort Fisher.

The third volume in the series which has been translated specially for the American market. The author gives a fair sketch of the great philosophical historian, born at the Castle of La Brède in Bordeaux, in 1689, and until his death in 1755, the recognized leader of French thought. His "Persian letters," published in 1721, is a satire on the social, political, ecclesiastical, and literary follies of his day. His "Spirit of the laws" appeared in 1748, and has associated his name with many of the best reforms that have been brought about within the past century. Good index.

The Missionary Bishop of Colorado is truly "an overseer" of his people, and in every way tries to make their Christianity practical and useful in every-day life. Most of this matter was given in sermons delivered in Denver Cathedral. Special stress is laid upon the help the lay members should give the work of their church. There are many directions for working Sunday-schools, mothers' meetings, sewing-schools, etc., that show a long experience of constantly arising difficulties in their management.

Spencer, Edgar A. Hints from a lawyer; or, legal advice to men and women: a law-book for everybody with reference to property, family, and commercial affairs; adapted to all the states. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 7+227 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The book presents the present laws and methods relating to the care of property, the investment of money, and the transaction of business generally. It is hoped the volume will be of use to retired merchants, farmers, clergymen, physicians, and women. Special attention has been given to the chapters bearing upon the separate estates and rights of married women, and the laws of marriage and divorce. The author was induced to undertake the preparation of the work at the instigation of several of his lady clients.

Spenser, Mary Clare. Brinka: an American countess. N. Y., Spenser Publishing Co., 329 Fifth Ave., 1888. c. 417 p. D. cl., $1.50.
A novel. Brinka is a little girl born in America, her father being an English earl; he comes to New York in great poverty and makes an immense fortune in land speculations, and prefers being known as plain "Mr. Vaughan." Brinka is the heroine of a story whose hero is Caryl Leighton, a boy who is first introduced as the inmate of a thieves' den. Caryl has a checkered career. He is rescued from his debasing surroundings and placed at a good school in New England, and it is discovered that he comes of good stock. His life at school, and afterwards in Europe travelling with his adopted father, where he and Brinka are again thrown together and learn to love each other, is full of incidents. Quite a number of characters are introduced from different stations of life, showing careful study and observation.

Three hundred and sixty-six promises selected from all parts of the Bible are printed as headings of the pages. The author regards these as cheques furnished to Christians, which must be endorsed by their faith, and presented in prayer. If not immediately fulfilled, they must be presented again and again until the full answer is obtained. On every promise the author makes many helpful suggestions. The book is intended as a companion volume to the great preacher's "Morning by morning" and "Evening by evening," for which he has received the personal thanks of many readers.

Stables, Gordon, M.D. In the dashing days of old; or, the world-wide adventures of Willie Grant. N. Y., T: Whittaker, [1888.] 380 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.
"The dashing days of old" were the times between 1806–1815, the close of the war of 1812. A treasure which was lost in a feud between two Highland clans seems to be the motive of the story. Willie Grant recounts the legend of the star of Carrickareen to his friend, and they resolve to unearth the treasure. Before their plans are realized, Willie enters the British Navy, has some remarkable adventures on board H. M. S. Castile, is suddenly transferred to the Dardanelle, does some fighting in Canadian waters, and is the most important personage in a court-martial. When the tale finally does revert to earlier scenes the treasure-trove again looms up, and Willie figures in a pretty romance.

Stalker, Rev. Ja. The life of St. Paul. N. Y., American Tract Soc., [1888.] 183 p. D. cl., 60 c.
The writer is a Scotchman. In ten chapters he briefly sketches the career of St. Paul and follows these with notes to teachers and hints to Bible students, also divided into ten chapters, citing his authorities and also giving many questions to fasten facts in young minds. The author considers Conybeare and Howson's "Life of St. Paul" the most reliable of the many biographies of the apostle.

Stanley, Arthur Penrhyn, D.D. Historical memorials of Canterbury. First Amer. from 11th London ed. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1888. 6–361 p. por. O. hf. cl., $3.

The four essays embraced here are closely connected with the history of Canterbury Cathedral. Their subjects are: 1. The landing of Augustine and conversion of Ethelbert; 2. Murder of Becket; 3. Edward the Black Prince; 4. The shrine of Becket. They were written nearly 15 years ago by the author in intervals of leisure from subjects of greater importance. In an introduction written at that time he said with his usual modesty "they have nothing to recommend them, except such instruction as may arise from an endeavor to connect topics of local interest with the general course of history." They will be found, however, full of new details, and of unusual interest.

Stanley, Z. L. The mysterious doctor: a novel. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1888. c. 3–420 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The person who tells this story is its hero; he had been a captain in a Ranger regiment in Texas, which had served on the southwestern frontier; in 1854, when the story opens, he finds his occupation as a soldier gone through the ending of the war. To earn a living he takes a position with a land agency and travels through the West offering for sale large tracts of land in Texas and other states. It is in Kentucky that his adventures begin. Here he falls in with "the mysterious doctor," who turns out to be a brigand in disguise. He entraps our hero, making him prisoner for a time in an immense cave; he is rescued by a beautiful young lady, who is the heroine of the story thenceforth. The hero's accomplishments as a rider and shooter are the occasion of many startling episodes.

Stearns, O. S., D.D. Introduction to the books of the Old Testament, with analyses and illustrative literature. Bost., Silver, Burdett & Co., 1888. c. 148 p. D. cl., $1.

The inspiration and authenticity of the Hebrew Bible is not considered. The author adopts the Revised Version. The plan is historical. An outline is given of each of the books of the Old Testament, giving authorship, date, contents, chief critical difficulties, and a list of such literature as may aid in solving these difficulties. Nothing controversial is designed. The book is intended merely to make lay readers understand better a book they love and read daily.

Stearns, Winfrid A. Wrecked on Labrador. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1888.] c. 6+470 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Two excursions to Labrador are described in the story. A father and his three boys go on the first; the mother and eldest daughter join them in the second, in which their ship, The Seafoam, is wrecked. They save many things and lead a most interesting life. Much natural history of the animals of the vicinity of Labrador, especially birds and fishes, is interwoven. Some space is also given to a simple manner of stuffing birds. Founded on facts in the life of the writer.

Steele, J. Dorman. Popular physics. N. Y. and Chic., A. S. Barnes & Co., 1887. c. 10+380 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Under the name of "Popular physics" is offered a new and revised edition up to date of Steele's "Fourteen weeks in physics." The revision was made by Dr. W. Le C. Stevens, of the Packer Collegiate Institute, Brooklyn, at the request of the author shortly before his death. The popular style of Dr. Steele has been but very slightly modified; every chapter, nevertheless, has received some alterations and slight enlargement.

Steell, Willis. Isidra. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 4–271 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The year 1864 is the time and Mexico is the scene. The author casts a lurid light upon the corruption, political, social, and religious, that prevailed in that unfortunate conglomeration of rival governments that was covered by the generic term of Mexico. The governor of one of these little states has trained his daughter, Isidra, to be a patriot and a politician. He taught her that "no nation can achieve greatness when but half of her inhabitants are citizens. The women of spindle and needle, with hearts filled by husband and son to the exclusion of the country, are a dead-weight against its progress." His dream was a modern Sparta. The plot in which Isidra plays a man's part, refusing to the end to be conquered by her woman's heart, is very strong.

Stephens, W. R. W. Hildebrand and his times. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] 13+230 p. map, D. (Epochs of church history.) cl., 80 c.

Hildebrand was the young chaplain of Gregory IV., when the latter was deposed in 1047. He was born in a small town in Tuscany, but was probably of Teutonic origin. At a time when church and state were rotten to the core, Hildebrand led the austere life of a consecrated monk. He was a man of genius and held many responsible positions under English, French, and German rulers. In 1073 he was elected pope, under the title of Gregory VII. In his efforts to reform church and state he met with violent opposition from crowned heads and was finally deposed in 1080 by Henry IV. of France. He died in 1085. His chief aim in life was to make the church a great spiritual empire, free from secular control. Index and list of authorities consulted.

Stepniak (pseud.) The Russian peasantry; their agrarian condition, social life, and religion. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 6+401 p. S. cl., $1.25.

Contents: The Russian agrarian question; The Moujiks and the Russian democracy; Paternal government; Hard times; Popular religion; The Rascol; Rationalistic dissent; Modern sectarianism; The tragedy of Russian history. These nine papers aim to illustrate "an actual crisis—economical, social, and religious"—that Stepniak believes the Russian peasants are now passing through. This change is brought about not only by the influence of the new times and new ideas, but through the unusual character of the Russian peasantry, whom he considers well worth the study present writers are bestowing upon them.

Sterne, Simon. Constitutional history and political development of the United States. 4th rev. ed. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 20+361 p. D. cl., $1.25.

In bringing the subject-matter down to date, the author in the preparation of this edition has rewritten a considerable part of the work, and has incorporated the suggestions of "kindly critics," who have, both in the public press and in letters addressed to him personally, suggested amendments. To avoid too much interference with stereotyped plates, addenda covering about 100 pages have been added at the end, carrying the history of the Constitution and the political development of the U. S. from 1882 down to the close of 1887.

Sterne, Stuart. Beyond the shadow and other poems. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 2+147 p. S. cl., $1.

Speaking of this volume of poems the Boston Post says: "Short poems for the most part regretful in tone and dealing with love and death, and with the usual personal moods of the minor poet, are the rule; but the first poem which gives a name to the volume is of a more ambitious and imaginative cast. This tells of the salvation after death of an actor, and the scene goes on in an original purgatory, which is described only in few words and leaves the impression of a landscape picture done altogether in color. . . ."

Stevens, Agnes, comp. How men propose; the fateful question and its answer; love scenes from popular works of fiction. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1888. c. 343 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A collection of extracts from the works of prominent novelists, showing the many and various ways in which they treat the marriage proposal. These selected love-passages will be found to possess a good share of warm human interest, and also to furnish material for a most agreeable and instructive literary study.

Stevens, T: Around the world on a bicycle. In 2 v. V. 2, From Teheran to Yokohama. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 10+477 p. il. O. cl., $4.

The first volume of this work, "From San Francisco to Teheran," was published in 1877. The account of the completion of Mr. Stevens' exceptional tour is found here. As the route of the last half of his journey was more novel than the first half, the narrative naturally is more interesting, both in its travelling details and its adventures. He takes up his story again at Teheran, in Persia, where we left him. For over four months he lingered in the chief cities of Persia and Afghanistan, and then embarked on a steamer for India. To India and China he devoted five months of constant travel, arriving at Yokohama at the end of December, 1886, having actually wheeled about 13,500 miles. Not only is the book rich in unusual experience from the novel character of Mr. Stevens' vehicle, but it is a most valuable description of a side of life in little known countries that could not have been seen in any other way.

Stevenson, Rob. L: The black arrow: a tale of the two roses. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 10+322 p. il. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

A tale of rapid action and stirring adventure like "Kidnapped" and "Treasure Island." Two picturesque figures occupy the centre of almost all the scenes—apparently two young men, one, however, being a girl in a page's attire. The elder of the two, Dick Shelton, thinks for many days that it is a young boy he is rescuing from his enemies—and the numerous unconventional adventures the pair enjoy together are both exciting and amusing. Of course Dick falls in love with "Joanna," whose disguise he at last penetrates. The action passes in the turbulent times of the long York and Lancaster duel in England, late in the reign of the unhappy Henry the Sixth. Tunstall Forest and the little town of Shoreby are the special scene of the book. The full-page il. are by Will H. Low and Alfred Brennan.

Stevenson, Rob. L: Memoir of Fleeming Jenkin. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1887. 6+302 p. D. cl., $1.

Mr. Jenkin occupied the chair of engineering in the University of Edinburgh when young Stevenson was a student in that institution. Thus began an acquaintance that ripened into the warmest friendship, and continued until Mr. Jenkin's death a few years ago. His character and temperament were of different fibre from most men's. Descended, as the author says, from "the wild Jacksons and facile Jenkins," his nature was essentially noble and outspoken, and retained in his mature years all the generous impetuosity and intellectual ardor of youth. His profession before he entered the University of Edinburgh, ocean telegraphy, took him much upon the sea, and gave him many difficult problems, in the solution of which he was always eager to make art and science coöperate. Mr. Stephenson sketches his character with the touch of a master, and with sympathetic insight, telling us incidentally much about his own youthful thoughts.

For the use of pupils who are already somewhat familiar with English grammar. It is not intended to be a substitute for a text-book or to displace other class-drill. Its purpose is to supplement any systematic course of study.

Stimson, F. J., ["J. S. of Dale," pseud.] First harvests: an episode in the life of Mrs. Levison Gower: a satire without a moral. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 9+468 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The author describes the present conditions of American social and business life as the "first harvests" of the virgin soil of American freedom. It is a brilliant satire, and the picture drawn of the leaders of society, their aims and ambitions, their ingrained selfishness and self-indulgence, of business men and their methods, of workingmen, their wrongs and dangerous ignorance, is a scathing arraignment of society as it exists to-day, notably in New York City. The lawyer's t aining shows in the nice choice of words to convey fine shades of irony and wit. There is an overtone of hope and faith. Appeared as serial in Scribner's.

Stimson, F. J. ["J. S. of Dale," pseud.] The residuary legatee; or, the posthumous jest of the late John Austin. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. '87, '88. 6+142 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 35 c.

Probably knowing the impressionable nature of the young hero, his uncle upon his death compels him to wait a dozen years before learning the name of the uncle's residuary legatee. During that time he wanders from Boston to Trouville, thence to Baden-Baden, to England, to New York, and finally back to Boston, where the name of the legatee is finally given to the surprised reader. The author of "Guerndale" has studied young men and writes a most amusing story of the eleven years in the life of the hero during which he constantly fell in love and fell out again. First appeared in Scribner's Magazine a year ago. Has been slightly enlarged. Neatly bound in imitation of a lawyer's brief.

Stockton, Frank R. Amos Kilbright, his adscititious experiences, with other stories. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 2+146 p. D. cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

Amos Kilbright appeared in America in April of this year. It is a story of spiritualism. Amos Kilbright is a materialized spirit. He was summoned by his grandson at a séance, and during some confusion among the mediums he was left exposed to the materializing agencies until he became so thoroughly embodied and full of physical life that he could not resume his spirit form. Only one man in the world possesses the secret of making him a spirit, and the plot turns upon circumstances which make him promise not to use his power. The other stories are: "The reversible landscape," a description of the steam-manufacture of copies of masterpieces; "Dusky philosophy," a negro preacher's exposition; and "Plain fishing."

Stockton, Frank R. The Dusantes; a sequel to "The casting away of Mrs. Lecks and Mrs. Aleshine." N. Y., The Century Co., [1888.] c. 3–150 p. D. cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

The eager desire that every one had who read the story of which this is a sequel to know something of the owners of the Pacific island on which the castaways took refuge, is here gratified. The whole original party returns to America, being quickly followed by the Dusantes. The latter, on going back to their island home and reading the letter left by the party, were too desirous to meet their unknown guests and return them the contents of the "ginger-jar" to make a long stay. So they trace the party to America, where many funny incidents occur before they all meet and make explanations.

Stoddard, Mrs. Elizabeth. Temple House: a novel. Rev. ed. [New issue.] N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 3+333 p. D. cl., $1.

An old country-house in a pretty New England spot comes by inheritance to Argus Gates at the age of forty-

one. His ne'er-do-well brother, with wife and daughter, come to live with him. The plot is very simple, but the study of character shows keen observation and a remarkably happy choice of words to convey the finest shades of meaning. The book was published by G. W. Carleton & Co. twenty-five years back and has been highly praised by E. C. Stedman. Argus Gates and the girl he fears to love are unusual figures in fiction.

Stoddard, Elizabeth. Two men : a novel. Rev. ed. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 10+303 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., v. 1, no. 4.) pap., 50 c.

The author is the wife of R. H. Stoddard. Nearly a quarter of a century ago she wrote "Two men," "The Morgesons," and "Temple House," "which," says E. C. Stedman in the preface to this edition, "had they not been written until the tempest of war was more fully assuaged—if in other respects the season had been ripe—would have been received by the many as they were by the critical few, for what they verily were—the pioneers of something new and real in the novelist's art." "Two men" is the story of human life in a down-east village port. The men and women are real. The dramatic power displayed in the episode of the quadroon mother and her daughter is rare in a woman. Jason Anster, the village carpenter, is a creation. The love-scenes are original and very strong.

Stoddard, W: O. Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson. N. Y., F: A. Stokes & Bro., 1888. c. 8+284+73 p. por. D. (Lives of the presidents ser.) cl., $1.25.

Covers the history of the United States in outline from the birth of Lincoln, in 1809, to the death of Johnson, in 1875, sixty-six telling years in the history of the United States. All the causes and facts of the Civil War are briefly enumerated, and the "stormy, useful and honorable life" of Andrew Johnson receives fair-minded attention. One of the most interesting volumes in this useful series.

Stoddard, W: O. Grover Cleveland. N. Y., F: A. Stokes & Bro., 1888. c. 6+263 p. por. D. (Lives of the presidents ser.) cl., $1.25.

Tells the life of the twenty-second president of the United States in a concise and interesting manner. The binding is plain maroon cloth, differing from the scarlet and gold of the rest of the series. A good portrait of Mr. Cleveland forms the frontispiece.

Stoddard, W: O. William Henry Harrison, John Tyler, and James Knox Polk. N. Y., F: A. Stokes & Bro., 1888. c. 6+120+64+96 p. il. D. (Lives of the presidents ser.) cl., $1.25.

See notice of series, "Weekly Record," P. W., Nov. 13, '86, [772].

The four presidents whose lives are here written were administrators during the years immediately preceding the Civil War. Mr. Stoddard makes clear to the boys of this generation why it became necessary for their fathers to fight to preserve for them the United States.

Stokes, Margaret. Early Christian art in Ireland. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., [1888.] 10+210 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The subject of this volume is what, the author says, "has been often misnamed Celtic, Anglo-Saxon, or Runic art, whereas the style is Irish;" after an interesting introduction explaining why the subject is confined to Ireland to the exclusion of Scotland and Wales, the book is divided into chapters treating of "Illumination," "Irish scribes on the continent," "Metal work," "Sculpture," and "Building and architecture." It is all wonderfully interesting in text and illustration, giving the student a most through idea of the richness and originality of the remains of early Christian art in Ireland. Each of the chapter subjects has a bibliography.

Stowe, Harriet Beecher. Flowers and fruit from the writings of Harriet Beecher Stowe ; arranged by Abbie H. Fairfield. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 3+198 p. S. cl., $1.

This little book has been prepared with much intelligence and care, and includes the most striking and quotable passages from Mrs. Stowe's various works. They range "from grave to gay, from lively to severe," and form a book of quite remarkable variety, admirable for brief leisure moments. Side titles are inserted in the text for each quotation, so that one can see at a glance, by running his eye along the page, what is the subject of each of the selections, and can choose to suit his taste or mood.

A comprehensive and important contribution to the history of art. The subject is treated by centuries—the greater part of the volume, naturally, being devoted to the 19th century. It is not only for students but for the general reader, the writer's methods being exceedingly attractive and rich in details. It is illustrated with sixteen full-page pictures reproduced from French masterpieces, representing Millet, Gérôme, Troyan, Meissonier, Bourgureau, David, Le Brun, Watteau, Poussin, Bastien-Lepage, and others equally celebrated in French art. The well-known artist, Edwin H. Blashfield, designed the handsome cover. The paper, printing, etc., are very handsome.

Strange manuscript (A) found in a copper cylinder: il. by Gilbert Gaul. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 7+291 p. D. cl., $1.25.

In 1850 the yacht Falcon lay becalmed upon the ocean between the Canaries and the Madeira Islands. Her owner and a few congenial friends are resting at noon, when one of them discovers the "copper cylinder" floating in the ocean. They lower a boat and bring it on the yacht. It proves to contain the "manuscript" purporting to be written by Adam More, an Englishman, shipwrecked some years back. His story tells how he was shot through a tunnel into a circumpolar climate called the country of the Kosekin. Here the author, who is supposed to be Prof. De Mille, lets his imagination run riot, and we are introduced to the strangest human beings, animals, theories, customs, creeds, adventures, etc. The romantic element is specially original and funny. A supernatural bird plays a leading part. Appropriately illustrated.

Stuart, Esmé. Carried off: a story of pirate times. N. Y., T: Whittaker, [1888.] 8+240 p. il., D. cl., 90 c.

The opening incident gives name to the book; it tells of the capture of Harry Fenn, the son of an Essex County yeoman, by the famous buccaneer Henry Morgan. After this daring deed the pirates leave English waters and are again heard of at the West Indies, where they force Don Estavan del Campo, Governor of St. Catherine, to surrender that island. This event lends variety to the story and is the cause of some exciting scenes, in which Harry Fenn, Felipa and Carlo del Campo, Andreas, and Etta Allison figure.

Stuart, Hester. A modern Jacob. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 209 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.25.

The modern Jacob like his ancient prototype is grasping and by underhanded ways cheats his brother out of his inheritance for a time. His parents are almost as blind as Isaac of old. The village clergyman and his friend Dr. Grant vie with each other in unselfishness. The author holds strong views on heredity.

This important work, of which the third volume has just been issued, is designed to accompany the great encyclopædia, completing it where it appears deficient, especially in American articles, and bringing down to the latest date its statements and descriptions. In the development of this plan large space has been given to articles on American geography, natural history, scientific research, and whatever relates to the vast resources, the rapid development, and recent increase in our knowledge of the continent. Many other topics distinctively American, such as our politics and political parties, religious denominations and benevolent institutions, our public works, banks, finances, etc., receive particular attention. It meets also the demand for the latest information about peoples, countries, inventions, and discoveries. It moreover includes biographies of living men of eminence. The contributors are among the most learned men of this country. The volumes are uniform in size and appearance with the "Encyclopædia Britannic." Free trade, homœopathy, indulgences, and some other topics, are, it is claimed, treated with special fairness in the third volume just issued. The work will probably be completed in four volumes.

Translated from the Latin edition of Dr. J. F. Emanuel Tafel, Tübingen, 1849. The translator in his preface says: "That the work now before us De Anima, is the author's long-deferred 'Rational Psychology,' and the final summary of all his studies on this subject, forming also the conclusion and culmination of the great series entitled the 'Animal kingdom,' seems abundantly apparent from the agreement of its contents with those subjects indicated in the closing numbers of the author's projected scheme of his work. . . ."

Sylvester, Herbert Milton. Homestead highways. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 9–302 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author of "Prose pastorals" gave promise of better work to come and in this new book shows all his old love of nature and human nature, his sense of humor, his thorough enjoyment of the world and his sympathy with its pathos, but his eye and hand have become more trained, and he uses rare taste in selecting words for his ideas. The book is handsomely gotten up, with rough edges and gilt top. He divides his studies of nature into "A mute prophecy;" "An old-fashioned festival;" "A winter resort;" "Running water;" "A snug corner;" "A wayside watering-place," and "A drop of rain."

Taylor, E: Is protection a benefit? A plea for the negative. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1888. c. 274 p. D. cl., $1.

Prof. Taylor has written "as a student of economic science, not as a political partisan." He is convinced that our present high tariff is an unqualified evil and an obstacle to our national prosperity. His book attempts a compact statement of the whole argument, including even a brief account of the tariff legislation of the countries of Europe, as well as a historical sketch of the tariffs of the United States.

Taylor, G: Lansing, D.D. The New Africa; its discovery and destiny. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt, 1888. 56 p. O. pap., 20 c.

Much of the substance of this pamphlet appeared in the Methodist Review for May, July, and September of the current year. It is a brief general survey of recent exploration and discovery in Africa. One of the largest masses of contiguous fertile land on the globe is the New Africa of the central plateau and its watersheds, which under the control of England and Germany will in future years be a happy and powerful home for mankind.

A brief historical survey of Scotland's religious struggles during the past three hundred years. It aims to show that Scotland's strength in the past and hope in the future lies in the faith and resolve "That in all things the Lord Jesus Christ should have the preëminence."

Taylor, Winnie Louise. His broken sword. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1888. 3–354 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Sound common-sense and helpful, practical ideas about duty toward your neighbor are crowded into this story, which is appropriately dedicated to Edward Everett Hale. The hero, under strong provocation, is guilty of manslaughter and serves ten years in a Western prison. The heroine marries him just before he is taken there, and her letters to him are charming. She learns to become a help and comfort to many besides her husband during the long years of separation. Her father is a doctor, her mother a proud Southern lady who finds it hard to accept the son-in-law who fought against Maryland, but finally makes him bury his sword under the corner-stone of his house. Some excellent ideas of reforms in prison discipline are introduced.

Tempted London: young men. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, [1888.] 6+288 p. D. cl., $1.25.

These papers were printed in the British Weekly, commencing in October, 1887, and continuing until the end of April, 1888. They excited extraordinary attention, and were made the subject of sermons and courses of sermons in many churches and chapels in the United Kingdom. The facts upon which they are based were collected with great care by commissioners specially selected for the purpose. The plan of the work is to follow the career of a hypothetical young man who comes to London for the first time; to describe his surroundings, his lodgings, his business life; to explain his ways, his prospects; in a word, to depict as far as possible his life in London. Then follows in strict sequence a consideration of his temptations, ranging under these formal heads—Drink, Betting and Gambling, and Impurity.

Tenney, Rev. H. Melville. Christian science; its truths and errors. Cleveland, O., The Burrows Bros. Co., 1888. c. 62 p. S. pap., 25 c.

The larger part of this paper was read March 5, 1888, before the Congregational ministers of Cleveland. After revision it was also read before the Union City ministers' meeting of that city. The subject is treated in a candid spirit of inquiry. All that is Christian is frankly recognized, all that is scientific is acknowledged, but the errors are unveiled and the positive and possible evils are unsparingly pointed out. Its contradictions of the Bible, its incoherent philosophy and its failures as a curative agency are pointed out. Very neatly gotten up in cream imitation leatherette with red lettering.

Thickstun, F: A Mexican girl. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 287 p. S. (Ticknor's pap. ser., no. 41.) pap., 50 c.

Scene laid in New Ripo, supposed to be a mining settlement on the border line between California and New Mexico. The mixed population of Mexicans, Cornishmen, and wild, dissipated Americans is graphically described. The mine superintendent has advertised for a school-teacher, and Mr. Roslin, of New England, arrives. The Mexican girl, Panchita, resolves to marry him in order to leave the camp, which she hates. He falls desperately in love, but is constantly troubled by her wild lawlessness. After many startling revelations he sadly confides to his note-book that "Love is only lack of knowledge." The author is a native of Colorado.

A second edition of this book is issued in response to what seems to be a genuine demand for it. Its chief usefulness will be found in its suggestiveness as to the study of Shakespeare. In addition a good deal of technical information very helpful to understanding Shakespeare's English is available to those not having time or inclination to work over a Shakespeare grammar. The book has been enlarged by the examinations on "King Lear," "Othello," and the "Merchant of Venice," to which the examination on Chaucer has been added.

With this work we have the first volume of a new series, "planned more particularly for the requirements of younger readers." It proposes to include histories of all the chief cities of the United States. This volume presents a brief but comprehensive survey of the causes which led to the founding of the city, and of the various agencies which contributed to its marvellous growth. Combined with this is a narrative of domestic details and romantic or picturesque incidents as serve to render the picture clear and complete.

A romantic girl of seventeen, left with a governess and young sister in a dreary, deserted Russian country-house, sinks into unnatural apathy, from which she is aroused by her guardian, a man of thirty-six. He awakens in her a wish to be and to do, that she may fulfil his ideal of girlhood. They marry. Then follows a study of a strong, fully matured man's love, and the incoherent, indefinite longings, emotions, doubts, and disappointments of a young girl's first love, which ranks with the finest work Tolstoï has done.

Tolstoï, Count Lyof N. Life; authorized tr. by Isabel F. Hapgood. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1888.] 295 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.
A thoughtful study of human life, its intention, aims, needs, purpose, and necessary apparent ending. Tolstoï strikes his key-note of "love one another," and endeavors to lay down rules which, if followed, would make this world happy and the world to come something to be longed for. He specially tries to combat the fear of death, which he claims is founded on unpardonable ignorance.

Tolstoï, Count Lyof N. The long exile, and other stories for children; from the Russian by Nathan Haskell Dole. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1888.] c. tr. 7+363 p. D. cl., $1.25.
"Principally this volume is meant for children, and they will read it for its stories as they read 'Gulliver's travels,' without a thought of the moral or the store of morals which its contains. Simple, vivid, delicate, pathetic, often slyly humorous, these stories have not a false note in them. They were written for peasant children—the very children whom we see so picturesquely painted in the last hundred pages. Many of them are little poems, as for example, the stories entitled 'The gray hare' and 'The willow-tree.' Many of them reveal the author's personality in a wholly genial way, as in the stories of his dogs, his trees, his horse, his silk-worms."—Extract from Translator's preface.

Tolstoï reviews Napoleon's invasion of Russia and gives an elaborate opinion of Napoleon's intellectual capacity and his claims to being considered a great general. The work is not complimentary to Napoleon in any way.

Tolstoï, Count Lyof N. Power and liberty; from the French by Huntington Smith. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1888.] c. tr. 132 p. D. cl., 75 c.

"The idea of necessity in history, which was marked out by Count Tolstoï in his essay on 'Napoleon and the Russian campaign,' is further developed and formally expre- ed in the following analyses of 'Power and lit y,' which, like the other, has not appeared in Russia, and for the text of which I am again indebted to M. Michel Delines. Most historical students at the present day will agree with Count Tolstoï in his assertion that history has occupied itself altogether too much with objective data, and too little with the principles that govern the life of collective humanity. . . . Count Tolstoï suggests another method, which he confidently believes will ally historical science with the other sciences. He maintains that history must give up the study of causes, which are not and never can be known, and busy itself instead with the discovery of the laws that govern the life of humanity. . . ."—Translator's preface.

The first edition of this book [see P. W., October, 1887, No. 818] was incomplete, owing to the impossibility of obtaining a complete copy of the original, many pages having been suppressed by the Russian Censor. A complete copy has now been obtained, and this translation is unabridged. The great humanitarian holds that the object of a census is scientific. "A census is a sociological investigation, and the object of the science of sociology is the happiness of the people." The book contains a powerful chapter on the place of woman in society and her often neglected duties.

A story of the north, with the pastimes and perils of a ringing winter. It is more a succession of character studies than a novel of exciting incidents, though there are many strange happenings and surprises. The story is told by "Percival Reynolds, Civil and Mining Engineer," who with his genial wife, his merry "tom-boy" of a girl, and the quiet, refined, steady-poised schoolmistress, the heroine and the mystery of the book, are the chief characters.

Tozer, Rev. H: Fanshawe. The church and the Eastern empire. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] 8+198 p. D. (Epochs of church history.) cl., 80 c.

Treats chiefly and briefly of episodes of interest and importance in the early Christian Church, which influenced the social and religious life of the Eastern Empire. The early period, that of the first four General Councils, is only touched upon, as it belongs to the history of the church at large—it is the later or Byzantine age of the Eastern Church that is especially considered.

Beginning with a meeting of the Supreme Council of the American Section of the International in an old-fashioned house in 2d Av., N. Y. City, this story ends in Russia with the assassination of Alexander II., March 13, 1881, to which event all the incidents lead up. The story is full of exciting events, which are said to be true. The more prominent characters, too, are real, though figuring under fictitious names.

General de Trobriand's story was written soon after the war, from notes and a diary. It was then published in French and for French readers. The strangest thing about it is that it has only just now found a translator. It presents in a life-like manner incidents of army life, of the bivouac and the battle, of the camp and of the field, besides giving the history of the campaigns of the four years de Trobriand was with the Army of the Potomac, from the opening scene with McClellan before Richmond to the closing one at Gettysburg. The General was not an admirer of McClellan, whom he criticises severely. He gives some trenchant accounts of Washington and the politicians, and of the famous figures of that day. Captain Dauchy, the translator, was in command of the Twelfth New York Battery, and was companion-in-arms with de Trobriand both in the Second and Third Corps of the army. He has made an excellent translation.

Trollope, T: Adolphus. What I remember. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 4+546 p. por. D. cl., $1.75.

A record of English literary life, extending some fifty years back of 1865. Mr. Trollope, who is the author of "Lindisfarn chase," "A siren," and other novels, and who must not be confounded with his brother Anthony, is full of interesting anecdotes and reminiscences in this volume culled from his long acquaintance with distinguished men and women. Charles Dickens, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Garibaldi, Landor, Lewes and George Eliot, Mary Mitford, and T. C. Grattan, are among the names found in his autobiography. He gives a number of new letters, some of especial interest, from Mr. Lewes and George Eliot.

Andrew Hapnell goes to live with his married sister after his mother's death and is looking for work when a letter arrives from his mother's brother, speaking of riches and offering a home to his sister's family. Andrew leaves Ohio and goes to New England, finds his uncle living in a miserly way and very cross and irritable. He goes to work for a baker, lives with the old man, and finally, after "biding his time," finds the fortune in a most peculiar place.

Trowbridge, J. T. A start in life: a story of the Genesee country. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1889 [1888.] c. 3–163 p. il. S. (Start in life stories.) cl., $1.

The first volume of a new series for boys. The hero is a boy of about seventeen, who leaves his home, on account of the tyranny of an elder brother, to seek his fortune. After going through many depressing experiences, he gets work, and by his energy, industry, and honesty makes an independent position for himself. Many incidents of frontier life—the time of the story being during the first settlements in Genesee county—are woven in with the story, such as coon and bear hunting, wood-cutting, and wild honey gathering.

Trumbull, Gordon. Names and portraits of birds which interest gunners; with descriptions in language understanded [sic] of the people. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 7+221 p. il. O. cl., $2.50.

Mr. Trumbull has had extensive opportunities for acquiring the information he has condensed in this volume, about upwards of sixty birds. He has selected these because they specially interest gunners, and are therefore widely known to non-scientific people, and are generally talked about. His plan is, first to give a picture of the bird; after this is given the scientific name, then a minute description of the bird in plain English that children can understand. All the bird's peculiarities are stated, and all differences between old and young, male and female. Then follow the various names given the bird by travellers and authors, and the several names popularly given to this particular bird in different localities from Maine to Florida, and westward to the Rocky Mountains.

Ten lectures by the editor of The Sunday-School Times and the author of "Kadesh Barnea, the blood covenant," and other religious works. Mr. Trumbull has been specially interested for over a quarter of a century on this subject—hence was a particularly happy choice as a lecturer. His lectures are full of evidence of his long experience in this direction and of the earnest thought he brought to his work. There are very full bibliographical, scriptural, and topical indexes, which add much to the value of the book.

Trumbull, M. M. The trial of the judgment: a review of the anarchist case. Chic., Health and Home Pub. Co., 1888. c. 75 p. O. pap., 25 c.

The following paragraph is the key-note to this pamphlet: "In the trial of the anarchists a great wrong was done, not only to them and their families, but to all the people, whose lives, property, and liberties can never be safe where the guarantees of the constitution are disregarded by the courts and the right of trial by a fair and impartial jury is denied. That the wrong done in the anarchist trial and judgment made be righted as far as possible, and that a like wrong may never again be done in the United States, this review is written."

The magical and prophetic character attributed to Virgil is one of the most curious and interesting phases of superstition, and it has not hitherto received the attention of English and American scholars which it deserves. Mr. Tunison's book aims to make up this defect. It discusses the diabolism, the science, and the prejudices—religious and social—of the middle ages as they are illustrated in the tales about Virgil. Those who admire the poet will find their interest in his works quickened by a study of his character from an unusual point of view.

The second and third volumes in a series which began some time since with the work entitled "History of Prussia to the ascension of Frederick the Great." By themselves these two volumes also form the first half of what the auther hopes will be a complete account, descriptive and historical, of the reign of the third king of Prussia. A fourth volume, to be issued in the near future, will cover the period of the Seven Years' War, including the measures which were taken to heal the wounds left by that bloody struggle. The fifth will bring the story down to the death of Frederick. It is claimed for the work that "it is not a mere restatement of facts included in the works of others, but is based on original researches, and is an independent presentation of the condition and achievements of Prussia under Frederick the Great, and of the methods and singular character of this remarkable sovereign."

Gabrielle de Monterey forces the widow and child of Jean Mortier, unjustly accused of the murder of Pierre Mortier, to take up their abode in her house. The motives which lead her to this seemingly uncalled-for piece of generosity, and which lead Mme. Mortier to accept her kindness, are brought out by the story. For fifteen years these two women live under the same roof, and their children learn to love each other. It is this love which leads to the detection of the real murderer. Roger de Monterey is forbidden to marry the daughter of a murderer. Believing in Jean Mortier's innocence, his efforts to clear his name for the daughter's sake bring about some startling revelations.

Ulbach, L: The steel hammer: a novel; from the French by E. W. Latimer. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. tr. 231 p. S. (Appletons' town and country lib., no. 1.) pap., 50 c.

The first number of this series, to be issued semi-monthly, tells a story of Paris life. Two cousins, a farmer and an upholsterer, meet in the office of a notary to inherit an unknown uncle's legacy of 15,000 francs. It has all been left to the farmer, already well-to-do and unmarried. The upholsterer returns to his sick wife and hungry child, after a night of agony passed in the streets. During the night the cousin, who has been drinking among fast young men, is murdered. The upholsterer is arrested because he has in his possession a steel hammer with which the murder is supposed to have been committed. The trial introduces many interesting characters. A sequel is to clear the mystery, under the title "For fifteen years."

The first edition was published in 1881 by the author, the second in 1882; the continued calls for copies of the work have led to this new edition. During the past six years the interest in ferns has so largely increased, and has resulted not only in a wider and more thorough study of known forms, but in the finding of many new species. In the present edition 156 species are recorded and described to 145 of former editions. The general plan has only been slightly modified, while the details of the entire work have been thoroughly revised. The literature of the subject of special chapters has been greatly enlarged.

Unlaid ghost (An): a study in metempsychosis. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 178 p. S. pap., 50 c.

The Pythagorean doctrine of the transmigration of souls is illustrated in this story. The first part opens in the time of Nero; his wicked Empress "Poppæa" after committing many crimes, dies cursed by one of her victims, her future fate being to return again to earth in another form, still going on and working evil till her crimes are expiated. The second part opens in France in the present century. Poppæa is supposed to reappear in the form of a young French girl, who unwittingly brings disaster to all who love her.

Valdés, Don Armando Palacio. Maximina; from the Spanish by Nathan Haskell Dole. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1888.] c. tr. 2+390 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author of "The Marquis of Peñalta" tells here a strong and dramatic story of life in Madrid, at the time when the revolutionary fever was rife. The heroine is a beautiful girl from the provinces, married to an aristocratic young editor of a liberal journal. Her character is drawn with marvellous fidelity. The story of her married life is almost a poem, so ideal is it in every detail. The opening chapter in which the wedding is described is charmingly written. The book includes many scenes also from the life of journalism, politics, and society.

Valrose, Viscount, [pseud.] Hon. Uncle Sam. N. Y., J: Delay, 1888. c. 221 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Sharp, brief pen-pictures of our prominent orators, journalists, preachers, rhymesters, pamphleteers, caricaturists, poets, diplomats, financiers, wits, philosophers, and ladies. They are by no means complimentary, and profess to be the observation of a Frenchman of distinction visiting in the United States. Many amusing anecdotes are to be found enlivening the text.

Vandegrift, Margaret. The dead doll, and other verses. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1889 [1888.] c. '88. 3–169 p. il. sq. O. cl., $1.50.

The young readers of St. Nicholas, Harper's Young People, The Youth's Companion, and Wide Awake already know and love many of these wise and witty verses. They will find new ones quite as pretty as "The dead doll" and "The fate of a face-maker," which Miss Vandegrift sends out to the public for the first time in this volume. The volume is full of pictures and uniform with "Davy and the goblin."

Vandegrift, Margaret. Little helpers. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1889 [1888.] c. 6–251 p. il. sq. O. cl., $1.50.

The doings of Johnny and Tiny Leslie, a little boy and girl, fill this handsome volume. These adventures are simple enough, rarely going outside of the routine of every-day life. Such as they are, however, they are made interesting and also instructive, each episode having its own unobtrusive moral. Suitable for children between 10 and 12. With full-page and text pictures.

Van Dyke, H:, D.D. The national sin of literary piracy: a sermon. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 23 p. D. pap., 5 c.

An earnest and vigorous exposition of the moral aspects of the international copyright question. Dr. Van Dyke, who is the well-known pastor of the Brick Church, N. Y. City, considers the subject under three phases: 1, The nature of the national sin of literary piracy; 2, Its punishment; and 3, Its cure.

Van Dyke, J: C. How to judge of a picture: familiar talks in the gallery with the uncritical lovers of art. N. Y., Chautauqua Press [Phillips & Hunt], 1888. c. 168 p. S. cl., 75 c.

Answers in a general way such questions as even intelligent people, with a limited art education, are apt to ask in an art gallery. It is the result of an attempt on the author's part to explain to two young friends at the Morgan Collection what there was in "those homely peasant faces of Millet" that people liked so much, and why the landscapes of Corot were considered such very superior art when they were "not half finished." Additional questions made the "talks" quite extensive, and Mr. Van Dyke decided to write them out, thinking they might be helpful to other young or old people. The little book certainly gives a most excellent idea of the peculiarities of contemporary art.

Veitch, Miss Sophie F. F. James Hepburn, Free Church minister. Toronto, Williamson & Co., 1888. 414 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The Scotsman from the other side says of this work: "The author of 'Angus Graeme, gamekeeper,' has produced another Scottish novel of remarkable power. 'James Hepburn, Free Church minister,' is at once a striking character study, a skilful picture of the social life of a country town and district, and a powerful sensational story. It is in the first of these aspects that it displays most original vigor. . . . That there ever was a Free Church minister like Mr. Hepburn, or a murderer like Robert Blackwood, is more than doubtful. It is doubtful if in actual life there could be. But the dramatic skill and power of the author make the story appear credible enough in its progress. It is open to criticism on many of its details, but taken as a whole it must be admitted to be one of the strongest productions of the fictional art that have recently appeared."

Veley, Margaret. A marriage of shadows, and other poems; with biographical preface by Leslie Stephen. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1889 [1888.] 23+149 p. D. cl., $1.

Miss Veley is best known to us through her novels, "For Percival," "Mrs. Austin," etc. The vein of melancholy which characterized them is also found in this little volume of poems published in England since her death. Mr. Stephen's biographical sketch is warmly appreciative of herself and her work. Regarding the poem which gives name to the volume, the London Athenæum says: "The idea of the poem, so far as it is traceable, is that the shadows of veritable men and women leave them in the dusk and dark, and, with some strange existence truer than that of their flesh and blood prototypes, go through marriage destinies which have not fallen to those phototypes, but which befall in the shadowland of the might have been. At dawn the shadows return to their owners and live with them the life that is."

The contents embrace an historical sketch of the settlement of the Ohio Valley, descriptions of early modes of travel by road and river, with particulars as to backwoods life, customs, houses, furniture, etc., etc., and selections of pioneer poetry.

Venables, Edmund. Life of John Bunyan. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. 195+35 p. S. (Great writers ser.) cl., 40 c.

Nothing more has been attempted in the present work than to arrange the available material in a clear and intelligible form; where it has been possible, allowing Bunyan to tell his own story in his own unapproachable English. A bibliography covering thirty-five pages, by Mr. John P. Anderson, of the British Museum, is a valuable feature of this work, as it is of the other volumes of the series.

*Verestchagin, Vassili. Vassili Verestchagin, painter, soldier, traveller: autobiographical sketches from the German and French by F. H. Peters. N. Y., American Art Assoc., 1888. il. and por. D. cl., $1.

Verestchagin, Alex. At home, and in war. 1853–1888: reminiscences and anecdotes; authorized translation by Isabel F. Hapgood. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., 1888. c. tr. 6+521 p. por. D. cl., $1.75.

The author was General Skobeleff's adjutant and is an intimate friend of many of the leading military men of Russia. Count Tolstoï declares his work the very best war book ever written in Europe. In Germany certain passages are considered so excessively truthful that they are forbidden. The book is divided into three parts. "At home" describes the author's youth and school-life. "In war" comprises reminiscences and sketches from the Russo-Turkish war of 1877–78. Pt. 3 consists of "Reminiscences of an eye-witness of the Tekke expedition, 1880–'81." Illustrated by 23 portraits of the author and other distinguished Russian officials.

The work has been before the public since 1885, and in preparing a new edition all the statistical tables have been kept the same as in the first edition, as many of the arguments are deduced from them. But valuable statistics have been placed in an appendix, covering all need of revision.

Vincent, J. H. Better not: a discussion of certain social customs. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1888. c. 86 p. S. cl., 50 c.

The Chautauqua "Text-book of Greek history," by J. H. Vincent, is the basis of this little volume. In chronological plan, as well as in the separate treatment of Grecian geography, history, and biography, the present work follows the lines which were laid down in the text-book. In the expansion of the text-book to the proportions of this history reference has been made to many standard writings upon the subject.

Virgil's Æneid, translated literally, line by line, into English dactylic hexameter by Rev. Oliver Crane, D.D. N. Y., The Baker & Taylor Co., 1888. c. '87. 40+258 p. O. cl., $1.75.

"The aim of the present version has been, not to equal the rhythmic beauty of the poet's numbers, for this is a sheer impossibility, but to permit Virgil to utter his own thoughts in his own phraseology as nearly as practicable, without retrenchment or meretricious embellishment. Every word, save the occasionally often-recurring minor conjunctions, has been rendered, and a constant effort made to give each its full force; whilst additions, when indispensable to complete ellipses or to accommodate the metre, are scrupulously in the line of the poet's thought." —Preface.

Contents: Her great idea; Paul's blunders; The little tragedy in Green street; A tumbler of milk; Arabella at the sales; Lady Nelly; Lady Jane's reverie (a poem); Diplomacy among the haycocks; A Henly ghost (verses); Ada, the true story of her marriage.

Walford, L. B. A mere child. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1888 3+265 p. S. (Leisure hour ser., no. 218.) cl., $1; pap., 30 c.

A simple love story with an unsophisticated little heroine; by the author of "Mr. Smith" and "The baby's grandmother." The scene is first laid in the Highlands of Scotland and afterwards in London. Geraldine Campbell, the heiress of Inchmaren, though introduced as "a mere child," is not too young to fall in love with handsome Captain Bellenden, who meets her out fishing. The subsequent events which settle their fate are conventional enough, but told in a fresh, entertaining manner which makes the book very attractive.

Walker, E. D. Reincarnation: a study of forgotten truth. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 14+350 p. D. cl., $1.50.

That the majority of mankind are filled with a dissatisfaction that Christianity tries in vain to resist, and that even the uncompromising devotees of truth are yearning after a larger revelation, is the opinion of the author. A portion of this revelation he believes is contained in the "doctrine variously termed as reincarnation, metempsychosis, transmigration." By this he does not mean the theories concerning rebirth of men in brute bodies, but "the inner kernel of that husk, which in protean forms has irrepressibly welled up in every great phase of thought. . . . " This work is a brief summary of the doctrine as found in Western literature, among the ancients, in the Bible, in early Christendom, in the East to-day, and in Eastern poetry. It is illustrated throughout by poems and extracts from prominent writers. A very full bibliography of reincarnation completes the volume.

Wallace, Lew. The boyhood of Christ. N. Y., Harper, 1889 [1888.] c. 3–101 p. il. Q. leath., $3.50.

First appeared as a short story in the December number of Harper's Magazine in 1886. Uncle Midas, a retired merchant, who has been all over the world, is the narrator, and tells the tale in his pleasant study to a few of the young guests at a Christmas party, who have left the games and the dance and sought out their favorite old friend. The illustrations are reproductions chiefly of well-known paintings.

Walsh, W: S. Paradoxes of a Philistine. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1889 [1888.] c. 3–192 p. D. cl., $1.

The author says the title of the book translated would seem to mean "Unrecognized truths by an anti-prig." He wittily explains the meanings of the words paradox and Philistine. It is a collection of essays, nearly all of which have already appeared in print, some in the Atlantic Monthly, some in American Notes and Queries, and the bulk of them in Lippincott's Magazine. Full of truths and timely topics put in an apt way.

The murder of Dr. Whitehurst in his office during office hours is the leading incident. A young deaf and dumb girl who has never been taught to communicate with others, is the only person known to have been near the room at the time. Whether she witnessed the murder, or saw the person who did it, is for a long time in doubt. When at length she is able to tell her story, her testimony mixes things even more, throwing suspicion on an entirely innocent person. Although the novel is full of the usual detective business, it is strong and interesting, having a novel love-story.

Ward, Mrs. Humphry. Robert Elsmere. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1888. 4+604 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Robert Elsmere studied for the church at Oxford University in the first days of reaction after the "Oxford movement." During convalescence after an illness brought on by overwork, he meets and marries Catherine, an ardently religious girl of twenty-five, who has for years taken care of her invalid mother and two sisters. He is appointed to a "living" held by a rich squire in Devonshire, who is a recluse, a student, and a writer against orthodox religion. During an epidemic of fever, for which Robert holds the squire responsible, they become friends, and Robert begins to talk with him, read his books, and find his faith in the doctrines he preaches shaken to the foundation. After many torturing days he feels he must give up his parish. His wife suffers terribly, but her love triumphs, and, though never approving, she follows him to the end. He leaves the church, but works untiringly for the bodies and souls of his fellowmen. Mrs. Ward, who is a niece of Matthew Arnold, has written a strong story, which Mr. Gladstone considered worthy of an essay in the Nineteenth Century for May. The opening paper in Blackwood's for July is also on this novel.

Ward, J: Montgomery. Base-ball ; how to become a player ; with the origin, history, and explanation of the game. Phil., The Athletic Pub. Co., 1888. c. 3–149 p. por. and il. D. cl., 50 c.; pap., 25 c.

This work is adapted to patrons and players. To the former, because of its exhaustive sketches on the origin, history, and explanation of the game, and to the latter, because of the many points valuable alike to professional and amateur players and to youthful aspirants. Under the various chapters of Pitcher, Catcher, Shortstop, First baseman, etc., it not only tells how every position should be played, but shows how to use the different curves, how to mislead the batter, how to hit safely, how to steal bases, how to stop ground-hits, how to catch fly-balls—in fact, gives complete directions for becoming an expert player. A chapter on Training is most appropriate, as is also the one on the Scientific explanation of the curved ball.

Dr. Frank Armathwaite comes to the Lake region of England to become assistant to his old colleague, Dr. Peele, who is deeply concerned about two lady patients. The author of "Scheherezade" gives her imagination full scope in her descriptions of two mysterious households. Mesmerism, laudanum, gambling, unlawful love, the mysterious noises of a house formerly occupied as a lunatic asylum, are all brought to light by this earnest young doctor, who finally brings order out of this chaos, although for awhile he also comes under the spell of a woman's face. The characters of Alma and Aphra, the two heroines, are made real, and the author has done some strong work in her descriptions of their husbands' motives also.

Warman, E. B. Warman's practical orthoëpy and critique. Chic., W. H. Harrison, Jr., Pub. Co., 1888. c. '87. 448 p. por. D. cl., $2.

The bulk of the work, 348 pages, is given up to "a list of 6399 words usually mispronounced, giving the correct pronunciation." Every pronunciation given accords with both Worcester and Webster. When the authorities do not agree, both are quoted. Mr. Warman has an established reputation as an orthoëpist, his "principles of pronunciation" having been adopted by the publishers of Worcester's dictionaries. The present work is the result of many years' study. There are introductory chapters on: Our dictionaries; Orthoëpical hints; Practical lessons in orthoëpy ; and Visible speech symbols whereby deaf-mutes are taught to talk.

Warner, C: Dudley. On horseback: a tour in Virginia, North Carolina, and Tennessee; with notes of travel in Mexico and California. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 2+331 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The two heroes of these tours are described as the "professor" and the "friend of humanity," meaning without doubt Mr. Warner and a friend. The journeys set forth in the title are made on horseback, and are described with all of Mr. Warner's well-known quaint humor. They are full of observation of the people and the country, and rich in valuable information.

Warren, G: W. Hymns and tunes as sung at St. Thomas's Church. N. Y.; music composed and adapted by G: W: Warren. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 5+93 p. Q. cl., $1.25.

The organist of St. Thomas' Church, N. Y. City, has helped more than is generally known to make its services solemn and beautiful. For years he has been importuned to publish some of the music that has become so familiar and helpful to the congregation. In this collection forty-seven of the most appreciated hymns and tunes are found. The book contains an introductory note by the late Rev. Dr. Morgan, Mr. Warren's lifelong friend. The volume is chastely bound in canvas with dark blue scroll-work.

Warren, T. Robinson. On deck; or, advice to a young Corinthian yachtsman. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1888. c. 144 p. D. cl., $1.

The author, although at sea many years professionally, has also been identified with Wall St., and has become much interested in the success of the "Corinthian," which he thinks has brought yachting to more than a summer pastime. He sees in yachting the nucleus of a marine militia, and his object in this book is chiefly to explain this theory. The book is full of anecdotes.

First issued under the title "Through Rome on" by C: P. Somerby in 1877.

Waters, Rob. William Shakespeare, portrayed by himself: a revelation of the poet in the career and character of one of his own dramatic heroes. N. Y., Worthington Co., [1888.] c. 6+347 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

The dramatic hero whom Mr. Waters believes stands for Shakespeare's own characters is Prince Henry in Shakespeare's play, "King Henry the Fifth." He endeavors to prove his theory by copious quotations from the play and a great deal of ingenious argument. The book has a distinctive literary character and is a very enjoyable contribution to Shakespeare literature. The concluding chapters are aimed against Mr. Donnelly and his "cryptogram"—neither the author nor his book having inspired Mr. Waters very strongly. Mr. Waters is the author of "A life of William Cobbett."

Watson, H. B. Marriott. Marahuna: a romance. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1888. c. 8+298 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The biologist of H. M. S. Hereward tells a story in which startling incidents rapidly succeed each other; a storm in the Antarctic region rolls away to give place to a phenomenon that excites the fear and wonderment of the Hereward's crew. Percy Grayhurst's endeavor to fathom the mystery results in a greater one, the advent of Marahuna, who astounds the reader, from the time of her supernatural entrance to the close of the story, with her strange characteristics and fiendish deeds.

Way (The) to fortune: a series of short essays with illustrative proverbs and anecdotes from many sources. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. 6+256 p. S. pap., 35 c.

The motto chosen for this bright volume reads: "It never occurs to fools that merit and good fortune are closely united." In fifty chapters are given as many important things to be considered in one's daily life if it is to be made a success for one's self and of use to one's friends. The author quotes most happily from the literature of many countries in many ages and shows how many gifted writers have concerned themselves with the little things that prove a help or a hindrance on "the way to fortune."

Wayne, C: Stokes. Mrs. Lord's moonstone, and other stories. Phil., Wynne & Wayne, 28 S. 7th St., 1888. c. 142 p. D. pap., 25 c.

An elderly man whose hobby is geology marries a romantic young wife. While she is spending a summer at a seaside resort he presents her with a ring containing a handsome moonstone. Directly she puts this on Mrs. Lord is troubled by weird fancies which to her are real, and the author tells a strange story of her life while she wears the stone and her second self when she is without it. There are four other stories: How Belford won; A modern miracle; A trap of Cupid; and The wizard's jar. All show imagination.

Alternate plates and text illustrating the weaknesses and follies of fashionable life. The full-page pictures depict the "tailor made girl" at luncheon, at an organ recital, as a bride, "over an ice," at the end of the season, at a Lenten sewing-class, at the opera, at her shoemaker's, etc., etc. Each study is accompanied by a page of crisp, pointed dialogue, in which the inanity, vulgarity, and hypocrisy of certain grades of "society" are laid bare.

Welsh, Alfred H. Lessons in English grammar Chic., J: C. Buckbee & Co., 1888. c. '87. 8–237 p. D. cl., 70 c.

This work aims to furnish a thorough knowledge and drill in the practice of the principles of the English language, based upon a wide review of the latest and best methods of exposition. It carries out its plan in a common-sense way, founded on the principle that we learn to do by doing, and that theory comes after experience. Separate topics are made separate lessons. Definitions and rules are developed by illustration. It aims especially to do away with rote learning and to make language-lessons the vehicle of valuable mental discipline.

Wentworth, G. A. A college algebra. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. c. 6+494 p. D. cl., $1.65.

"Intended, as the name implies, for colleges and scientific schools. The first part is simply a review of the principles of algebra preceding quadratic equations, with just enough examples to illustrate and enforce these principles. Following is a full discussion of Quadratic equations, the Binomial theorem, Choice, Chance, Series determinants, and the General properties of equations.

Wesselhoeft, Lily F. Sparrow, the tramp: a fable for children; il. by Jessie McDermott. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. 262 p. S. cl., $1.25.

Posy and Tom, a very small girl and boy, "Mrs. Polly," a parrot, the canary, the house-cat and the barn-cat, with a few strangers, such as the blind kitten and "Sparrow, the tramp," which join the others after a little while, make up the characters of this pretty story. The birds and animals all talk, but no one understands them but each other. In a simple, attractive way the little ones may learn from the narrative kindness to the dumb animals and a few good lessons that they may apply to their own little lives.

Westall, W: Mr. Fortescue: an Andean romance. N. Y., Appleton, 1888, 230 p. D. (Stories of romantic adventure, no. 1.) pap., 40 c.

The romances of Rider Haggard have evidently inspired William Westall. His story is located in the Andes of South America, at about the beginning of the century. Mr. Fortescue, the hero, is introduced as living in the present, and as a handsome man of about fifty, although his career, according to his own story, had begun with the battle of Salamanca. Among other marvellous things he has discovered is the secret of life. There are adventures with a strange tribe of Indians, the discovery of a diamond mine, and a good deal that is wild, exciting, and improbable, but all highly entertaining.

Stephen Girard's will directed that no "religious tenets" should be taught to the pupils of the college: only "the purest principles of morality." Dr. Westbrook, who is both a theologist and a lawyer, believes that the present system of religious instruction in Girard College is a palpable violation of the conditions of the will, and a betrayal of this great trust. Hence this book, which sets forth at length his reasons for so thinking.

Information covering questions usually asked at haphazard by average people interested in mission work concerning habits, customs, modes of dealing with various problems likely to arise in mission work, etc. Dr. Wheeler has already given an historical and systematical account of missions in his "Ten years on the Euphrates;" "Letters from Eden;" "Daughters of Armenia," etc.

Wheeler, Esther Gracie. Stray leaves from Newport. Bost., Cupples & Hurd, 1888. c. 5+195 p. D. cl., $1.50.

"Sentiment and seaweed," the opening story, covers 155 pages. The scene is laid at Newport, the characters being from fashionable society. Hope Ashton, the heroine, and Charlie Williams, one of the heroes, are both possessed of exceptional artistic talents and a strong desire to earn some money. Their method of doing this, a pleasant little love-tale, and scenes from Newport domestic life, make up the story. "My wife—where is she?" and "Our boy," two sketches, and the following poems, "The Newport Cliff," "Fata Morgana," "Warren's Newport home," and "General Albert Gallatin Lawrence," embrace all the contents of this pretty "tapestry" bound volume.

The first paper, "European schools of history and politics," gives a general account of the recent growth and present condition of this department of study at some of the centres of European instruction. Supplementing this article are papers on "Modern history at Oxford," by W. J. Ashley; "Recent impressions of the Ecole Libre," by T. K. Worthington; "Preparation for the civil service in German States," by L. Katzenstein. There is also a list of books upon the German civil service by L. Katzenstein.

White, Gleeson, comp. Ballades and rondeaus, chants royal, sestinas, villanelles, etc., with chapter on the various forms. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 79+296 p. T. cl., $1.

The very comprehensive introduction covering nearly eighty pages gives a sketch of the origin of the poetical forms illustrated here, showing that they are chiefly French and identified with early Provençal literature. It also gives a careful description of the composition of each form, and its varieties, and an account of the writers who have made use of them. The poems of the dainty little volume, which embrace both American and English poets, were chosen, the compiler states, for several reasons—"some for their intrinsic excellence, some as examples of pure form, some for their bold attempts to produce variations from the typical models." Even burlesques of the forms have been included, as it is thought the points of the construction of the verse are often seen more clearly in such examples.

White, J: S., ed. Recent examination papers for admission to Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Sheffield Scientific School, and Columbia School of Mines; selected and ed. for the use of preparatory schools. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. c. 4+324 p. D. cl., $1.25.

These papers contain analyzed sets of examinations presented by Harvard, Yale, Columbia, and Princeton Colleges; together with suggestions regarding preparation for their respective examinations. The book is intended not merely for the use of the teacher, but also quite as much for the pupil. It will thus be found suitable as a text-book in the upper classes of all schools that prepare for college.

White, Lydia E. Success in society: a manual of good manners, social etiquette, rules of behavior at home and abroad, etc. Bost., Ja. H. Earle, 1889 [1888.] c. 244 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The lessons and information comprised under the headings, "Good manners," "Self-possession," "Care of the person," "Dress," "Conversation," "Table manners," "Guests," "Cards," "Some special hints for the young," "In public," etc., are enforced and illustrated by a number of very telling anecdotes, which are meant to show that the customs of society are not mere arbitrary edicts set by fashion, but spring naturally from a good heart and fine character.

White, Margaret E., comp. After noontide. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 3+168 p. S. cl., $1.

Selections from about 130 different authors, collected "in the hope of presenting a cheerful view of the afternoon of life, by bringing forward its pleasures, possibilities, and hopes." Index to authors.

Intended for theologians only. This gospel has been subjected to microscopical analysis and searching criticism, conducted with unrivalled learning and skill. The arguments of its unfriendly assailants and eager defenders have been earnestly studied and their gist is given under the following topical headings: 1. Its authenticity; 2. Its authorship; 3. Its composition; 4. Its purpose; 5. Its plan. The student of this essay will be enabled intelligently to grasp what is usually styled "The Johannine Question."

Whitman, Edmund A. Flax culture: an outline of the history and present condition of the flax industry in the United States, and a consideration of the influence exerted on it by legislation; with an introduction by J. R. Leeson. Bost., Rand, Avery Co., 1888. c. 102 p. O. cl., $1.

This volume aims briefly to prove that a duty on imported flax is unnecessary and a hindrance to the flax-growing and linen-manufacturing industries of the United States. The facts and figures are taken almost entirely from publications of the United States Government, and they are worded as far as possible by government experts. An appendix of six tables of statistics makes the verification of statements practicable.

Whitman, Walt. November boughs. Phil., D: McKay, 1888. c. 140 p. por. O. cl., $1.25.
The aged author takes a backward glance over his literary career in an introductory chapter, explaining his idea of literary reform and the aim and scope of his "Leaves of grass." Many short poems on many occurrences of the years from 1850 to 1880 follow. The collection also includes estimates of Robert Burns and Tennyson. Some of the matter is old, but there is much that is new, and shows all the old fire and bristling individuality of the rugged old reformer. A portrait taken from life, at the age of seventy, forms the frontispiece.

An entirely new edition of Whittier's complete works. The poetic works will comprise 4 volumes, the prose 3. The text has been carefully revised by Mr. Whittier, who has added such notes as seemed desirable concerning the occasion of any poem or prose article, or the circumstances under which it was written. This feature lends especial value and interest to the edition. The last volume of the poetic works will contain, in an appendix, poems heretofore omitted by Mr. Whittier from the successive general collections of his poetry. It will also include an index to the four volumes, and a table of first lines of all the poems. The prose writings, in addition to those heretofore collected, will embrace a number of essays, sketches, prefaces, and letters, brought together from a variety of sources. The five portraits included, two etched and three engraved, represent Mr. Whittier at different periods, from the beginning of his career as a writer to the present date.

Wiggin, Kate Douglas. The birds' Christmas carol. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1889 [1888.] c. '86, '89. 3-67 p. il. D. cl., 50 c.
A sweet story, that cannot be read with dry eyes, of a little girl born on Christmas day to Mamma and Papa Bird, whom they named "Carol." In her happy, tender way she taught her little nest-mates many lessons of love on earth, good-will towards men. She was delicate, and after making a merry Christmas for a large family of small children, she slipped away to her "ain countrie" while the Christmas bells were ringing on her tenth birthday. Charmingly illustrated by the author.

Wight, O. W., M.D. People and countries visited in a winding journey around the world. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 6-518 p. O. cl., $2.
In 1887 Mr. Wight made an extended journey around the world, for the sake of observing every country in which an Aryan people has established civil government. He traversed Europe from north to south, from east to west, and even went to Australia and New Zealand, where fresh Aryan communities are planting civil liberty in the southern hemisphere. This book if much more than a volume of travel; it embodies the observations and reflections of a thoughtful and cultivated man on important elements of civilization as well as on many countries and peoples.

The vice of gambling, with its allied vices of intemperance and sensuality, form the basis of a story which the author has written with the avowed purpose of making vice hideous. It is an unhealthy story of the dark side of Chicago life.

Wilder, M. L. Our girls at Castlewood. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] c. '87. 344 p. 1 il. S. cl., $1.15.
This simple story of a summer vacation, spent in an out-of-the-way country-place has five heroines. The parents of these girls are obliged to go to Europe, and make arrangements to have the girls combine and spend the summer in a large country-house under the care of an old housekeeper and her husband. This old couple teach the girls many useful lessons and make them useful in much good work.

Wilkie, Franc B., ["Poliuto," pseud.] Pen and powder. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 4+383 p. D. cl., $1.50.

As correspondent of the New York Times during the late war, Mr. Wilkie had unusual opportunities of penetrating to the inner circles of events, and of meeting the heroes of the day. He was thrown naturally, too, with another class of men to whom scant justice has been done by the writers of the time—the "war correspondents" of all the great newspapers of the country, who followed the armies and did many deeds of heroism on their own account, and many also of reckless daring which never found a historian. Mr. Wilkie's book is a charming mixture of gossip and fact, about his own fraternity, campaigns and generals, and descriptions of southern and western scenes and events that never before found their way into print.

Ben Halstead and Harry Russell are worked up by a servant in Mr. Halstead's employ to search the woods of upper Maine and Canada for a French Canadian servant suspected of stealing "the star." This was a diamond ornament of rare beauty and value, for many years an heirloom in the Halstead family. The details of the winter in the wild woods, the fights with big game, and the meeting with Baptiste, the discharged servant, make quite exciting reading.

Williams, F: Wells. The life and letters of Dr. S. Wells Williams. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. por. O. cl., $3.

Williams, Helen B. Mr. Darwing's daughter. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] c. 365 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The story depicts a life of struggle with difficult circumstances. Mr. Darwing's daughter is a young woman of no more than ordinary gifts. She is not brilliant; neither is she particularly good. Her life is one of defeat and failure in a great measure. No wonderful things happen. Hers is just such a life as thousands of motherless girls out of books are living these common days. But there is a perceptible growth in Bertha Darwing's character as she passes through her experiences of trial and defeat. That, we take it, is the lesson of the book—not how a girl may live a brilliant life, but how a girl in the hard conditions in which Bertha lived can make something of her life and grow continually in spiritual beauty and in moral strength and stature, emerging at last a noble woman from her long discipline.

Williams, J: Missionary enterprises in the South Sea Islands; with an introduction by the Rev. W: P. Breed, D.D. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1888.] 416 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.25.

This interesting volume takes us back to one of the earlier stories of this century of missionary heroism. For twenty-two years John Williams wrought with apostolic fervor and apostolic success in the islands of the South Sea. At last he fell a martyr at Eromango. This was about fifty years ago. This narrative of his missionary work is full of thrilling heroisms and wonderful successes.

Williams, J., D.D. Studies in the Book of Acts. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. c. 8+178 p. O. cl., $1.50.

The author, who has been Bishop of Connecticut since 1851, holds that the Acts of the Apostles should be read in the orderly way in which people read history; that the book contains not so much commands as to what was to be done as a consecutive record of what had already been done. He gives the text of the Bible, divided not by chapters, but by historical and subject divisions. There are five distinct divisions, four of which are covered here: Part 1, The great fifty days after the resurrection; pt. 2. Birthday of the Christian church; pt. 3, Mission to the Jews; pt. 4, Preparation for mission to the Gentiles. This brings in the twelfth chapter of Acts. If encouraged he will treat of the fifth division in another volume.

Williams, R. P. Introduction to chemical science. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. c. '87. 14+214 p. D. cl., 90 c.

Characterized by directness of treatment, by the selection, so far as possible, of the most interesting and practical matter, and by the omission of what is unessential. The three great classes of chemical compounds—acids, bases, and salts—are given more than usual prominence, and the arrangement and treatment of the subject-matter relating to them is believed to be a feature of special merit.

Williams, R. P. Laboratory manual of general chemistry. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. c. 100 p. D. 30 c.

Directions for performing one hundred of the more important experiments in general chemistry and metal analyses, with blanks and a model for the same, laboratory rules and suggestions, and tables of elements, compounds, solutions, apparatus, and chemicals. Prepared for use with any text-book of chemistry; specially adapted to accompany "Introduction to chemical science."

Williams, Ramon V. The Mexican trade directory and how to obtain Mexican trade. N. Y., Office of The Mexican Trade, 35 Broadway, 1888. c. 115 p. D. cl., $2.50; pap., $2.

Mr. Williams is chancellor of the Mexican Consulate General in the U. S. and editor of The Mexican Trade, a journal devoted to its interests. He does not attempt in this little book to enter into any elaborate descriptions of Mexico, nor to describe her climate, government, political divisions, etc.; he simply gives such information as may be of importance to the merchants and manufacturers who may desire to extend their trade into Mexico.

Williams, W: Composition and rhetoric by practice; with exercises adapted for use in high schools and colleges. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1888. 238 p. D. cl., 75 c.

This claims to be "a practical book;" not that it excludes theory, but that it gives prominence to practice. It proceeds on the simple method of laying down a few simple principles at a time, and then illustrating them with such a number and variety of exercises that the pupil may fully master the practical application of these principles, and thereby learn, not only to write, but to write correctly.

Rénée's father, Col. Thomas Morrell, was a Southerner, born on a plantation not far from Charleston, South Carolina. Her mother was a French girl who her father met after the war in France. She died when Rénée was seven years old; her father then brought Rénée back to the United States and sought seclusion in a little home at the base of the Cumberland Mountains. Here Rénée's romance begins, through a railroad accident, which throws an interesting young man upon their care. Rénée's father dies suddenly, and she marries the young man and accompanies him to New York. A woman makes trouble through false representations, and Rénée flies from her husband, seeking the protection of her uncle in France. A good picture of French domestic life and a happy ending embrace all of importance in the remainder of the story.

"Beautiful Jim" had not the first claim to good looks. He falls in love with Nancy Earle, the sister of a young subaltern who has joined his regiment at Blankhampton. Nancy impresses upon him the importance of her brother as "the last of the Earles," and puts him under Beautiful Jim's special charge. The remainder of the story deals with the consequences of this charge to Beautiful Jim, which do not stop short of a trial for the murder of his best friend. The story ends in Calcutta.

Woods, Margaret L. A village tragedy. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1888. 3+211 p. S. (Leisure hour ser., no. 222.) cl., $1; pap., 25 c.

James Pontin, an Oxfordshire farmer, goes to London in response to his dead brother's wish, and takes his brother's child, a girl of fifteen, from a fetid-smelling, dark London lodging-house, to live on the farm with his capable, respectable, narrow-minded, hard second wife. Through the inane antics of an idiot boy Annie incurs her aunt's anger, is driven from the house and takes refuge with a plough-boy, who is told he cannot marry her against his father's consent until he comes of age. Through the efforts of a district nurse it is proved that this does not hold good in law; but on the eve of marriage begins the tragedy. The word-pictures of sordid country life are often worthy of Zola in their realistic strength.

The story of Katy and Clover Carr, begun in "What Katy did," "What Katy did at school," and "What Katy did next," is continued here. The book opens with Katy Carr's marriage and a charming description of all the details of this important event. Afterwards Clover goes out to Colorado with "Phil," who is not very strong, and finds her own fate there in a young Englishman.

Worcester, J: Correspondences of the Bible, pt. 2. Bost., Massachusetts New-Church Union, 1888. c. 6+330 p. S. cl., $1.

The New Church holds the belief of its founder, Swedenborg, that everything in the material universe corresponds with something in the spiritual universe. Plants, minerals, stars and atmospheres, and their various characteristics are all duplicated in the affections, thoughts, characters, and occupations of humanity. Some of these "correspondences" are intricate and seemingly far-fetched, but many of them are well brought out and show poetic feeling as well as mental ingenuity.

Worcester, Jos. E. Worcester's academic dictionary: a new etymological dictionary of the English language; prepared upon the basis of the latest edition of the unabridged dictionary of Jos. E. Worcester. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. c. '55, '88. 688 p. il. O. cl., $1.50.

While this is a revision of Lippincott's well-known academic dictionary, so many new features have been introduced that it was found necessary to reset the type entire. It presents as a distinctive new feature the etymology of words. In this, it claims, no other work of its class approaches it in fulness and completeness. In orthography great attention has been paid to usage, analogy, and etymology in deciding all disputable points. In pronunciation the book not only gives the preference of Dr. Worcester, but exhibits, at the same time, that of all the leading lexicographers. All the more common new words have been included, and hundreds of new illustrations have been added.

Wordsworth, W: The prelude; or, growth of a poet's mind: an autobiographical poem; with notes by A. J. George. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1888. c. '87. 31+322 p. D. cl., $1.

Work, H: C. Marching through Georgia: illustrated. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1889 [1888.] c. '85, '88. no paging, sq. O. cl. or ivory finish, $1.50; seal, $2.50; flex. cf. or tree cf., $5.

This popular song, written in honor of Sherman's famous march from "Atlanta to the sea," is illustrated with many characteristic full-page pictures of scenes from the "march," and a portrait of Gen. Sherman, all from the pencil of Charles Copeland. The ornamental designs are by Frank Myrick.

Wright, Elvirton. Pen's venture. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1888.] c. 2–298 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.
Penelope Randolph was always having adventures. She had a genius for coming upon the unusual, and for telling about it. One day something unusual did happen to her. Something she saw in the condition of the cash girls in a certain store gave her a thought; the thought became a plan; the plan became a venture —Pen's venture. It was nothing more or less than to equip a reading-room for cash girls, and do something to keep them off from the street when not on duty.

Wright, Henrietta Christian. Children's stories of the great scientists. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1888. c. 6+350 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.
Seventeen scientists and the time in which they lived are described so as to interest children; also the nature and importance of their discoveries are set forth in clear, simple language. The names of the subjects are as follows: Galileo, Kepler, Newton, Franklin, Charles Linnæus, Herschel, Rumford, Cuvier, Humboldt, Davy, Faraday, C: Lyell, Agassiz, Tyndall, Kirchoff, Darwin, and Huxley.

Wright, H: C. A kiss for a blow: a collection of stories for children inculcating the principles of peace; with 10 il. by Billings. New ed. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1888. c. 15+204 p. S. cl., 55 c.
These little stories for very small children were written and published forty years ago. They still retain their charm and instructive element and serve as excellent supplementary reading in schools.

A new book for the little folks, with 26 illustrations, 26 alphabetical poems, and 26 wise sayings. The pictures and text are pointed against intemperance.

Wright, Julia McNair. Nature readers, no. 1: seaside and wayside. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1888. c. '87. 7+87 p. il. D. bds., 25 c.
The nature readers are not offered as text-books in natural science, but for the use of beginners in reading. The simple lessons, however, concerning the habits, homes, and anatomy of certain animals, give young folks quite a fund of information which must be of great practical value to them when they arrive at an age to study natural science.

Wright, Julia McNair. Nature readers: seaside and wayside, no. 2; il. by C. S. King. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1888. c. 5+175 p. il. D. bds., 25 c.
The little creatures of the seaside and wayside are again the subject of this reader, as in no. 1. The habits and peculiarities of ants, flies, beetles, barnacles, jelly-fish, star-fish, etc., are told in a simple and interesting way.

Yonge, Charlotte M. Hannah More. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. 6–227 p. S. (Famous women ser.) cl., $1.
The name of Hannah More seems to stand for all the womanly virtues. In remembering her excellence and devotion we are apt to forget her versatile talents, which were manifested not only in numerous treatises on education, morals, and religion, but in poems, ballads, plays, stories, etc., etc., all of which had a marked influence upon the social life of her time, though now almost forgotten. Besides being a delightful woman, she was a charming and faithful friend, as her many clever letters testify. Garrick, Horace Walpole, and Johnson were among the greater literary lights she called her friends, while many of lesser note also shared that honor. Miss Yonge has made a most interesting work of the details of her life, describing at length her literary and social successes. Hannah More seems to have belonged entirely to a former century, but she only died in 1833, at the advanced age of 88.

Yonge, Charlotte M. Nurse's memories ; il. by Fred. Marriott and Florence Maplestone. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., [1888.] 38 p. sq. O. bds., $1.50.

Yonge, Charlotte M. Our new mistress ; or, changes at Brookfield Earl. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. 6+199 p. il. D. cl., net, $1.25.
The author of "The heir of Redcliffe" writes of the antagonism that was aroused in Brookfield Earl by the advent of a new schoolmistress. A pupil-teacher tells of Miss Martin's struggles to maintain her position in the midst of belligerent scholars and their parents. Bertha Hewitt's tale is told in a quaint and natural way, with here and there a bit of local gossip, or an incident of English rural life to relieve their lengthy detail; to Miss Amy's domestic tragedy she gives especial prominence, and finally tells what brought her to a realization of her own faults.

Yonge, Miss Charlotte M. Practical work in schools. N. Y., E. L. Kellogg & Co. 1888. c. 123–145 p. S. (Teachers' manuals, no. 4.) pap., 15 c.

Zabriskie, Francis N. Behold, a ladder; or, the way to heaven, N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] c. 32 p. T. pap., 30 c.
Religious meditations.

Zabriskie, Francis N. The Bible: a workingmen's book. N. Y., R. F. Bogardus, 4 Warren St., 1888. c. 2+14 p. O. pap., 10 c.
The aim and spirit of this latest contribution to the "Labor question" is indicated by its title. It seeks to arrest the growing indifference and disaffection of the working-classes towards religion, by showing that the Bible is not responsible for the injustice and inequalities which may characterize society, but is on their side, and that they repel their best friend and ally by refusing its aid and comfort.

A little waif picked up out of the snow during the severe winter of 1860, by a worthy couple of the little city of Beaumont, is the heroine of "The dream." First cared for as an object of charity, then loved for herself, she finally becomes the adopted daughter of the Huberts, who are childless. They are embroiderers of church vestments, as were many Huberts before them, and they teach Angelique the beautiful work, who in time far excels her teachers, becoming a rare artist and designer. Her love for one far above her is the motive of the story. Through her love her beautiful, innocent, simple nature is illustrated. As a background we get the almost mediæval life of the city and of the home and business of the Huberts.

Zola, Èmile. La terre (The soil); tr. by G: D. Cox. Phil., T. B. Peterson & Bros., [1888.] 18–421 p. S. pap., 75 c.

The scene is laid in La Beauce, a grain-producing district of France, and the characters are mainly peasants. All the peculiar characteristics of these people are brought boldly out, as well as their manner of living, their loves, their hates, and their crimes. The stormy courtship and married life of this pair, together with old Fouan's troubles, constitute the main thread of the novel. The publishers claim that the American translation "has been stripped of all the objectionable matter which disfigures it in the French."

JACKSON'S NEW STYLE VERTICAL WRITING COPY BOOKS.

Eight Numbers. Price One Penny each.

PROFESSIONAL OPINIONS

(From CLERGYMEN, INSPECTORS, MANAGERS, TEACHERS, &c)

'I can strongly recommend Mr. Jackson's new style of vertical writing.'—THE LORD PRIMATE OF IRELAND.

'The specimens are of great excellence.'
General GAMBLE, War Office.

'Especially useful in the Civil Service Examinations, in which so many otherwise competent candidates fail in handwriting, as by its adoption a frequent cause of disqualification would be removed.'
(Rev.) W. S. DARLEY, Diocesan Inspector of Schools.

'The natural system of writing.'—(Rev.) E. P. ROE, LL.D.

TRÜBNER'S LITERARY RECORD.

'It can be more readily acquired than the orthodox system.'—THOS. SMITH, Capt., H.M. Inspector of Schools, Admiralty Department.

'I have to express my unqualified approval of your system.'—(Rev.) S. E. BUSBY, LL.D. (Manager of Schools).

'Needs less supervision than any other style with which I am acquainted.'
ROBERT HEADLEY, Star Lane B.S., London.

JACKSON'S U.P. PENS.

UPRIGHT versus SLOPING WRITING:

Being an Inquiry into the respective Merits of Sloping and Upright or Vertical Writing.

By JOHN JACKSON, F.E.I.S., &c.,

Author of 'A Practical Arithmetic on an Entirely New Method for Schools, Colleges, &c.' and of 'The New Style Vertical Writing Copy Books.'

PRESS OPINION.

'The pamphlet, "Upright versus Sloping Writing," by Mr. Jackson, is most convincing in its arguments.'
COURT JOURNAL.

'A storehouse of beautiful things.'—MANCHESTER EXAMINER.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY.

ARTISTIC JAPAN:

AN ILLUSTRATED JOURNAL OF ARTS AND INDUSTRIES.

CONDUCTED BY S. BING.

In addition to Illustrated Text, each Part contains

TEN ROYAL QUARTO COLOURED PLATES

Being Reproductions of Work by the best Japanese Artists. Price 2s. per Part.

Parts I. to VI., issued in most attractive COLOURED WRAPPERS, price 2s. each, with Ten different Coloured Plates in each, can still be obtained; or sumptuously bound in coloured silk cloth, gilt top, price 15s.

'We have seen nothing of the kind which is at once so dainty and so cheap; it is reasonable to assume that it will achieve immediate and considerable popularity. "Artistic Japan," we think, is a capital publication.'—SATURDAY REVIEW.

'The plates are good and useful, the blocks in the text are commendable, and the price is reasonable.'—QUEEN.
